PREFACE.

Since the issue of the first part of the ensuing work, embracing, with the genealogies of several races traced principally abroad, all the births, marriages and deaths recorded in Sherborn and Holliston prior to 1800, and many, by request, of later dates, I have concluded to add the histories of these towns, or rather such portions of them as had not been interwoven with the genealogies.

In doing this, I have incorporated much of the History of Sherborn, by Wm. Bigelow, Esq., a pamphlet published in 1830, and of a Century Sermon, delivered 1827, by Rev. Charles Fitch, then of Holliston, both of which have become scarce, and the former quite out of print. Influenced by the conviction that I had become a solitary depository of facts and reliable traditions worthy of preservation, made investigations which no other might undertake until too late, and arrived at conclusions desirable to be verified or refuted; that the history of communities, sprung from the stock of the Puritans, and moulded and guided by their sentiments, would afford pleasure and instruction to present and future generations of their race; that these collections, without improvement in their arrangement, or other index than a table of contents, might serve the ends of genealogy and of topographical, civil and ecclesiastical history, and facilitate the labors of an abler hand in the production of a work more complete, accurate, attracting and available, I have performed the labor and incurred the expense of issuing this volume, satisfied with any patronage that may cover the outlay, gratified if it shall meet with any approbation, thankful for criticisms, tolerant of censures, and well rewarded, if it shall turn the hearts of the children to the fathers, and induce a stricter imitation of their virtues.

PREFACE.

THE following Genealogies, originally prepared at different times, with various degrees of minuteness and extent of research, and brought down to different dates, were designed, and some of them proposed for insertion in the Genealogical Register. This was done under the impression that each article might appear continuously in one vol. of that Periodical, and be as attracting and available as if published in any other form or connection. But on further information I find that the longer articles, to gain admission, must be divided into several parts, inserted here and there, mixed with other historical and genealogical matter, and be delayed for a perilous time, and even beyond the probable expectancy of life in some who have expressed much interest in the publication. I have therefore decided to issue my collections in the following form, believing that this will prove more satisfactory than the one originally proposed.

This change enhances the cost of publication without giving the subscriber an equal number of pages or amount of matter; but this will be made up in the binding of the work, and, as it is hoped, in the greater satisfaction of finding, inserted continuously, in the same vol., not only the race, with which his name is arranged, but also, other cognate races through which in female lines he may derive his descent from other and different stocks.

To those then who pledged their patronage to the other form of issue, will copies of this be forwarded at prices barely sufficient to cover the outlay, which has been surprisingly great. This, if stated, all might not appreciate. Indeed, none but the experienced in this department of toil, perplexity and expense could be expected to do so. But I have not labored without pay; for the months and years of lonely seclusion devoted to the work have abounded with seasons of sweet communion with departed worth, and delightful views of former days. Nor do I send forth this humble and imperfect production without hopes of future reward; for weak and treacherous as human gratitude is, I may gain her thanks from breasts where refinement and humility dwell, for the introduction here given to forgotten ancestors, honored of God in their day with a part in that mighty agency which is changing the condition of mankind and the aspect of the world; to ancestors who coöperated to found the institutions in which we glory; and who bequeathed to us an open Bible and uncorrupted gospel, and followed us in their prayers which are now being answered in our happiest experience.

Nor is this all. There is pleasure in the hope that useful history has been snatched from oblivion, and landmarks pointed out for future and more successful explorations; that many will be moved to perfect and transmit their genealogy; and that generations to come will be supplied with a Directory for finding their kindred of another sex, that they may decline alliances interdicted by nature and her Author, and be saved from the sin of defeating wholly or in part a chief object of their earthly mission.

The Genealogies here presented are in all cases as complete to 1800 as the records consulted, and far more so. Thousands of names are here recorded for the first time; and thousands of others, on no public record, may yet be added in supplements, if those noticing the omissions will report them. And are none of their kindred or descendants interested to do so? Will it not be an act of kindness to preserve evidence of their legitimacy? and also of their descent from the remotest ancestor remembered? The first edition of any Genealogical work is never without errors. This, with all the care I have bestowed, must have them. These, it is hoped, will be carefully and immediately pointed out in writing, that they may be hereafter corrected; and as the Adams, Bullard, Holbrook, Rockwood, Phipps and Sanger races are designed to be continued, any of either of these races are especially requested to report whatever needs correction or addition.

EXPLANATION.

On the left of names and next to the left hand margin are two columns of Arabic figures; the right hand column consisting of running numbers, and the left hand of referring numbers. The latter, if before a father's name, (and then it is ever less than the No. to the right of it) refers back to the same figures in the column of running Nos. where his name occurs as a child. If the referring No. is before a child's name, (and then it is always larger than the No. to the right,) it refers onward to the same figures in the column of running Nos. where he occurs as a father. Names having no referring Nos. before them, are either traced no further, or they have their descendants arranged immediately below their names.

Dates following the names of wives without the word and intervening, refer to her.

Numerical letters before the names of children denote their No., which must not be confounded with the running numbers in Arabic figures. These numerical letters are dropped when the child becomes a parent.

Small figures after names mark their generations, their Puritan ancestor being accounted the first.

? after a figure, denotes the reference not certain.

? after a name, signifies that it is inferred from circumstantial evidence or doubtful records, or that it has not been traced.

Initial letters are put for the names of places immediately after they have been spelled.

The practice of double dating between Jan. 1st and March 25th,—thus 1675-6, until the introduction of N. S. in 1752, is retained to prevent confusion, and enable families to compare and correct their dates.

N. B. Prior to 1752, the civil year began in March, which was called the first month, April 2d month, often expressed thus,—25 (2) i. e. 25th day, 2d month. To render O. S. into N. S., the first month must be accounted the 3d, and ten days be added to all dates between 1582 and 1700, and eleven days to dates between 1700 and 1752. For the single year 1600, eleven days must be added.

- The following notice is from No. 1425, for May 20, 1731, of the Bos. News Letter :
 " Sherborn, May 14, 1731. Died here, the reverend and worthy Mr. Daniel Baker, pastor of this church, in the forty-fifth year of his age. He was born in Dedham, of religious and worthy parents : had his education at Harvard College, in Cambridge, N. E. ; was ordained in the year 1712, assistant to the reverend and valuable Mr. Daniel Gookin, late pastor of this church. He married two worthy and virtuous gentlewomen. The first was Mrs. Mary Quincy, of Braintree, by whom he had one daughter, yet surviving; the other Mrs. Rebecca Smith, of Boston, now his mournful widow, by whom he had several children, one of which only survives. He was a gentleman of bright natural parts, much improved by acquired knowledge, very pathetical in prayer, orthodox and powerful in preaching, tender of his flock and congregation, having always the cause of God and religion much at heart. His church increased greatly under his ministry. He was exercised with much affliction, under which his patience and resignation were very signal, and notwithstanding which, he was very pleasant and affable in conversation. In his latter years he has been attended with uncommon indisposition of body, which, growing upon him, frequently interrupted him in, and sometimes wholly incapacitated him for, his work; and at length had so much the mastery of him, as entirely to deprive him of the power of speech some days before his death. As he was much esteemed and beloved by his people in his life, so his death is much lamented by them and all that knew him. He was decently interred the 17th instant."

The following extract from the Gen. Court records is illustrative of the care shown for his family:—

"Veneus Die, 28 January, A. D., 1731. A petition of Rebecca Baker, widow, and relict of the Reverend Mr. Daniel Baker, late of Sherborn, in the county of Middlesex, clerk, deceased, in behalf of herself, and as guardian to the said deceased's daughter Rebecca, a minor, and of Edmund Quincy, Esq., guardian and next friend to Elizabeth, a minor, another of the said deceased's daughters, praying that they may have liberty (under such restrictions as are necessary and have been usual in such cases) to make sale of all or so much of the said deceased's real estate, as the Court, or such person or persons as they shall appoint, shall judge proper, for reasons mentioned. Passed in Council, viz.: In Council, January 6, 1731. Read, and ordered, that the prayer of this petition be granted, and that Edmund Quincy, Esq., with such as shall be joined by the honourable House of Representatives, be and hereby are appointed trustees for the widow and children of the Reverend Mr. Daniel Baker, deceased, and that they be empowered to make sale of so much of the real estate of the said deceased as they judge necessary and most for the benefit of the said widow and children; and that the said trustees put out the produce thereof to interest, for the use of the widow and children in equal parts; the children to be paid their portions out of the principal as they come of age, or are married, and the other third part thereof to be divided between them after the widow's decease.

"Sent down for concurrence. Read and concurred, and ordered, that William Brattle, Esq., be joined in the affair."

BULLARD.

Among the early planters of New England appear seven men of the name of Bullard. The traditions concerning them are not reliable. That they were all brothers, is improbable, from indications of too great disparity of ages; from their omission to name children for each other, and a common father, if not from the continued use of a different orthography by the same clerk in recording their different names. They were—

1. Benjamin Bullard, who drew land in Watertown 1637 and '44. (See Chap. i.)
2. George Bullard, who was admitted to the Freeman's oath 1641, implying that he was a member of the church. He had land assigned him in Watertown, 1637, and died there, June, 1680, aged 81. (See Chap. ii.)
3. John Bullard, who took the Freeman's oath May 13, 1640, signed the social compact of Dedham 1 day, (6 month) 1636, where his wife Magdalen was rec'd to the chh. 1639, and d. 29d. (1 mo.) 1661. He had land assigned him in Medfield, 1650 and '59, and d. there July 4, 1668. (See Chap. iii.)
4. Isaac Bullard, who signed the social compact of Dedham 1636, and where he, or another of the same name, m. Sarah Jones, from Dorchester, 3, (11) 1654, and was admitted townsman 1655, and d. at D. 11, (3) 1676, leaving a widow, Ann. (See Chap. iv.)
5. Nathaniel Bullard, who was admitted townsman at Dedham 1655, and freeman May 15, 1690, and d. there 3, (11) 1681. (See Chap. v.)
6. Wm. Bullard, who took the Freeman's oath May 13, 1640, signed the social compact of Dedham 18, (6) 1636, where his wife was received to the church in 1639, and he was chosen Selectman in 1643.
7. Robert Bullard, who died at Watertown 24, (4) 1639, aged 40, leaving a widow, Anna.

CHAPTER I.

1. 8. Of the above list of Bullards, Benjamin is the only one whose entire race admit of being traced with certainty, and separated from all others bearing the name. The orthography of our early records, that is so variable, generally preserves one mode of spelling his name; yet, from the inspection of private papers, and the uniform substitution of e for a in the last syllable, and the omission of d final by one of the best informed clerks in the colony, arises the supposition that the name was originally identical with Bulwer; and if so, then Bulwer may be a corruption of Bullard. Our sires brought with them from England the following tradition of the origin of the name: "One called a Lard, in ancient times, when on a royal hunting excursion, outstripped his company in chase of a wild bull, and killed him—and ever after this feat was called the great Bull Lard. Hence his descendants were named Bullard."* The signature of Benjamin Bullard<sup>1</sup> has not been preserved, and

* This story may admit of neither proof nor refutation; and yet, is there nothing in its favor in the fact that the name, in Europe, is without a coat-of-arms, rare, and of narrow range? But, however this may be, the authenticity of the tradition need not be doubted; for Mrs. Temperance D. Bullard, of Morristown, N. J., still living, (and long may she live to pray for the race and the world!) says that Mr. Jona. Bullard, a man of distinguished piety, who died 1824, aged very little can be ascertained concerning him. He was undoubtedly from England, and probably among the first planters of Watertown, in 1630. His name first occurs upon the records of that town in the oldest history of her inhabitants, and in the first division of her public lands in 1637. In 1644 more land was assigned him, and he became the proprietor of about 100 acres, and of a dwelling-house, on the W. side of Fresh Pond. How much longer he lived, or where he died, has not been discovered. The name of his wife was not improbably Sarah —, and he had but two children, who lived to heir his estate, viz. :

10. 9. I. Benjamin,<sup>2</sup> who inherited all his real estate at W., and II. a daughter, mentioned as the sister of Benj., in 1672.

9. 10. Benjamin,<sup>2</sup> at the decease of his father, was probably a minor, and committed to the care of an uncle at Dedham, where he appears about the time he is presumed to have attained his majority, and where he seems to have formed such connections as are usually preceded by a long and youthful acquaintance. He was admitted a townsman at Dedham 1, (11) 1655, which then implied a previous probation, a good moral character, and the age of 21. His marriage is not on record ; but circumstances almost as conclusive show that he m. Martha Fairbank, the sister of George F., of Dedham, who was of a good family, and connected with George F., of Somerby, in the vicarage of Halifax, Yorkshire. Benj. Bullard and George Fairbank soon after embarked together in an undertaking that must have required courage, enterprise, and means above the possession of most young men of their community. To Capt. Robert Kayne, of Boston, had been granted, in 1649, 1074 acres, at Pawsett Hill, and which is now partly in Sherborn and partly in Medway. Cpt. Kayne d. Mar. 23, 1655-6. Of his executors, soon after, Bullard and Fairbank are presumed to have bought the south half or third of this tract ; and Hill and Breck, also brothers-in-law, from Dorchester, purchasing at the same time another part, bounding them upon the N. These constituted the second company who planted W. of Charles River ; and they all located their dwellings with reference to natural security, and that which they soon provided. They settled here prior to Feb. 2, 1658, when their first child was born. Benj. Bullard and his brother-in-law seem to have divided their part of the tract as was then common, so as to give each other scattered lots and secure sites for building near each other. Bullard took the N. and S. W. parts, and located his dwelling on the N. side of Bogistow Pond, near a copious and still valuable spring. The situation was admirably chosen for the capture of game, the rearing of stock, and for security against surprise from hostile Indians. The scenery was such as a man of taste would have chosen. It is still both beautiful and sublime. From his door he could survey the Broad Meadows, a wet prairie of five miles in extent, through which Charles River meanders, and which in vernal and autumnal seasons is converted into a lake. Hills beyond, covered with towering pines, then appeared mountains, while the soil beneath, lifted by roots two or three feet above its present level, concealed the hideous boulders which, in consequence of their decay, the absence of protecting humus and leaves, and the action of deeper and more frequent frosts, have since risen to the surface, and occasioned an inconsiderate impeachment of the judgment and taste of many an early planter. His land was then arable and rich. But his was a frontier location, cut off by river and marsh, and a distance of four miles from the nearest settlement at Medfield. His prospects and life were in danger. He found Wood, Leland and Holbrook, settled from one to two miles N., and was soon joined by Rockwood and Daniels within one mile S., making, with Hill and Breck, one-third of a mile N., and Fairbank hard by on the S. W., a settlement of nine families, to be defended by themselves. They knew the Indian character and mode of warfare—that he never made his assault in the night, nor was he wont to cross open fields in his approach, or fail, if hungry, to publish it by killing a strayed ox. They accordingly selected for the site of their garrison the N. bank of Bogistow Pond, having long, wet prairies on the E. and N.W. The intervening neck was by fire and steel soon denuded on the N. and S., and a large vacuity secured. The waters of the pond in summer, and of Bullard's spring in winter, attracted their cattle, to report the missing and sound the alarm. Here they prepared to live, as all of them virtually did, the rest of their lives, in a state of warfare. They built for a garrison-house a spacious and regular fortress. It was superior to any similar structure on the then frontier. It was 65 or 70 feet long, two stories high, all of faced stone, brought over ice from a quarry one mile distant at the N.W., and laid, in a workmanlike manner, in clay mortar. It had a double row of port holes on all sides, lined with white oak plank, and flaring inward, so as to require no one to expose himself before them, while the besieged, by taking cross aims, could direct their fire to every point of the compass. This fortress was lighted and entered at the S. end, overlooking the pond, where the bank was so low that assailants from that quarter, in levelling at the high windows, would only lodge bullets in a plank chamber floor, or among the furniture of the garret. The upper story was appropriated to the women and children, and had a room partitioned off for the sick. To this place of security our ancestors, for more than two generations, were accustomed to flee in times of alarm, and here no small number of their children were born. In this fort they were once besieged by a host of Philip's warriors, who, in despair of all other means, attempted to fire the building by running down the declivity above it a cart of burning flax. Arrested in its descent by a rock still to be seen, and an Indian who had run down to start it having been killed, a retreat was sounded, and the lives of our ancestors saved. Two months afterwards the enemy returned, when our fathers sallied forth and charged them with such execution that "they never dared to show their faces there afterwards." The walls of this edifice were carefully preserved by the descendants of Benj. Bullard, until about 1785, when the proprietor sold out to a Vandal, who demolished them. Will the present proprietor, Horatio Mason, Esq., palisade the rock that scotched the cart, and saved the lives of five of his own ancestors? Benj. Bullard early united in the enterprise of adding a new town to the colony, and of enlarging the borders of Zion. In 1662 he signed the first petition for the incorporation of Sherborn. In 1673, Oct. 3, he sold for £40 his patrimonial estate, in Watertown, to Justinian Holden. In 1674 he signed a second petition for the incorporation of Sherborn, when their prayer was granted, and he, by an Act of the General Court, with twelve other petitioners and twenty more of such as they might consent to receive as inhabitants, constituted a proprietor of lands, now composing Sherborn, Holliston, and large districts of Framingham and Ashland. After the incorporation of Sherborn, Benj. Bullard was active in advancing her interests. In the petitions to the General Court, in the social compact of the town that he subscribed, he declared his high regard for the progress of the Gospel and the well-being of man. He was one of the six brethren to constitute the church at its formation. He served as Tythingman 1680, as Selectman, 1688; and was chosen to the very delicate office of seating the meeting when their house of worship was finished.

The Indian claim to lands granted in S. prior to the incorporation of the town, not having been extinguished by the original grantees, Benj. B. united with nine other owners of these grants, and for £20, paid to seven natives as principals, and empowered by "the natural descendants of the ancient inhabitants and proprietors of the lands in and about S.," procured, June 12, 1682, a quit-claim to 4000 acres. These included his farm of 150 do.; and in 1686 he was rated with the forty proprietors and inhabitants of S. to raise an equal amount to extinguish the Indian claim to the remainder of 10,000 acres included in the township. He was rated among the highest, and this rate having been early adopted as the rule whereby the common lands should be proportioned, he and his heirs drew large shares, and became the owners of much land. He died intestate, Sept. 27, 1689, and administration was granted to his son Samuel, and Sarah Bullard? pr. his mother or sister. His personal estate was appraised Nov. 28, 1689, by John Harding and Joseph Bullard, at £235 16s.; and from another inventory, [Mid. Prob.] he seems, for his day, to have left a good property in stock and lands. The ancient Bullard farm on Bogistow Brook, in Medway, the Bullard farms in the S. and W. of Sherborn, and in the N. and W. of Holliston, were inherited from him, and drawn in his right. These have been enjoyed by many generations of his race, and well may his memory claim their gratitude and reverence. How can they show them? He sleeps hard by the scene of his toils and perils. On the apex of one of Nature's pyramids, whose base is laved by Charles River, repose his ashes, in company with those of the founders of Sherborn. Over them are scattered the fragments of broken headstones, on their way to the river, whose gurgling waters seem to chant unheard the requiem of the dead, and whose bosom offers a more hospitable home to the tenants of their graves than their degenerate children are willing to provide, with law and justice to aid them. Editors and travellers have cried "Shame!" in vain. Will the Bullards now interfere, redeem six feet, and mark it with a monument worthy of their great Puritan ancestor? It can be readily and peaceably done. There is not a spirited female of the race who cannot, by her pen, accomplish it. Benj. Bullard<sup>2</sup> m. 1st Martha Fairbanks, who d. Jan. 4, 1676-7. He lived in an eventful period of her history, during which the administration of her affairs seemed to devolve mainly on him. He d. Dec. 11, 1727, a. 60. 11. 18. Benj. Bullard, 3d, inherited land that had been assigned to his father S. W., of Brush Hill, and built his house on the road from Holliston to the W., about half a mile N. E. of Whitney's Quarry. As inheritor of his father's right in common lands, he in 1716 drew lands adjoining the N. E. corner of Mendon, now Milford; and in 1715, 27 acres W. of Mendon, now Douglas. At the 2d division of lands at D., in 1730, there were 45 acres more drawn "in his right," showing that he had disposed of his right in the grants at that place. He was chosen tythingman in 1722 and '28, and repeatedly surveyor of highways, in the alteration and improvement of which he took uncommon interest. He occupied naturally the best land in the township, and seems to have quietly devoted his days to its cultivation, until they were nearly numbered, and he and his wife in need of affectionate care from their children. Two of the four had settled in Holl., and his home boy, born ab. 32 years before, was now of age, but unmarried; and the father, understanding that spinsters then, as well as now, were naturally averse to antiquities, and that his son either loved himself so that he could love nobody else, or that he had been kicked so often and hard that he would never more venture within the reach of a female blow, despaired of the arrival of any daughter-in-law, and removed in 1739-40 to his son Benjamin's, in Holliston. Here he spent the remainder of his days, and settled his estate. To Benj. he had given a deed of 60 acres as early as May 29, 1727, and subsequently some other real estate in H.; but on the 20th March, 1748, in consideration of his dutifulness in taking care of him and his wife, he conveyed to him all his right to common lands in S. and H., and to a tract in the cedar swamp in H. To Jona. he is presumed to have left his beautiful farm in S.; to Seth, other lands in H. and Douglas; and to the old bachelor, at least, the privilege of grumbling. He survived until about 1760, and d. intestate, aged ab. 90. He m. Tabitha —, and had at S.,

17. 21. Benj., Lt., inherited the homestead, was constable in 1727, and served as selectman 15 years. He made his will Feb. 12, 1762, making ample provision for his wid. Miriam, during her 1st widowhood, and magnanimously for her 2d do. should it occur. His farm of 185 acres he divided to his three sons, giving Benjamin the home lot, or E. division, who exchanged it for the S. W. do., given to Peter. To Samuel he gave the N. W. do. To Deb. Twitchell and Keziah Leland, each, he gave half his lands in Doug. and £80; and to Martha Leland £86; and the rest of his estate to be equally divided among his 3 sons, the eldest to be sole ex'r. 23. 35. Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Col., inherited one third of his father's farm, and built his house where the heirs of the late Elijah Hill reside. He was early invested with the honors of his fellow-citizens, and much confidence, through a long life, was placed in his judgment and integrity. He was received as Capt. B., a member of the Ancient Art. Co. 1755, chosen Selectman 1760, and served in that capacity nine years, and was Representative 1774. At the commencement, and during the Revolutionary War, he was an active and efficient Whig; served one campaign at Bennington, and was often on committees of correspondence and vigilance. He married

Martha Perry, from Medfield, Dec. 12, '51, who died Jan. 8, '53, without issue; and 2d, July 10, 1754, Mary (Cooledge) Ware, wid. of Benj. W. Bullard bought of John Morse 30 acres, originally granted to Rev. Daniel Gookin, and once owned by James Cooledge, his father-in-law, situated on the W. side of the county road, at the bottom of the Meeting-house Hill; also of Moses Perry 3 acres, on the E. of the road, and 80 acres of rough woodland, S. of the road from the plain to the farm, and E. of the plain. The deeds may be found on record, and the slander-monger who never turns out for a grave except to tramp rough-shod over it, can read them. In 1769 he bought land of Moses Perry for a malt-house. After the first purchase he moved to the plain, kept a house of entertainment, and erected malt-works, which have been successfully carried on by his descendants quite to the present time. He d. 55. 79. Dr. Artemas Bullard, of Sutton, was the second son of Asa Bullard, of Holliston, by Hannah Cook, his second wife. He was the executor of his father's will, who was the administrator of the estate of his father, Benjamin Bullard, and thus a variety of papers came to his hands, relating to his ancestors, from which it appears that they early removed from the town of Sherborn to Holliston. Of a family of five children by the first wife, and eleven by a second, Artemas was the only one professionally educated. About the time he became of age, he commenced the study of Medicine with Dr. John B. Kittredge, of Framingham, and completed his studies with Dr. Daniel Fiske, of Oxford. He was with Dr. Fiske about two years ; and the ancient people of Oxford recollect Dr. Bullard as a "smart young physician," whom they were desirous of having settled with them.

With an inventory of medicines costing twelve pounds, and under a debt of the like amount, he commenced practice in Northbridge, August 28, 1794, and continued there till his removal to Sutton, April 8, 1805. While a Student of Medicine at Oxford, he became acquainted with his first wife, Maria Waters, eldest daughter of Ebenezer Waters, Esq., of Sutton, a relative of Dr. Fiske, and they were married February 17, 1796. She was a very worthy lady, but died, without issue, in about two years after her marriage, and now sleeps in the tomb of her father, in a private cemetery near West Sutton village. Upon this tomb is a monumental tablet, with many inscriptions, commemorative of the family of her father.

On the 6th of December, 1798, Dr. Bullard married, as his second wife, Lucy White, the eldest daughter of Mr. Jesse White, of Northbridge, by whom he had three daughters and seven sons. She now survives him in the enjoyment of health, and the respect of all who know her. She was brought up and educated in the Anabaptist way ; but soon after the birth of their first child, she and her husband both became connected with the Congregational Church, under the pastoral care of the late Rev. Dr. John Crane, for whom they always cherished the greatest regard.

In Northbridge Dr. Bullard was much esteemed both as a citizen and physician, and his practice in that place and vicinity became extensive. But his father-in-law, Esquire Waters, being advanced in years, and having a large and beautiful farm in the westerly part of Sutton, induced him to purchase it ; and after that, his attention was divided between his profession and his farm. He, however, continued to practise as long as he lived. In 1805, when military honors were not so cheap as at present, he was appointed by Governor Strong surgeon of the regiment where he resided ; and in 1814 the Council of the Massachusetts Medical Society elected him as a Fellow. Nothing was wanting to give him an eminent position in his profession, but exclusive devotion to it.

Dr. Bullard belonged to the school of domestic economists, who regard industry and subordination as indispensable elements in a wise administration of family government; yet he was an indulgent father. In his desire for the preferment of his children, he always seemed to forget himself. They were all well educated;—three of his sons were graduates, and entered the ministry; one is a physician, in extensive practice, in Indianapolis; and his three daughters all married professional men.

In his person Dr. Bullard was somewhat above the ordinary stature; of light florid complexion; light blue eyes; nose slightly aquiline; and, in short, as his surviving contemporaries say, “a fine-looking man.” He possessed ardent feelings, and great energy of character, united with a sound judgment. His integrity was proverbial—always doing exact justice to others, and expecting the same from them. He thus secured the confidence and respect of all, while he failed to gain that personal popularity which often results from an indiscriminate indulgence of faults, under the name of charity.

The residence of Dr. Bullard at West Sutton was upon a beautiful rise of land, about half a mile south-east of the village. In his family it will long be recollected and designated as “Bullard Hill.” The dwelling-house is a substantial two-story structure, erected some three-fourths of a century ago, but still looks as if it might serve several generations more. Four or five rods west of it is one of those magnificent elms that characterize so many of the early New England homes. The farm is now owned and occupied by Joseph Bullard, the third son of the Dr. But one of the children has deceased, whilst the rest of them, with their families, are settled in several different States in the Union.

The death of Dr. Bullard was occasioned instantaneously, by a fall in his barn; but for which he might have survived, in comfortable health, for several years. It occurred on the sixth day of May, 1842. His funeral was attended by a large concourse of relatives and friends, and the funeral services were performed by the Rev. Hiram Tracy, of Sutton, and the Rev. David Holman, of Douglas. He was buried in the West Sutton Cemetery. The lot in which he lies is enclosed by an iron fence, which, if it receives from his descendants the care that filial piety and respect owe to the monuments of the dead, will resist the corrodings of the elements for many centuries. Within this enclosure is erected a plain marble head-stone, with the following inscription upon it: “DR. ARTEMAS BULLARD; born at Holliston, December 8, 1768; died at Sutton, May 6, 1842, aged 73.”

By the side of his grave is the vacant but chosen resting-place of the much-cherished partner who still survives him. Long may it remain untenanted!

Worcester, Dec. 22, 1854.

1. Maria Waters, Jan. 25, 1800, was m. Nov. 11, 1823, at Sutton, by Rev. Edmund Mills, to Hon. Ira Moore, of Barton, b. at Oxford, Oct. 25, 1796, and named Ira; but in testimony of respect for the memory of his maternal grd. mother, and revered gr. father Moore, the first magistrate in the ancient town of Oxford, he in 1838, by an act of the General Court, adopted the additional name of Moore. He grad. at Brown University, in 1819, and at the Law School of Har. Univ. in 1822; practised law in his native town 1822-34, and represented her in 1830-1-2 in the House and the Co. of Worcester, in 1833-4 in the Senate of our Legislature. In 1834, he removed to Worcester. In 1836, he was appointed Judge of Probate for Worces. Co., and in 1840, chosen Elector for President and Vice Pres. In 1844, he resigned his Judgeship, and in 1846, represented the city of Worcester. Since then, he has resided in W. in comparative retirement, holding only the honorable and useful office of a Justice. His numerous friends, however, as though not satisfied with his enviable position in society, and convinced that he is the strongest man in the ranks of their conservative party, have sought to inflict on him a mission to Washington, but it is hoped that he and the entire race with which he is here incorporated, will maintain integrity enough to keep them in these days, out of Congress as well as State Prison. He had

Of his early history I have no knowledge. He grad. at Amherst Col.; and studied divinity at Theo. Sem., Andover, where he completed his course 1827. Of his style and success as a preacher, of his vigilance and fidelity as a pastor, and of his labors and efficiency in the cause of general education and benevolence, I need not at present write. They are sure of preservation in the history of the Western country, and of the metropolis where he has latterly resided, and will constitute an instructive chapter in the future history of the Bullard race.

He m. June 2, 1829, Ann T. Jones, b. Jan. 31, 1808, dg. of Samuel J., Esq., of Acton, by w. Anna Tuthill, sis. to Miss Sarah T. sec'y to Fem. Teachers' Ass., Mass., and a descendant from the brother of Arch Bp. Leighton. He had

- III. Asa, Rev. A. M., b. Mar. 26, 1804, and like most men of his usefulness, embraced the Gospel in his youth. It was in Feb., 1821, that he first indulged hopes in the pardoning mercy of God; and on the 12th of Aug. of the same year, was received into the Congregational chh. at Sut. He prepared for col. at Amherst Academy, and grad. there in 1828; engaged for the next year in teaching at Augusta, Me.; entered And. Theo. Sem. in the Autumn of '29, but in Apl., '31, accepted an appointment as agent for the Maine Sabbath School Union, in which office he continued for three years, during which he superintended the establishment of at least 300 Sabbath Schools. On the 13th of Jan., 1832, he was ordained at Portland as an Evangelist. On Mar. 1, '34, he was called to the Secretaryship of the Mass. Sabbath School Society, the duties of which office he has continued to discharge for 21 years, with a promptness and efficiency that command the gratitude of the public. Besides the other onerous duties of this office, he has edited 10 vols. of the S. S. Visitor, and 11 do. of the Well Spring, and contributed to form the minds and hearts of hundreds of thousands, for time and eternity. He m. Lucretia G. ii. Cyrus,<sup>6</sup> March 6, 1780, d. um., Ap. 18, 1806. This was a remarkable young man, the pride and ornament of his native town, as we can well remember. It is not easy for the younger generation to estimate the evidence of his talents by modern comparisons. For a youth of such limited opportunities, 55 years ago, to conceive the design of breaking away from the seclusion and monotony of rural life, and of embarking in such adventurous enterprises, and to be able to satisfy cautious friends of his competency, was a very different thing from doing it now. He sailed from Providence, Dec. 1, 1800, for Chili, where he arrived July, 1801, and took up his residence at Conception. Here he devoted some months to the acquisition of Spanish. Subsequently he gained employment as a linguist. During a portion of his time at C., he worked in gold and diamonds, and kept a store of jewelry. Sept. 3, 1803, he sailed for the Island of Masafuro. Here he remained from Sept. 11, until March 7, 1804, purchasing furs for the China market, with which he arrived at Canton in Sept. following. Having transacted his business here and recovered from dangerous sickness, he sailed in Nov. for America, and arrived at Nantucket, Ap. 7, 1805. Nov. following, he sailed from Boston as master and supercargo in the brig Littiller, for Guadaloupe, and after a prosperous voyage, returned to B., Feb. 11, 1806. Fifteen days after he sailed again, in the employ of the same house, for the same island, which he left on the 13th of Ap. for St. Thomas. Here he was arrested by a fever, with which he died Ap., 1806, a. 26. The news of his death threw a pall over the entire community of Medway, and the watchful pastor, Rev. Luther Wright, added his voice to that of Providence, in a public discourse which by request was published.

IV. Henry Adams Bullard,<sup>6</sup> A. M. and S. H. S., b. Sep. 9, 1788, d. Apl., 1851. The following obituary appeared in the New Orleans Crescent, soon after.

THE LATE JUDGE BULLARD.

“A sense of duty, heightened by personal friendship, leads us to attempt a brief sketch of HENRY ADAMS BULLARD, whose death we recorded yesterday. He was born in Pepperell, Massachusetts—of which town his father was the minister—on September 9th, 1788. On the mother's side, he was closely connected with the distinguished family, whose name he bears. He was educated at Harvard University, and graduated in the class of 1807, at the age of nineteen. At the time, French was the only modern language taught in that institution. But while he pursued his law studies, both in Boston and Philadelphia, he acquired the Spanish, Italian, and German, all of which he critically understood and appreciated. It is only a few months since we found him and his son reading Mifflin's Tasso, with the original, and heard from his ‘unpremeditated talk,’ an essay on the ‘Jerusalem,’ which would have furnished a professional lecturer with an evening's dissertation.

In Philadelphia, the acquaintances formed through his knowledge of the Spanish, brought him in contact with Gen. Toledo, who was organizing an expedition to revolutionize New Mexico. Judge Bullard, then just admitted to the Bar, joined him as an Aid and Military Secretary, and proceeded with him to Nashville, where he passed the winter of 1812. The following spring he accompanied Gen. Toledo, and the recruits, to Natchitoches, which was the starting point. They entered the Mexican territory and found the people already in arms, and the royal troops driven out of what now constitutes Texas, except the force in San Antonio ; but these retired at the approach of the Republicans. Here they remained several weeks, until the Spanish General, having concentrated an overwhelming force, defeated the Republicans in a pitched battle, and scattered their forces in every direction. Judge Bullard was mounted, and with one or two companions, managed to reach the American settlements, after suffering severe hardships. When he entered Natchitoches he was ragged, sick—broken down by fatigue and privation, and, worse than all, penniless. Here he opened an office, and commenced the practice of his profession. Natchitoches, in point of age, is second to New Orleans, and at that time, was second in importance. It was the trading post for the Indians and Mexicans within an extensive circuit. The great raft prevented all intercourse by river above, and it was virtually the head of navigation on Red River.

The removal of the raft, the purchase of the Indian lands, and the removal of the Indians—the introduction of steamboats, and the facility of communication with New Orleans, all have tended to the decline of the ancient town. All that period, a practising lawyer of the Western District was compelled to ride a circuit, embracing Opelouses, Avoyelles, Alexandria, Natchitoches, Ouachita and Concordia, a distance of three hundred miles. The practice was lucrative, and the bar numbered more talent and learning, than at any subsequent period. The names of Wilson, Johnston, Brent, Porter, Bowen, Bronson, Thomas, and Bullard, would have done honor to any bar. Of these, General Isaac Thomas alone remains at the bar—himself and Mr. Bronson alone survive. It was a life of great physical hardship, yet one of much enjoyment.

Some years since, we rode from Natchez to Alexandria with Judge Bullard and Gen. Thomas. It was a region over which, some thirty years before, they had travelled twice a year. Scarcely a spring or brook was passed, which did not call up some interesting reminiscence, and they lived over again the scenes of their active and adventurous youth; and the younger men, who accompanied them, almost regretted that they, too, had not lived in those days of freedom and manly exercise.

In 1822, Judge Bullard went upon the District Court Bench, and performed its duties for several years, when he resigned; but, after a year or two, returned. In 1831, he was elected to Congress, from the Western District, and re-elected the next term. In 1834, he was elevated to the Supreme Bench, taking the place of Judge Porter, who went into the Senate of the United States. In Congress, Judge Bullard was not among the debaters. He spoke occasionally, on great questions, and after careful preparation. His most elaborate speech was on the Tariff bill, in 1832.

He remained on the Supreme Bench from 1834 till 1846, with the exception of a few months in '39, when he filled the office of Secretary of State, and resumed the practice of his profession. Under the Constitution of '45, a new Judiciary was created, and not one of the members of the Supreme Court retained. He returned to his practice in this city, and was retained in much of the important litigation of the State. His decisions are models of judicial rhetoric; brief, perspicuous and pointed. As a writer, Judge Bullard had few equals; he wrote without effort, yet with a critical accuracy that defied correction. As a speaker, he had the advantage of a face of extreme beauty, which the ravages of excruciating disease for twenty-five years did not destroy, a speaking eye, and a musical voice. But his command of language was not copious, and though he always used the aptest words, he sometimes hesitated in selecting them. When, however, excited, he spoke with feeling, force and eloquence. His last public speech in New Orleans, was at the Bar meeting, called together by the death of Mr. Prentiss. He then spoke with much emotion, and pronounced one of the most beautiful eulogies in the language. On that mournful occasion, he thus spoke of himself:

'Who would have thought that I, whose career is ended—that I, whose sands are fast dropping away—that I, with my age and physical infirmities—I whose children no longer require a father's solicitude, should have survived to pay this feeble tribute to his memory; while he, the young, the noble-hearted, the gifted—in the fulness of his fame and usefulness—sinks into an early grave, and leaves behind him a youthful and pious wife and four orphan children, to weep for his loss? How inscrutable are the ways of Providence!'

Among the many noble traits of his character, on which his friends will love to dwell, was his interest in the younger members of the Bar. We remember well the embarrassment with which, as an unknown young lawyer, from the woods, we first appeared before that awful body, the Supreme Court, and we can never forget the kindness of his manner, the considerate attention which he bestowed on the obscure advocate, at once restoring confidence and winning gratitude. Such, too, was the remark of other young men, under the same trying circumstance; and even when suffering the torments of the gout, we never knew him to show any ill feeling to the younger and humbler members of the Bar. He kept up to the last his habit of general reading, and was familiar with all the best authors, of all languages. His conversation was that of a full man, without the slightest approach to pedantry. It may well be said of him, that 'He was a scholar, and a wise and good one;

Exceeding wise, fair spoken, and persuading.'

He delivered many lectures and addresses before the literary societies of this city, which might be well compared with similar productions of men who make literature a profession. In 1847, he was appointed Professor of the Civil Law, in the Law School of Louisiana, and delivered two courses of lectures. In 1850, he was elected to fill a vacancy in the State Legislature, and a few weeks after was elected to fill the vacancy in the Second Congressional District, occasioned by the entrance of Mr. C. M. Conrad into the Cabinet. Judge Bullard thus returned to Congress, after an absence of sixteen years. He found but few of his old friends in either House. He did not speak during the short session, though we know it had been his wish to do so on the California Bills. His thorough knowledge of the Spanish laws, and their system of land titles, would have enabled him to give Congress much valuable information, which is now lost. During the session, he argued several cases in the Supreme Court, and was treated with marked attention by that talented and learned Bench.

His health during the winter was remarkably good, and the cold, dry climate braced his constitution. But he imprudently returned home by the Southern route, and the fatigue and exposure of the journey completely prostrated him. He lingered for three weeks, and died at last from the gout in the stomach.—His funeral was attended by a large number of the Bar, the Judges of the Supreme Court, and many of the most prominent citizens."

After spending most of his years at the S., he in 1829, removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, and from thence to Lancaster, and next to Mount Carmel; employed most of the time as agent for the American Sund. School Union for Ohio. Urged by representations of the character and prospects of the Prairie Country, and by the desire to plant religious institutions there before opposition should become organized against them, he disposed of his place at Mt. C. in 1833, and removed to Hennipen, in N. Ill., and the next year, as was then the custom of settlers, took measures to secure a claim on government land, 25 miles above the mouth of Fox R., where he finally settled with his family, and spent the remainder of his days in superintending the opening of his farm, collecting the settlers around as they arrived, and showing them the only way to a better country. * Boston, Apl., 1855. Since the preparation of this work, I have learned, with sorrow and regret, that Malachi B., Esq., and lady, have both deceased, and nearly at the same time. She was a most amiable woman, and a model neighbor and mother. He merits an extended obituary, having been one of the most upright, useful, pacific, and esteemed citizens of my native town during the last 60 years. His memory honors the name.

Sarah,<sup>2</sup> m. Eleazer Mayes, and had only Eleazer.

CHAPTER VI.

6. Wm. Bullard,<sup>1</sup> a respected, prominent citizen of Dedham in 1643, is presumed to have deceased there, not long after, though no record of his death or the settlement of his estate has been discovered. He left sons who inherited his place at D., and transmitted it to their descendants, who now point out the location of his first habitation. The former and latter generations of Bullards in D. and some of the adjacent towns are no doubt his descendants, and by family records capable of being traced from him. Town and county records fail to afford proof of such descent, while they show the continuance of the Patriarchal name, and the respectability and prominent standing of the Dedham Bullards.
7. Nathaniel Bullard, admitted freeman, May 15, 1690, is supposed to have been the son of Wm.<sup>1</sup>; also,

20. 31. Amos, Rev., A. M., prepared for Col. under the instruction of Rev. Elijah Brown, of S., grad. with honor at H. U., 1804, studied theology with Rev. Pres. Bates, then pastor at Dedham, with whom he subsequently became closely connected by marriage. In 1806 he was licensed to preach by the Ded. Asso. But being of too slender health for the peculiar labors of the pulpit, he engaged in the calling of a classical instructor, preaching only occasionally, and dividing his time between Ded., Boston, Salem and Sherborn, and spending about 5 years in each place. Many of his former pupils whose minds and hearts he contributed to form, have risen to great eminence, in the different professions, who by their inquiries, still evince an interest in his welfare honorable to all parties, proving him to be rich in friends. In 1828 Mr. C. became stated supply to the only pulpit in his native town, and on May 20, 1830, was here ordained and settled as the 7th minister of a parish 155 years old. This office he sustained until 1842, when the feebleness of his health called for his resignation. -

24. 25. George, rs. at Ded., conducts business in Bos. as printer and publisher ; is the author of several published articles of merit, and particularly of a poem on "The Joys of Toil," delivered at the anniversary of the Bos. Mech. Appren. Lib. Asso., Feb., 1850, which alone entitles him to rank among literary men. His acrostical stanza to his infant son is a curiosity well worthy of a place in Gould Brown's standard work, "The Grammar of English Grammars," where, as I learn from Mr. B., it would have found a place had he earlier met with it. The reader will notice that the initial letters of all the words in the stanza form the name. To secure its preservation for some work like Mr. Brown's, showing the flexibility of our language, I here introduce it :

Go Ever Onward, Righteous Glories Earning,
As Understanding Struggles Through Its Night,—
Creative Omnipresence Only Learning,—
In Duty's Garland-pathway Erudite.

14. 18. Hon. Elihu Cutler, as a conspicuous citizen of H. in the last century and the early part of the present, is included with those whom it was the original design sign of this work particularly to notice; and though the whole of his history cannot be now given, yet, considering his very great age, and the improbability of his surviving the publication of this work, I make no further apology for adding an epitome of his life. He was born of respected parents. His father was a farmer and innholder, and held the commission of Col. in the militia, to which great honor was then attached. His mother was a woman of natural refinement, uncommon energy, and high moral worth—truly an excellent woman. From them he inherited no fortune. But they taught him to govern his passions, to be under a subordination now obsolete, and to apply himself diligently to business; and thereby contributed more to his future happiness and success than the largest fortune could have done without them. He passed his minority in assisting his father upon the farm and in the tavern, and in learning the trade of a wheelwright, attending, for short terms, such district schools as H., in her poverty, could then provide. Yet his mind, naturally strong and active, somehow acquired a good common education, and even mastered treatises upon metaphysics.

The information he acquired, and his ability to impart it, rendered his society attracting and profitable. Mental culture, often acquired by the study of business as well as books, early marked his countenance and gave dignity to his manners. These, coupled with a good measure of common sense, rendered him the first young man in H. This occurred at an age when seniority gave precedence, and before men guilty of grey hairs were found unfit for council and the selection of their public servants; in an age when young men learned manners from God's word, rose up before the fathers and modestly waited for a call to posts of distinction. Thus did young Elihu Cutler. But he did not wait long; not longer than ignorance and impudence are now forced to wait after a self-nomination or the results of a conclave of political blacklegs. His first appearance in a public capacity that I can remember was that of marshal on the great and mournful occasion of the funeral of Washington; and well do I remember the grief which sat on all countenances, and the solemn order in which he led the procession, and the laudatory remarks of aged mourners on his part of the solemnities. From about that time, for nearly 40 years he was connected with the public measures and transactions of H.; and if not the projector of all, what one, it might be asked, was ever brought to an advantageous conclusion without him? No portion of the influence he exerted, or of the good he accomplished, is to be measured by the offices he filled. Honest and frank in his political views as a federalist, he was soon after the origin of the opposing party thrown into a minority. But he was not the man to change his coat or anticipate the modern fashion of making himself one of patched work, showing the colors of all parties. He stood by his principles and remained in the minority, until libels on Hartford Convention proved more efficient than truth, and the federal party were slandered into dissolution. But for that circumstance, his name had been 20 years earlier connected with the history of Mass. legislation. In 1820 he was chosen a member of the convention to amend the State Constitution, and in 1827-8 to represent H. in the House, and subsequently the county of Middlesex, in the Senate of Mass., and was the first State senator ever chosen from H. Long prior to this he had been appointed a magistrate. But it is as a man of a symmetrical character, faithful and true in the various relations of life, as an upright, high-minded and honorable gent., and particularly as the constant friend and benefactor of H., that he commands our respect, and merits a grateful remembrance. Years after he came upon the stage, dwellings in H. were no thicker than farms. On the main street from the E. to the W. Depot, a distance of 3 m., there were only 13 houses (3 once painted), 3 blacksmith and 2 wheelwright shops, and one for mending ploughs, employing 12 or 14 hands a part of the time. No shoe-shop, big as a Hessian tobacco box, was there to be seen. One tavern, one store, and his little corn-mill, accommodated the farmers. The ancient forge and trip-hammer had completed their dotage; the soil was exhausted and science had found no remedy. All was stagnation. The young and enterprising were removing, never to return. But he did not despair. He rebuilt his mill; enlarged his shop; erected a tannery and established a point of business, such as had not before existed in the town, creating at the same time in an honorable way, much of the capital invested. He saw that H. might be redeemed and built up by manufactures. But prejudices against them were universal, and in instances, violent. These were to be overcome. He collected information, conversed with his neighbors, and at length exhibited a feasible plan of a mill. He did not wish to furnish operatives or secure the agency; and he could make investments elsewhere with equal or better prospects of gain. But this would give no impulse to his beloved H. He therefore formed a company of his townsmen, who erected the first mill in H., about 1814. Embarrassed as the enterprise became by a change of times, still it gave an impulse in the right direction that never stopped. Attraction, aided by his tact and powers of persuasion, now began to overcome repulsion. Tradesmen and mechanics were induced to stop; and that more might be accommodated as well as private interest advanced, he and his brother, Mr. James Cutler, purchased the farm S. of the Common, which Judge Sewell, in his penitence for sending witches to the gallows, gave H. for her first minister. This they divided into house lots, disposing of some and building upon others. And now H. had a centre; soon a village, with room for every branch of business: so that young men who had sought it in vain at S. for shoe manufactures, found here a welcome and accommodations. One accession brought another, and Esq. C. lived to see the village of which he was a father, attain the size of a borough. Yet he did not accomplish all. Others of equal capital and enterprise may have done more ;* still, but for his foresight, tact and enterprise, they had done the same somewhere else, and H. might have remained like her mother to this day, without a village or any centre of business. For 100 ys. after the incorporation of H. the township was of an ugly and inconvenient form, extending from Bellingham corner nearly to Framingham Depot, yet less than 1 m. wide in the centre, comparable to a crooked-necked squash, growing to the N. bank of Charles R., or to a pair of saddle-bags hanging on the N. W. corner of Medway, with the N. E. bag stuffed and the S. W. empty. Every attempt to effect an exchange of territory with Med. had failed. But as soon as he was placed in the legislature his influence vanquished opposition, the needed exchange was effected, my birth-place transferred to another town and Co., and all the inhabitants of H. relieved from living in deformity.

To him the parish of H., now the orthodox soc., are vastly indebted. 30 years ago, in the vacancy of the parish, two parties arose under the leadership of men known to me as of opposite religious feelings and views, under one of whom there was every prospect of the introduction of a preacher of the liberal school; and of the ultimate and permanent division of the Parish. Such a result Esquire C. could have hastened, and secured a minister with views more congenial with his own, and probably, a large majority of the parish. But this would have been inconsistent with his regard for the peace and prosperity of H. He stood aloof and watched; and when the morning of the very first day for action dawned, he was in motion; and before resting he got the leaders and chief members of both parties committed for the settlement of the best orthodox candidate in the field, concealing, as he went, from each the pledges obtained from the other. Notices were soon posted, and the parish assembled with all legal speed (for opposition of course), and the vote early called; when lo! each party was surprised and diverted to learn that the other had blundered into a unanimous vote for Josephus Wheaton for minister. Hostilities now ceased for want of excuse for carrying on the war. This wise and magnanimous act, perfectly consistent with liberal professions, has, in my view, saved a generation from the curse of religious discord, and contributed to the perpetuity and extended enjoyment of privileges the most precious. Such were some of his services. Such and more was Elihu Cutler — a model citizen after whom many others pattern.

Rev. Timothy Dickenson, b. June 25, 1761, ord. at H. 1789, d. Jly. 6, 1813, at the height of his influence and usefulness, a model of ministerial dignity and consistency, and endowed with every Christian virtue.

"Mr. Dickinson was born of respectable and pious parents, at Amherst. The traits of character which, more than any other, marked the opening period of his existence, were the mildness and amiableness of his natural disposition. He was also noted in early childhood for a great fondness for literary pursuits. So that, 'although his constitution was naturally slender, and his health feeble and interrupted,' a very considerable portion of the hours, which were not employed in manual labor, were devoted to study. 'He lived with his parents, and labored upon a farm until sixteen years of age;' when, beholding his country engaged in a common and dubious struggle for independence, the deep interest excited in his bosom for her welfare roused his youthful ardor, and would not suffer him to be dissuaded from espousing her cause, and enlisting, as a private soldier, in the militia. In this capacity he continued to serve in the army about fifteen months. Upon leaving this post of suffering and danger, his health having been enfeebled by the exposures and hardships to which he was unaccustomed, he commenced fitting for College, under the tuition of the Rev. Dr. Dwight, late President of Yale College, who was then engaged in the instruction of a private school at Northampton. 'It is believed, on good authority, that Mr. Dickinson was principally induced to seek a liberal education in consequence of his witnessing so much depravity and wickedness in the army. This depravity and licentiousness which he found to be more or less acted out by mankind generally, he felt determined to combat; and that he might do it the more effectually, he sought the aid of a public education.' Having completed the preparatory course of study, he was admitted at the age of about eighteen, a member of Dartmouth College. During the first year of his collegiate life, the Institution and vicinity were visited with a 'special and remarkable revival of religion,' in which he became a hopeful subject of renewing grace; and subsequently made a public profession of the religion of the gospel. 'While at College, Mr. Dickinson was diligent and persevering in the prosecution of his studies; appeared to advantage at recitations and all the literary exhibitions of his class; and acquired the reputation of a correct, classical scholar.' He grad. in 1785; and was immediately after appointed Preceptor of Moore's Charity School, connected with the College. In the instruction of this school, he continued one year; when, for the more advantageous prosecution of his theological studies, he put himself under the private instruction of the Rev. Dr. Tappan, then minister of Newbury, Mass. — and afterwards Professor of Divinity in Harvard University. Previous to his settlement in this place, he preached at Exeter and Hopkinton in N. H., and in several vacant parishes in the northern part of this State. 'As a preacher,' says the discriminating Dr. Emmons in his funeral Sermon, 'he was plain, faithful, and affectionate. And as he firmly believed in those doctrines, which are usually denominated the doctrines of grace, he felt it his duty often, plainly and affectionately to state and illustrate them. The native and total depravity of sinners; the necessity of regeneration by the special operations of the Holy Spirit; the doctrine of personal election; the necessity of disinterested and holy affections towards God and men, in order to become interested in the atonement of the Saviour; the Deity of Christ, and the doctrine of a Trinity of persons in the Godhead, together with those doctrines, which naturally grow out of the preceding, are sentiments which he firmly believed, and which he considered as of the greatest importance. No considerations of popularity or self-interest could deter him from a plain and frequent exhibition of those truths which are so offensive to the carnal mind.' 'He was very apparently,' is the language of Dr. Emmons, a man of God, who exhibited the reality and beauty of religion in his private conversation, as well as in his more public and official conduct. He gave convincing evidence, that he loved those doctrines which he taught to others, and taught them in love to their souls. The whole tenor of his preaching plainly indicated, that he sought to please God, rather than men; for he did not shun to exhibit the most essential, the most humiliating, and the most heart-searching truths, in terms too plain for any to misunderstand. He had a clear, strong, and pleasant voice, which enabled him to speak with peculiar propriety and energy; and as he aimed to draw the attention of his hearers to his subject, rather than to himself, so he seldom failed of deeply impressing their hearts and consciences. He loved to converse upon religious subjects, and greatly excelled in private discourses with his people. He was among the most zealous ministers and Christians to spread the gospel, and to extend the kingdom of Christ through the world.*

"Mr. Dickinson's ministry was attended with some peculiar and great trials. At one period of it, there was much uneasiness, animosity, and disturbance, which continued, in a greater or less degree, through several years; so that the parish twice refused to grant his salary. But in each of these instances the people were wise enough to discover their mistake, and rescind their votes. The origin and occasion of the difficulties which existed do not appear from any record either of the town, or the Church; but are commonly understood to be found in the offensiveness of the doctrines upon which he insisted.† They, however, resulted in the calling of a Council by the Church, June 4th, 1804; which advised to the dissolution of the pastoral connection subsisting between him and the people of his charge, in the August following, should not an amicable adjustment of difficulties previously take place‡. Happily those difficulties were so far settled, that, on the 25th of the same month in which the Council sat, the parish passed a resolution in favor of the continuance of the connection. For about nine years subsequently, Mr. Dickinson continued, in peace and quietness, to exercise the office of a gospel minister in H., and, after a lingering and painful sickness, calmly and peacefully expired." [Fitch's Cent. Ser.]

James Dix, by w. Mary, had at H., Benj. Alexr., Oct. 30, 1790.

* Mr. Dickinson was one of the most zealous founders of the Massachusetts Missionary Society; was repeatedly elected a member of its Board of Trustees; and in 1811 delivered its Anniversary Sermon, which was published.

† If Mr. D. had only springled robin-shot in the aisles, instead of throwing bombs at the pews, he would have been to the opposition unexceptionable. But that he was right, and they wrong, was evident from confessions to him when on his death-bed.

‡ The question submitted to the Council was simply, "In existing circumstances, is it duty, that my pastoral relation to this Church should be continued?" It is, perhaps, due to the character of Mr. Dickinson, that the following paragraph, extracted from its declared result, should be here inserted. "The Council are deeply affected with the calamitous situation of this Church, and the divisions which subsist in this town. They tenderly reflect on the trying situation in which the Pastor, a brother honored in the Churches, and affectionately respected by themselves, is placed. The merits of the Controversy have not been submitted to this Council. They, therefore, will not undertake to approve or condemn; but recommend it, with great solicitude for the present comfort, and highest spiritual interests of the Pastor, the Church, and the People, that they respectively cultivate that unoffending and conciliating spirit; that attachment to truth and virtue; and that love to one another, which reason so powerfully dictates; and the gospel, under so many motives, enjoins."

Oliver Everett, A. M. and M. D., b. at Dedh., a lineal descendant of Richard Evered, of D., 1637, grad. 1821 at Brown Univ., and subsequently received M. D. at Dart. Col. He s. in S. ab. 1824, where he spent his days, and d. aged ab. 50, worn out by professional labors. To do any justice to his character as a man, a citizen, or a physician, would exceed my ability and limits. Suffice it to say, his worth became ineffaceably stamped upon the minds and hearts of the entire community, and no man of his generation ever fell in S. whose death was so universally and deeply lamented. His character seems to call for a more extended obituary than has appeared; and I cannot but hope that his successor, or some cotemporary practitioner, will supply it for embodiment with the history of the physicians of Midd. Co. It is due to merit, and might be a valuable legacy to medical students, at least in guarding them against self sacrifice, and pointing out the way to an honorable and enduring reputation. He m. 17. 28. Timothy Fisk, A. M., M. D., and M. M. S. S., grad. 1801, at H. U., subsequently studied medicine, s. in his native town, and was her first regularly educated physician. His course from the first was marked with that modesty and gentlemanly bearing which cultivation insures and which are equally removed from the swaggering pretensions of empiricism and the low and vile arts of rude and jealous rivalry. His skill was soon appreciated and his conduct rewarded in a wide practice. This he retained, to the great advantage of the public, for a series of years, seldom attained by a laborious physician. He has long held a high reputation abroad; shared largely in the confidence of the faculty ; ever maintained the strictest regard for moral virtue ; and he cannot fail of being long remembered as the beloved physician. He has taken a deep interest in all the benevolent enterprises of his time, is an Honorary member of the Am. Board of C. for F. Missions ; a life member of the A. Bible Society ; do. of the Home Miss. Soc. ; do. of the Am. For. and Chr. Union ; and a welcome communicant in the Orthodox Congl. Chh. He has sons, I. Frederick, II. Ferdinand.

Rev. James Fitch<sup>1</sup>, b. Dec. 24. 1622, at Borking, Essex Co, England, came to New Eng., 1638, with his brother Tho., having already made good proficiency in the acquisition of Latin and Greek. He spent 7 years after his arrival under the tuition of Rev. Messrs. Hooker & Stone, in preparing for the ministry. He d. at Lebanon, Nov., 1702. His w. was Abigail Whitfield, dg. of Rev. Henry W., of Guilford, by whom he had James Fitch<sup>2</sup>, b. Aug., 1649, d. 1727, who s. at Norwich and was one of the brave defenders of the colonies in 1675-6 ; appointed Capt. in 1680, and Maj. in 1686 ; chosen a member of the Council of Con., 1683, and continued to be elected until 1708. He was, in 1690, among the first planters of Canterbury ; one of the first donors of Yale Col., giving in 1701, 637 acres in Killingly, and all the glass and nails for the Col. edifice. He had much influence in procuring her charter. [Hinman.] He m. for a 2d wife Alice (Bradford) Adams, May, 1686, the wid. of Rev. Wm. A., 2d minister of Dedh., and dg. of Maj. Wm. Bradford, by wife Alice Richards, and grd. dau. of Gov. Bradford, by w. Alice Southworth, by whom he had only Jabez,<sup>3</sup> b. 1703. Jabez s. at Canterbury, m. Lydia Gale, 1722, held the offices of Capt., Col., Esq., and Judge of Probate, was a man of superior talents, devoted piety, and extensive influence. He d. 1784, aged 81. He was the father of Col. Jabez,<sup>4</sup> b. May 23, 1729, at Newent, Ct., and d. at Sheldon, Vt., Dec. 19, 1806. He m. Lydia Huntington, Aug. 22, 1754, dau. of Dea. Ebenezer H., of Norwich, Ct. He was a physician of eminence, had many med. students ; and was the father of

- I. Jabez,<sup>5</sup> who was 12 years U. S. Marshall for Dis. of Vt. ;
- II. Chauncey,<sup>5</sup> M. D., the father of Dr. S. S. Fitch, of New York ;
- G. 3. Ebenezer,<sup>5</sup> D. D., b. Sep. 26, 1756, at Canterbury, d. Mar. 31, 1833 ; and of five daus.,<sup>5</sup> who m. Professional men of Col. education.

3. 6. Ebenezer,<sup>5</sup> D. D., grad. at Yale Col., 1777, in which instit. he was five years a tutor under the presidency of the learned Dr. Stiles. In 1793, having previously visited Europe, he was inaugurated the first Pres. of Williams Col., and officiated until 1815. In 1800 he recd. D. D. from Harv. Univ.

<sup>6</sup> Dr. Fitch possessed a mind of a high order ; and for uniformity of deportment, consistency of character, ardor of piety, kindness of feeling, diligence and fidelity in discharging the various duties to which he was called, had but few superiors." [Rev. C. Durfee.] Subsequently to his resignation of the presidency of W. Col., he was 12 years pastor of the Congl. Chh. at W. Bloomfield, N. Y., where he became one of the projectors, founders and patrons of Auburne Theo. Sem., and where his ashes repose without any such mark of respect as the gratitude of the Trustees and alumni of W. Col. must prompt them ere long to show. He m. Mary (Backus) Coggswell, dg. of Ebenezer B., of Windham, a lady distinguished for intelligence, amiability and piety, who d. at Cleaveland, O., Nov. 21, 1834. They had, besides other children, Charles Fitch,<sup>6</sup> Rev., A. M., b. June 26, 1799.

Rev. Charles Fitch entered Williams Col. at the age of 15, grad in 1819, entered the Theo. Sem. at Princeton, the same year, where he grad. 1821, having previously received licensure from the Presbytery of N. Bruns., before the age of 21. The first of his labors were in the then frontier and sparsely settled Cos. of Erie and Catteraugus, N. Y., in the employ of the Young Men's Miss. Soc., New York. Aug. 22, 1822, he was ordained and installed by Cooperstown Presbytery over the Presb. Chh., of Cherry Valley, formerly the charge of Rev. Dr. Nott, and then embracing men of high attainments and standing, from whom no call could have been obtained for any young man of common address, acquirements or promise. On this occasion, Rev. John Smith, of C., preached, and his venerable father gave the charge; and the solemnities must have reminded more than one of the consecration of Cotton Mather, or that of Jona. Mayhew, receiving the charge and mantle of his apostolic father. Here he continued for a longer period than is common in N. Y. In 1825 he obtained a dismission, and being urged by several distinguished clergymen from Mass., to accept letters of introduction to a vacant congregation in one of the larger towns in this state, he came to Boston. Here, being informed that the vacancy was filled, he engaged as city missionary, and supplied, for some weeks, the pulpit of Charter st. Chapel. In the mean time he was invited to H., where he was installed, Jan., 1826, Rev. Dr. Wisner, of Boston, preaching on the occasion. Here he continued 6 years, laboring with much fidelity; and though no general revival of religion ensued, yet for the period, his labors seemed to have been blessed beyond those of any of his predecessors, and long will he be held here in grateful remembrance. While at H. he published a centennial discourse from which copious extracts have been taken in the preparation of this work.

In 1832 he resigned his charge in H.; became a stated supply for the two years ensuing, to the Presb. Chh. at Batavia, N. Y. In 1834 he removed to Buffalo, opened a High School, but was, with his family, visited the next year, by that dreadful malady, the ophthalmia. In 1837, having but partially recovered, and hoping that a change of climate might prove remedial, he removed to Trenton, N. J., to assist Mr. James Hamilton in T. Academy. In 1838 he removed to Columbus, O., and for the two following years performed the duties of chaplain in the Ohio Penitentiary. In 1840 he was appointed travelling agent for the American Bible Society; and so successful were his labors that he was induced to continue them for nearly 8 years, during which he travelled in Oh., Kt., and Ind., as nearly as could be calculated, a distance of once and a half the circumference of the globe, his family during the time remaining at C., and Rising Sun, Ind. In 1850 he s. at Mt. Vernon, Ind., and was installed by the Presbytery of Vincennes, Ap. 14, '51, as the first pastor of the Presbyterian Chh. in that place where he now resides. The many changes through which Mr. F. has passed imply no want of stability of purpose or lack of any ministerial qualification. They are the natural fruits of the spirit of the age, and the character and condition of the chhs. His history is that of a large proportion of the most talented and devoted ministers in the Middle and Western States. He m., May 15, 1822, Sarah Hamilton, dg. of J. H., of Princeton, a gent.

of Scotch descent, who was Lt. and Commissary in the army of the Revolution, an Elder in the Presb. Chh., and a prominent citizen of P. It is related on good authority that while the army was quartered at P., Lt. H. and lady opened their house for week-day worship; during which, on their door-steps, General Washington and lady were known to have seated themselves as listeners, unwilling to disturb the assembled congregation by taking higher seats. Mrs. F. had 3 sisters, m. to clergymen, and 1 to a lawyer, and two brothers, both graduates of N. H., one of whom was Prof. of Math. and Nat. Phil. in Nash. Univ., Tenn, where he and three of her sisters d. with cholera, in June, 1849. Mr. F. had

Rev. Daniel Gookin, s. of Maj. Gen. G., of Cambdg., grad. 1669, at H. Col. red. A. M., 1673; was chosen fellow of H. C., '73, became assistant to the apostle Elliot, in the Indian Mission at Natick, who, in a letter to Hon. Robert Boyle, dated Apl. 22, 1684, says of him, "He is a pious and learned young man, about thirty-three years old, hath been eight years a fellow of the College; he hath taught and trained up two classes of young scholars unto their commencement; he is a man, whose abilities are above exception, though not above envy. His father, with his inclination, advised him to Sherborn.

"Mr. Gooking holdeth a lecture in Natick Meeting-house once a month, which many English, especially of Sherborn, do frequent. He first preaches in English to the English audience, and then the same matter is delivered to the Indians, by an interpreter, whom, with much pains, Mr. Gooking had fore-prepared."

In April, 1681, "The inhabitants of Sherborn being desirous (if God permit) to have one amongst us, to break the bread of life to us and ours, and, especially, the Rev. Mr. Daniel Gooking," applied to him "to be the settled minister of Sherborn." He was not ordained until March 26, 1685.

Judge Sewall "went to ye Gathering of ye chh., at Sherborn, and ordaining Mr. Daniel Gooking their Pastor." He says "but six brethren — and 3 of the names Mors. — Mr. Wilson, [of Medfield,] Mr. Adams, [of Dedh.,] and Mr. Nathaniel Gooking, of Cambridge, managed the work." Mr. Nathl. Gooking ye younger, introduced ye Elder, a happy type of ye calling of ye Jews.

Mr. Torrey [Weym.], Brinsmade [Dorchester], Fisk [Braintree], Esterbrooks [Lexington], Man [Wrenth.], Moody [Bos.], Hubbard (alias Hobart,) Neh. [Newton], Sherman [Watertown], Woodrop, or Woodruff, [Lancaster], Rawson [Mend.], Wilson, jr., [Medfield]—these, and Fellows of the College. Only Major Gen., and self, of the Magistrates.

Mr. G. made his will, June 12, 1706, and d. Jan. 8, 1717-18, in his 68th yr.

The following obituary, pr. fr. his colleague (Mr. Baker), dated Jan. 9, 1717-18, is taken from the Boston News Letter:—

"The Rev. Mr. Daniel Gooking, the first pastor of this Church, died yesterday, in the 68th year of his age. He was the eldest son of Honorable Daniel Gooking, Esq., a good scholar and solid Divine; was many years a fellow of Harvard College, and a Tutor. From his ordination, he continued our minister about 34 years, being diligent in his study, tender of his flock, and exemplary in his life. The vicinity of Natick gave him the opportunity of preaching lectures to the Indians there, and, although by great pain and indisposition of body, he was taken off from his work, for some considerable time, (about 7 years), he died lamented."

He m. Elizabeth Quincey; and 2d, Bethiah Collicut, Jly. 21, 1692.

Chh. in Waltham, of which he is to be regarded as the father. In Nov., 1837, he was dismissed from this charge and installed over the 1st Chh. in his native town. After a successful ministry here of 13 ys., he was appointed secretary of the Cong'l Board of Publication, in the establishment of which he had been a prominent and efficient agent. This organization is wisely calculated to preserve the ancient landmarks of the churches, and promote the "faith once delivered to the saints." From this station, Mr. H., through the publications of the Board, is now speaking to the churches, not only in America, but in foreign lands, and will do so to coming generations. To him has been granted the privilege of consecrating children of his household to public service in that of the Lord. May he abide to reap an abundant reward from a knowledge of their usefulness. He m. Eliza Wheeler, dg. of Capt. Lewis and Betsey (Richardson) W. of Med., and had

HOLBROOK.

The name of Holbrooke is ancient and distinguished ; and in the English world it has long since attained a wide range. It does not however occur in Doom's Book or Rheimer's Fœdera, yet as early as the reign of Richard II, one of the name was advanced to the order of Knighthood, and "a chev. between three martlets assigned as his coat of arms. Others with equal claims to distinction, or averse to the monopoly, either attained to the same honor or assumed the badge of having done so : for in books of Heraldry I find the name of Holbrooke distinguished by nine other coats of arms, viz., Holbroake Gu. a chev. betw. ten crosses crosslet gu. — Holbrokes. Or. a fess. between six crosslets, gu. — Holbrook (Suffolk) Ar. a chev., betw. ten crosses crosslet, gu. — Holbrooke, the same arms. Crest — A lion pass. guard, tail extended ppr.—Holbrook. Or a chev. between ten crosses crosslet gu.—Holbrooke (Newington, Co. Kent). Az. a cross, or fretty of the first between four mullets of the second.—Holbrooke (Suffolk) Or. a chev. gu., surmounted with a cross formêe fitchêe at the foot of the second. Crest—A lion's head erased, charged with a chev. or, as in the arms.—Holbrooke (Suffolk) Or, crusily gu. a bend of the second.—Holbrooke (Suffolk) Ar. a chev. between three crosses crosslet gu." These badges of vanity, so little esteemed by the Puritans and their republican descendants, have their use in a historical point of view, as indicating the original and early seats of the race, and may guide some future explorer of the ancestry of our Holbrooks in the mother country where they must have been men of character and consideration. Of the origin of the name I find nothing. Camden does not mention it, though common in his day. This omission may be accounted for, if it was so obviously of local origin as to be included with names of this class : and imagination suggests that in a former age of belief in holy waters, there was some Holy Brooke from which the name was borrowed, the tradition of which might have lingered in his day.* But I would not originate a tradition. Too long have the Holbrooks followed this jack-o'-lantern, believing, like other races, in their descent from three brothers, a story suggested, it has been thought, by nothing better, if so good, than the following analogy. Shem, Ham, and Japheth were religious men, so were our ancestors ; they came from an old world to a new one, and came by water, so did our fathers ; there was just three of them that came, from whom the human race have descended ; therefore there was the sacred orthodox number of three from Old to New Eng., from whom each race of a common name have sprung. But the stale tradition that formerly concealed ignorance now exposes it ; and the Holbrooks, better posted than some other races, may now correct legends of their ancestry ; and on truthful history found their claim to a more respectable origin than false tradition has attempted to give.

Many Holbrooks were early in New Eng. Hitherto all attempts to trace and reduce them to one family have resulted in despair, with the exception of those of the lamented Wm. T. Harris, A. M. He had thoroughly mastered the 5 first generations, of one branch, while I, without knowing it, was attempting the same ; and having, through the kindness of his bereaved father, the Librarian of Har. Univ., been favored with the perusal of his MSS., I have become confirmed in the correctness of my arrangement, and added names and references which his sharper eye and more thorough hand had detected and recorded. Thanks to his memory. He was of the third generation of the same family to whom I am indebted for kindred help.

The other families of the name of Holbrook, not descended from Tho., and collected from what were remote parts of New Eng., I have, at the end of eight years of frequent investigation, succeeded, in my own view more from circumstantial than documentary evidence, in reducing to the descendents of a common father, whose name was probably John, and he the brother and companion of Tho. No date of their embarkation or arrival is presumed to exist. The name first occurs at Weymouth, in 1640, and under circumstances showing that they could not then have been new comers. The settlement of Weymouth was attempted in 1622; and in 1624 a colony of substantial settlers arrived from Weymouth in Dorsetshire, and gave name to the place, and in 1635 another company with a minister, and no doubt from the same place. With one of the latter companies probably came Tho. and John Holbrook, and more likely with the former. If so, Tho. must then have had one or two children; and if with the latter, they might have had an embarrassing number. They were probably from Weymouth, 8 miles from Dorchester, from whence came the planters of our Dorchester; and not remote from these towns was a place, "a small farm," long afterward and perhaps still called "Holbrook." Who of the race will undertake investigations in that quarter, or pledge to a correspondent the means of his doing so?

Thomas Holbrooke, and no doubt John, settled in that part of Weymouth called Old Spain. It was chosen, for its harbor and peninsular form, for confining their cattle. As early as 1643 the stock of the planters had so increased as to render a removal necessary. Seekonk Prairie had been discovered, and it was resolved that as many as chose might remove, and that if a majority were in favor of removing, Mr. Newman their minister should attend them. Thomas and John Holbrook appeared in the affirmative, and in order "that the land of Rehoboth might be divided according to person and estate," each of them gave in their property at precisely £186. This indicates that they were partners. Were they Thomas and John, sen's, or jun's? The former might be presumed if there was not so much evidence that the Holbrooks of the second generation began life in good circumstances, showing that their fathers for their day must have been rich. Home lots at Rehoboth were assigned them 31, (4), 1644. But as John, jun.'s, wife died, leaving one or two children, Jan. 24, 1643-4, pr. after they had pledged themselves to remove and given in their property; and as Thomas, jun., was then young and unmarried, they had reasons, which Thomas and John, sen's, might not have had, for altering their purposes and forfeiting these lots, as they did 10 (11), 1644, by not taking possession. The records of Weym. chh. perished in 1644, with the removal of Mr. Newman; and while subsequent records refer to Thomas, sen., as one of the principal inhabitants, they make no mention of his brother John. Still circumstances, not easily resisted, point to a brother probably of that name, as an early inhabitant of W., and the father of a numerous family, who might have died before 1644. I have, therefore, in these sheets arranged the New Eng. Holbrooks as the descendants of two brothers,

3. 1. Thomas Holbrooke.<sup>1</sup> (See Part I.)

PART I.

1. 3. Tho. Holbrooke,<sup>1</sup> was advanced in years when the records of W. began and then had talented sons to render public service.

In 1641, immediately after the earliest preserved records begin, he was chosen the second member of a board of selectmen called townsmen, and served as such in 1645, '46, '51, '52, '54, having his brother or eldest son, John, after '47, associated with him for a portion of the time. As a citizen of standing and long acquainted with the country, the Gen. Court in 1649 appointed him the first member of a committee to lay out a county highway from Weym. to Dorchester. The following is a copy verbatim ad literatim of his will from Suffolk Prob.

In the name of God, Amen.

Anno Domino, Dec. 31, 1668, Thomas Holbrook, of Weymouth, in New England, being sick and weak in body, but of good and perfect memory, thanks be to the Lord, and minding the uncertain estate of this transitory life, and desiring to settle that estate that God hath blessed me with all, do make this my last will and testament in manner and form following, committing my soul to Almighty God through Christ my Saviour and Redeemer, and my body to decent burial, and for the settling of my temporal estate I do order, give and dispose the same in manner and form following. That is to say, first, I will that my debts and funeral expenses be truly paid out of my estate.

Item, I give and bequeathe unto Jane, my beloved wife, during her life, my whole estate, of what quality and quantity soever the same be, at her dispose for her necessary and comfortable maintenance, and do request my son John Holbrooke and my son Wm. Holbrooke, and my son Tho. Holbrooke to be helpful to my wife in assisting of her in what she may have occasion to dispose of for her subsistence and comfortable maintenance during her life, and give their mother the best advice, as she is ancient and weak of body, suitable to her necessity without being burthensome to any.

Item, I give and bequeathe unto my endeared children all my estate, of whatever quality and quantity soever the same shall be, that shall remain at my wife Jane's decease, there being six of them, three sons and three daughters, to be equally divided between them, always provided that my eldest son, John Holbrooke, shall have a double portion, and the rest of my estate to be equally divided, viz., unto my son, Tho. Holbrook, my son Wm. Holbrook, unto my daughter Anne Rennolds, unto my daughter Elizabeth Hatch, and unto my daughter Jane Drake, to be equally divided amongst them as near as may be; and in case any or either of my sons or daughters should decease before my wife Jane, then the share of the deceased to remain to their respective children and my grandchildren.

Item, I give unto my grandchild John Holbrooke the eldest, my sword.

Item, I give unto my grandchild Peter Holbrooke my gun and my gray mare colt. Item, I give unto my grandchild Wm. Holbrook my musket. Item, I give and bequeathe unto all my grandchildren that shall be living at my wife Jane's decease, two shillings apiece. Item, I do hereby make and ordain my loving wife, the above said Jane Holbrooke, executrix during her life, and at her decease, I do appoint, make and ordain executor of this my last will and testament, my loving son John Holbrooke, whom I do order and entreat to perform this my will, and pay the legacies out of my whole estate of what shall remain at my wife's decease.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above written, as on the other side.

The mark of THOMAS [T. H.] HOLBROOKE.

Published, signed and sealed in presence of

Rebecca R. R. Burrell,
Wm. Chase.

Whereas Peter Holbrooke my grandchild hath been as a servant, and hath been helpful to me Tho. Holbrooke and my wife Jane in our old age, for the space of about eight years before the date of these presents, and still remains with us as a dutiful child, I, Tho. Holbrooke, senr., this 31st of Dec., 1673, do will and bequeathe unto my beloved grandchild Peter Holbrooke, his heirs and assignees, my dwelling house and about three acres of orchard and arable land, situate and being in Weymouth, bounded with Edward Kingman's land, and the River Northerly and Easterly, and the highway Southerly, and the River Westerly, or the creek descending from the River, as the said Peter Holbrooke's proper estate of inheritance. To have and to hold after the decease of me, Tho. Holbrooke and Jane my wife, and not before. And I, Tho. Holbrooke, do hereby declare not to alter in any particular form my aforesaid will dated this day was five years since, but in this respect as aforewritten concerning my beloved son and grandchild, Peter Holbrooke, which accordingly I do desire my son John Holbrooke as Executor in all points to fulfil. Dated Dec. 31, 1673. Published, signed and sealed in the presence of Tho. White, Wm. Chase. T. H.

CHAPTER I.

4. 10. John,<sup>2</sup> Capt., was a man of much consideration in his day, and in him the the public reposed great confidence. His independence, courage, enterprise and wealth are abundantly proved by records. He resided at Old Spain, in Weymouth, and seems to have inherited the homestead. Having previously been received to the church, he in 1640 took the freeman's oath. In 1648 he first served as selectman. In 1651 he represented W. in the Gen. Court, and was of the minority of 13, who May 7 of that year refused their assent to the book of ecclesiastical discipline, made out by a committee and the elders of the churches. He was also representative in 1664, '69, '71, '72, '73. In 1668, he with two associates bought a tract of land 9 miles long and  $\frac{3}{4}$  m. wide, situated on the road between Weymouth and Middleboro'. In 1678, he purchased John Saffan's whole farm in Scituate, which he bought of John Hoar, then of Concord. He loaned money to John Williams, of Boston, (the same who had witnessed a deed for his reputed cousin John Holbrooke, of Roxb.), and large sums from time to time to other tradesmen and merchants in B., taking mortgages on houses, warehouses, &c. He was a great operator for those times, and so continued until the close of life. He sold a corn-mill in W., Jan. 20, 1698-9, the year he died. In the time of Philips' war he rendered signal service. He not only defended W., but with his company carried the war into the enemies country. On the 22d of June, 1676, he arrived at Concord, with 30 men from Norfolk, an extinct county, then embracing the settlements on Merrimack and Piscataqua Rivers, whom he had been sent to defend. As commander he drew pay for 24 men from the public treasury in June, Aug. and Sept. of that year; and £16 for his own services. He seems to have been much honored, and the early age for his time at which he was called to the public service, indicates the standing of his family.

Capt. John, m. 1st Sarah ———, who d. 14, (11) 1643; and 2d Elizabeth ———, who d. June 25, 1688, aged 64, [G. S.], and 3d wid. Sarah Loring, who survived him. He had

12. ii. Abiezer,<sup>3</sup> who d. um. 1671-2. His father made oath Jan. 29, 1672, to the appraisal of his estate at £40. His wardrobe must have been extravagant had he no property in reversion;
28. 13. iii. Samuel, housewright, b. prior to Jan. 24, 1644, d. Aug. or Sept. 1695, m. Lydia ———; iv. Hannah,<sup>3</sup> who m. ——— Pierce, and is no further reported; v. Lois,<sup>3</sup> a twin, b. 12, (3) 1658, probably m. ——— Nash;

WORSHIPFULL CAPT. HOLBROOKE'S WILL.

I, John Holbrook, of the Town of Weymouth, in New England, being weak of body, but of a competent understanding and memory, do make this my last Will and Testament, hereby revoking and annulling all former wills by me made. Firstly, committing my soul to God in hope of eternal salvation, through the merits of Christ, my Saviour, and my body to the earth to be decently buried at the discretion of my executors; and for my worldly estate I do will and dispose of as followeth, my just debts and funeral charges being paid.

Imprimis, I give and bequeathe to my beloved wife, Mary Holbrook, fifty pounds in money, to be at her disposing, provided she accept of it in full of all demands from my estate, otherwise my contract with her before marriage to be made good to her in every respect; and also, I give her ten pounds in money, provided she give five pounds thereof to her daughter, Loring.

I give and bequeathe unto my son, John Holbrook, all my housing and lands in the Township of Scituate, which I purchased of Mr. John Saffin, to be to the use and improvement of him, the said John Holbrook, for and during his natural life, and after his decease the moiety or one-half of the said houses and lands to be to the only proper use and improvement of his now wife Abigail, during the time she shall remain his widow, and no longer. The other half of the housing and land I give and bequeathe to the use and improvement of my grandson, John Holbrook, the son of my said son, John Holbrook; and, after the decease of my said son and the widowhood of his wife Abigail, I do give and bequeathe all the aforesaid housing and lands to my aforesaid grandson, John Holbrook, to have and to hold to him and his heirs forever; always provided, that when my said grandson shall come to possess and enjoy the whole of the said farm, that he shall well and truly pay forty pounds sterling in equal proportions to the six daughters of my said son, John Holbrook; and if any of them shall decease before they receive their part, then the said forty pounds to be paid equally to such as shall survive, viz., if any of them decease before marriage. I also give and bequeathe unto my son, John Holbrook, all my wearing apparel, and my best feather bed, my best rug and furnitures belonging to the said bed, and my silver tankard. Also, I give unto my granddaughter, Elizabeth, the wife of James Smith, five pounds sterling; also, I give unto my granddaughter, Abigail Porter, ten pounds sterling, to be paid by my executors within one year after my decease.

I give and bequeathe unto my daughter-in-law, Lydia Holbrook, widow of my son Samuel Holbrook, deceased, for the bringing up of the children of my said son, Samuel Holbrook, the use and improvement of the uplands adjoining to her dwelling house, in the neck called Kingman's Neck, and two acres of salt meadow that I purchased of John Kingman, and also my three acres of salt marsh near Burying Island, and also one-half of three acres of salt marsh in Braintree, lying on the E. side of the Creek, going to Spheer's Farm; also, 40 acres of land on the Westerly side of my land, near the Physical Spring in Weymouth; also, the one-half of my land in Brantry, adjoining to Weymouth line, called by the name of Execution Land; also, the one-half of my dwelling house in Boston. All which housing and lands as is before expressed, I give the use and improvement thereof, unto the said Lydia Holbrook, for her maintenance and the bringing up of the children of my said son, Samuel Holbrook, until my grandson, Joseph Holbrook, son of my said son, Samuel Holbrook, do, or might attain to the age of one-and-twenty years, and no longer. Also, I give unto my said daughter, Lydia Holbrook, £120, to be paid by my executors in one-fourth part of my household stuff and cattle, and the remainder in money, to make up the said £120: always provided, that the said Lydia Holbrook do pay to her three daughters, Elizabeth, Mary and Sarah Holbrook, daughters of said son, Samuel Holbrook, each of them £40 when they shall attain to the age of one-and-twenty years, or marriage, which shall first happen.

I give and bequeathe unto my grandsons, Samuel Holbrook, John Holbrook and Joseph Holbrook, sons of my said son, Samuel Holbrook, all the aforesaid lands and meadows in Weymouth and Brantrey, (left for the use and improvement of the said Lydia Holbrook aforesaid), to be divided into equal parts or shares to my said three grandsons, when my said grandson, Joseph Holbrook shall, or might attain to the age of one-and-twenty years. The said Samuel, John and Joseph, paying to their mother, Lydia Holbrook, each of them 30s. per annum, during her natural life.

I give and bequeathe unto my grandson, Abiah Holbrook, son of my son, Samuel Holbrook, the one-half or moiety of my house and land in Boston, when he shall attain to the age of one-and-twenty years, he paying to his mother, Lydia Holbrook, 30s. per annum, during her natural life. I also give and bequeathe unto my said daughter, Lydia Holbrook, half an acre of salt meadow, lying in the neck called Kingman's Neck, that was formerly my father, Thomas Holbrooke's, to her and her heirs forever. And further it is my will, that if my said daughter Lydia shall dispose of herself in marriage, that there shall be no strip nor waste made upon any of the aforesaid lands any more than what may be needful for her own firing or reparation of her own housing, or fencing of the said lands.

I give unto my son-in-law, Simon Whitmarsh, £20 in money.

I give unto my grandson, Simon Whitmarsh, £20 in money.

I give unto my granddaughter, Ruth Darby, £15 in money. I give unto my granddaughter, Mary Jackson, £15 in money.

All the aforesaid sums to be paid by my executors within one year after my decease.

I give to my daughter, Hannah Pierce, £50 in money, to be at her disposal as she shall see cause. Also, I give unto my grandson, Azarikum Pierce, £15 in money. Also, I give to Ephraim Pierce, jun., £15 in money. I give to my granddaughter, Rachel Peck, £5 in money. All which legacies are to be paid by my executors within one year after my decease, which shall be in part payment of a bond under the hands and seals of Ephraim Pierce and Azarikum Pierce, bearing date June 14, 1697.

I give unto my grandson, Joseph Nash, £50 in money. Also, I give unto my granddaughter, Elizabeth Nash, £25 in money, to be paid in one year after my decease.

I give unto my grandson, Benjamin Ludden, £10 in money. I give to my grandson, John Ludden, £10 in money. I give to my grandson, Joseph Ludden, £10 in money. All the aforesaid legacies given to the Luddens, to be paid by my executors, as they shall attain to the age of one-and-twenty years. I give unto my grandson, James Ludden, one acre of salt meadow, lying on the Eastern neck which was formerly his grandfather's, James Ludden's. I give unto my granddaughter, Eunice Ludden, £15, at her day of marriage, or when she shall attain the age of 18 years, which shall first happen.

I give unto my grandson, Joseph Edson, £15 in money. To my grandson, Josiah Edson, £15 in money. To my granddaughter, Experience Edson, £40 in money. All which legacies given to the Edsons, to be paid by my executors, as they shall attain to the age of one-and-twenty years, the sons, and the daughters, eighteen years.

I give and bequeathe unto my son, Ichabod, my dwelling house in Weymouth, that I now live in, with all the out-housing, orchard, and lands adjoining, by estimation between 40 and 50 acres, and also, all my salt marsh, lying in the neck, called Kingman's Neck, not before given; also, all the remainder of my lands near the Physical Spring, not before given, also, all the 4 acres of salt marsh lying on the East side of the back river, in Weymouth. All which houses and lands I give unto my son, Ichabod, during his natural life, and to his wife, Sarah, as long as she remains his widow; and after his decease and his wife's widow's estate, I give and bequeathe the said housing, orchard and lands adjoining, with the salt marsh, in the neck called Kingman's Neck, unto my grandson, Abiezer Holbrook, son of my son, Ichabod Holbrook, to him and his heirs forever.

I give unto my grandson, David Holbrook, son of my son, Ichabod Holbrook, the aforesaid salt meadow, lying Easterly of the back river, and the aforesaid land near the Physical Spring, after the decease of my son, Ichabod Holbrook and his wife's widow's estate, to be to him and his heirs forever. I give to my son, Ichabod, the one-half of my house and land in Boston, during his natural life, and to his wife as long as she shall remain his widow; and after his decease and his wife Sarah's widow's estate, I give the said half of the house and land at Boston, unto his son, Elisha Holbrook, and his heirs forever.

I give unto the reverend Mr. Samuel Torry, Pastor of the Church of Weymouth, £5 in money. And further it is my will, that if any of the grandchildren shall decease before they receive their portions, that then the portion of the deceased shall be equally divided amongst the surviving brothers and sisters of the same parents.

And it is my will, that if my Indian servant, Anthony, doth behave himself well, that he have his freedom in 12 years after my decease. And further it is my will, that if my wife see cause not to live in my house, she shall have what provisions she shall have occasion for her own use, for three months after my decease. All the remainder of my estate, whether real or personal, wheresoever it may be found that is not before given by this my last Will, I give and bequeathe unto my son, Ichabod Holbrook, and his heirs forever. And do hereby ordain and constitute my son, John Holbrook, and my son, Ichabod Holbrook, with Ephraim Hunt, Esq., to be my executors to this my last Will and Testament. And I do hereby give unto the said Ephraim Hunt, £5. And I do desire my loving friends, John Rogers and Joseph Dyer, and my brother, Stephen French, to be overseers to see to the performance of this my last Will and Testament, and do give to each of them 20s., in remembrance of my love.

In witness that this is my last Will and Testament, I do hereby make void and null all former wills by me made whatsoever, and do sign, seal, declare and publish this to be my last Will and Testament, the 12th day of July, 1699.

The mark S of John Holbrook, and a seal.

Signed, sealed and published, in presence of John Pratt, Ephm. Burrell, Joseph Drake. [Suff. Prob., XIV, III.]

191. 240. Joseph,<sup>8</sup> Col., has been so distinguished for a love of military adventure, that, had he lived in the 11th cent., he might have figured in the history of knight-errantry. He was at Lisbon during the Peninsular war; and in the war of 1812, served on board of privateers. He first settled in W.fleet. In 1822 he was commissioned Capt., and in 1825 Col. of militia; chosen representative of W. in 1830, '31, '32. In 1834 he removed to Bos., was received a member of the A. and H. Artillery Co., and became one of the original members of the Co. of National Lancers. During the R. I. troubles Col. H.'s sympathies were unfortunately so enlisted on the side of Dorr and confederates as to hurry him into their service; and he was among the 136 prisoners taken at Chepatchet, and the man first selected by the State's attorney for examinations, during the pendency of which he succeeded in making his escape. He now resides in Concord, which town he has represented in the Legislature of Mass. He m. Mary Rich, grd. dau. of Dea. Josiah R., of Truro, and had i. Maria,<sup>9</sup> Mar. 21, 1818, d. 1843, m. ## CHAPTER II.

5. Thomas Holbrooke,<sup>2</sup> resided at Scituate, Weymouth and Braintree : and was a man of enterprise and wealth. In 1653, 2d, 1mo., he bought of Abraham Harding, a farm at Braintree, of 53 acres, with house and barn ; and Nov. 11, 1662, a tract (supposed to be now in Q.) left by Wm. Tyng to his heirs, Tho. Brattle, Tho. Shepard, Robert Wharton and Samuel Bradstreet, husbands of Tyng's 4 daus. Mar. 1, 1663, he purchased more land in Braintree, and like his brothers became the owner of much real estate. He last resided where Minot Thayer now lives, in B. or Q. He m. Joanna —, who survived him. He made his will July 25, 1695, giving to his son Peter, "all that estate of lands and meadows in Mendon, which he formerly purchased of his brother Wm. He named also Tho. as his eldest, and no other son. It is possible that the Samuel, No. 6, of II. Part and Chapt. IV. was his son and had died previous to the father's making his will. A more careful examination of the settlement of his estate in 1696, may verify the conjecture and make certain what I have put down as doubtful. In his will he requests his cousin [nephew] Samuel Holbrooke, of Braintree, to see to the execution of it, but this nephew having in the meantime deceased, he, March 26, 1696, requested John Allen to act in his place with Nathaniel Wales, Capt. John witnessing it. Administration on his estate, Aug. 19, 1697, was granted his wid., Joanna, alias Jone, and his eldest son Tho. [Suff. Prob., xi. 325-7.] He had,
10. 4. i. Tho.,<sup>3</sup> who "d. the aged and was buried at B., Dec. 20, 1728," m. Deborah Damon, and 2d, Mary —, who "was buried, Feb. 14, 1737-8 ;"
 ii. Mary,<sup>3</sup> mentioned in her father's will, m. — Colburne ;
6. iii. John,<sup>3</sup> 15, (8), 1653, at B., d. Dec. 25, 1678, pr. unm. ;
18. 7. iv. Peter,<sup>3</sup> Dea., 6, (7), 1655, d. May 3, 1712, m. Alice —, and settled at Mendon ; v. Joanna,<sup>3</sup> 30, (8), 1656, m. pr. Uriah Clark ; vi. Susanna,<sup>3</sup> m. Andrew Willet, of Boston ; vii. Joseph,<sup>3</sup> 10, (12), 1660, d. young.
4. 10. Tho.,<sup>3</sup> was received to the 2d Church in B., Mar. 26, 1721, and appears to have inherited the homestead at B., m. Deborah Damon, 1666, and 2d, Mary —, who with her husband at B., 1694-5, consented to the marriage of their dau. Sarah, with Trustam Davis, of Hingham. He made his will, Oct. 16, 1728, which was proved, Jan. 9, '28-9, and administration granted his wid. Mary, who d. 1737-8. [Suff. Prob., 27, 8.]
13. 11. i. Tho.,<sup>4</sup> who d. prior to 1729, m. Mary — ;
 ii. Sarah,<sup>4</sup> who m. Trustam Davis.
11. 13. Tho.,<sup>4</sup> m. Mary —, who d. as his wid., and administration on her estate was granted, 1729, to her daughter Hannah. They had,
14. i. Tho.,<sup>5</sup> Mar. 13, 1692-3, m. 1718, Ruth Ford, of Weym., and had, Sirah,<sup>6</sup> bap., Oct. 23, 1738. Tho. Holbrook d. at B., intestate, and administration on his estate was granted to Col. Ebenr. Thayer, Hon., 1763, who came into possession of his place, now Esq. Minot Thayer's.
- ii. Mary,<sup>5</sup> Oct. 20, 1700, m. Seth Copeland, Dec. 12, 1722 ; iii. Hannah,<sup>5</sup>

Nov. 20, 1702, m. Nathaniel Belcher, Nov. 18, '31 ; iv. Susanna,<sup>5</sup> d. Feb. 23, 1712-13 ; v. Samuel,<sup>5</sup> b. Apl. 29, 1711, who pr. was buried, Sep. 2, '28 ; vi. Abigail,<sup>5</sup> b. Sep. 8, 1715. Records afford no further guide to any descendant of Tho.,<sup>2</sup> and the name in his line seems to have become extinct in B. and vicinity.

76. 270. Amos,<sup>6</sup> M. D., had his residence in Milton, at first in the village, afterwards upon Milton Hill, and was one of the most eminent medical men in the county during the whole period in which he lived. He had not the advantage of a collegiate education; but this infelicity was more than compensated by the experience he acquired in the service of his country as army surgeon, and by his subsequent residence for several months in France, where his time was profitably occupied in witnessing the practice of the hospitals, and thus adding to his stores of practical knowledge. Endowed by nature with an elegant person, he added to it a courteousness of address and suavity of manners which won him favor in whatever circle he moved. He was beloved as a physician and citizen, and sustained his popularity undiminished to the close of a long life. For many years he engrossed the principal medical business of Dorch. as well as Milton. A very just sketch of his character, by his friend and pupil, Dr. Thaddeus W. Harris, was published in the Boston Courier soon after his death, and thence copied into the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal of Jly. 13, 1842, and subsequently by Dr. Williams into his Medical Biography. ### CHAPTER III.

4. William Holbrooke,<sup>2</sup> Capt. and Dea., purchased in 1660, land in Conihasset, but did not, as Rev. Mr. Deane supposes, settle early upon it. He remained at Weym. In 1662, he was one of 10 citizens of W., who were accepted to allotments of land in Mendon, by the original grantee of that township, and was with associates to be settled there by 7mo., 1663. He there had a house lot of 40 acres assigned him, which with his interest in the common lands he must have secured by taking possession. This lot he sold, Dec. 2, 1679, to his nephew Peter; and other lands which he, as a proprietor of Mendon, drew, he sold to his brothers, John and Tho. In 1670, he bought of Moses Paine 40 acres E. of Mendon village. His propriety was inherited by his heirs, who as late as 1729 drew in his right 165 acres W. of Great River [Uxbridge]. He was, no doubt, an inhabitant of M. at the beginning of Philip's war, and must have shared with others in the burning of the town, and the perils of Indian warfare. In 1676, he is supposed to have retreated with his family to W., and to have afterwards been a steady resident at Scituate. He lived near the road from Cohasset to Scituate, " $\frac{1}{2}$ m. W. of Capt. Pierce's." [Dean's His. of Scit.] I have met with no account of any settlement of his estate. He m. Elizabeth —, who d. his wid. at Scit., 1701. He had,

PART II.

John? Holbrook,<sup>1</sup> is presumed to have been early of Weymouth, and the brother of Tho.,<sup>1</sup> of W. [see p. 108], and the father of the following children, whom numerous circumstances indicate to have been brothers. If he was not one of the two, he had either deceased prior to the declining of a Tho. and John Holbrook to remove to Rehoboth, in 1644, or removed with his sons to Dorchester, now Milton, or perhaps to the N. part of Stoughton, where the necessity for a removal would have been answered in a wide range for their cattle, and in wet prairies for hay.

8. 2. I. Tho.,<sup>2</sup> b. pr. ab. 1627, at Wey., d. Ap. 11, 1705, r. Dorch., 1645--'52, and Sherborn, 1652—1705. [See Ch I.]

II. Richard,<sup>2</sup> who with Wm. Daniel, of Dorch., took the freeman's oath, May 10, 1648, pr. removed to Huntington, Long Island, [Farmer.] He seems to have been induced to purchase a house lot at Sherborn, where he was rated 8½d. in 1686, but never r. there.

III. Margaret,<sup>2</sup> who m., as his 2d w., in 1656, Nicholas Rocket, of Medfield, neighbor to Tho. Holbrook,<sup>2</sup> then of Bogistow, afterwards Sherborn, was pr. the sis. of Tho.,<sup>2</sup> or his sis.-in-law, the wid. of his late brother Nathaniel.<sup>2</sup>

IV. John,<sup>2</sup> a tanner, was of Roxb., 1667, and of Dorchr., 1671, d. at Roxb., Dec. 25, 1678, m. Elizabeth —, who by her 2d hus., had her last child, Jan. 16, 1682--3. He also became the owner of a house lot at Sherborn where he or his estate was also rated 8½d, 1686. He never r. at S. [See Ch. II.]

V. Daniel,<sup>2</sup> "Brother of John, of Roxb.," d. 1673, m. Miriam —, r. Ded., Roxb., Dorchr. [See Ch. III.]

VI.? Samuel,<sup>2</sup> senr., of W., m. Mary —, named a dau. Hopestill, as if in affectionate remembrance of a deceased dau. of his supposed brother Tho.,<sup>2</sup> of Sherborn, who was unm. in 1696. According to Judge Mitchell's His. of Bridgewater, Samuel, "late of Weym.," d. about 1696, leaving 7 children and three daugs. married. He left no son, grd. son or nephew bearing his name; but the first grandchild of Tho.,<sup>2</sup> of Sherborn, b. after his death, and whose name, according to almost invariable usage, should have been Tho., was called Samuel: and the amount of intercourse kept up by the Holbrooks of Sherborn, with those of Weym., would indicate that the seat of the family continued at Weym., and that their nearest and most confidential and helpful relatives resided there. Further than this, I have discovered no reason for arranging his name as I have done. The names given to his children were nearly identical with those of the other Weym. Holbrooks. If Judge Mitchell has made no mistake, he could not have been Samuel, No. 13, Ch. I., Part I., who d. 1695, at Weymouth, leaving also 7 children, and 3 of them daus. Tho., senr.'s will renders it improbable that this Samuel was his son. [See Ch. IV.]

VII. Nathaniel, pr., who pr. died without issue, for whom Tho.,<sup>2</sup> at Sherborn, named his oldest son.

CHAPTER I.

2. 8. Thomas Holbrook,<sup>2</sup> in company with Geo. Allen & Anthony Fisher, of Dorchester, was admitted to the freeman's oath, May, 1645, implying that he was already a member of the Chh. and of age. In 1648, he purchased of Elizabeth, wid. of Col. Israel Stoughton, 30 acres of land in Dorch. This was the first real estate in D. discovered to have been owned by one of the name. On 8, (3mo.) 1652, he with Nicholas Wood and Andrew Pitcher, of D. [now Milton] purchased of Richard Parker, of Bos., to whom it had been granted by the Gen. Court, in 1649, 535 acres in the woods, on the W. side of Charles R., now in the S. E. part of Sherborn, including the lower meadows on Sewall's Br. This they so divided as to give him building sites where Dexter Amsden resides, and at Death's Bridge. He built his first house at the latter place, where the trace is still to be seen, and where he raised an extensive orchard, with the produce of which he practised such hospitality as secured his buildings from the torch of the enemy while those of his nearest neighbor on the other side of the stream were laid in ashes. In 1657 he petitioned for the high rocky point E. of Parker's grant, now called the Neck, and the Gen. Court granted him 50 acres, he purchasing 43 acres more of the government, including the entire tract between their first purchase and the R. In 1662 and '74 he signed petitions for the incorporation of S., and became one of the proprietors of this extensive township. In 1666, he had erected a new dwelling house where Dexter Amsden resides, and that year deeded 80 acres of his first purchase of Parker, to his brother-in-law, Henry Leland, who had already occupied it 12 years. In 1682, he owned 300 acres of the early grants, and with the nine other owners extinguished the Indian claims. In 1682 and '84, he drew 112 acres of the common lands of S., and in 1686 he out of 40 freeholders, was rated the 4th in amount to satisfy the Indian claims to these lands. He served as selectman in 1690, and was one of the six brethren to constitute the Chh. in S., at its formation, in 1685. He d. Apl. 11, 1705.

Tho. Holbrook,<sup>2</sup> senr., of Sherborn, made his will May, 1704, giving his homestead to his son, Eleazer; and all his neck of land in S., except a piece of meadow, to his son, Tho. To his son, Nathaniel, he gave his little lot ( $\frac{1}{2}$  acre) near [S. W. of] the Meeting-house, also a lot S. of Brown's meadow, and the piece of meadow above excepted. To his son, John, he gave 20 acres of his 1st dividend land, next to Abraham Cousins'. To his dau., Experience McIntosh, £10, and 18 acres, another part of his first division of common lands, near Cousins'. To his dau., Hannah Battle, £10, and 5 acres of his first dividend land, near C's. To Patience Leland, £10, and 15 acres (the Hope-field), near do., and 2 acres and 40 rods, near her husband's house; and to Susanna Morse, wife of Daniel M., he made similar bequests. To his grandchildren, Edmund, Margaret and Elizabeth Morse, children of his dau., Bethia Morse, £8, viz., "£5 to the boy, and 20s. apiece to the girls, when of age." Eleazer was exr.; and Ebenr., Jeremiah and Joseph Daniell, senr., witnesses. Will, probated Apl. 23, 1705. [Mid. Prob.] He m. 1st, Experience? Leland, dau. of Hopestill L., by w. 9. 13. Tho.,<sup>3</sup> inherited the homestead at Death's Bridge, served as a constable, 1694; surveyor, '95 and '98; tythingman, 1702, commissioner of assessments, '06 and '09, and selectman, 1710. He made his will, May 23, 1713, giving to his widow, Mary, the improvement of all his estate, until his s. Samuel should become of age, when he should possess one-half of his homestead, and all his meadow in Medfd., and she the whole of his estate at Weym., in lands that came by her. After her decease, Sam. should inherit all his lands. To his dau., Lydia, he gave £5, and to Thankful, when of age, £60. To his grd. s., Eleazer Perry, he gave £20. Mary was sole exr. -
11. 18. John,<sup>3</sup> m. Silence Wood, b. Feb. 22, 1675-6, whose father, Jona. W., was massacred by Indians the day before, and her mother expired soon after. She d. intestate, May 11, 1756. Her husband had d. intestate about 15 ys. previous; and Ezra, their son, was now, June 3, '56, appointed admr. to settle such of their estates as the heirs had not already settled. John served as constable, 1697; sealer of leather, 1705-32; commissioner of assessments, 1715; tythingman, '04; selectman, 6 ys.; and representative, 1772. He settled, where Jona. Holbrook, one of his descendants, resides, on his wife's estate, inherited from her father. He had

35. 19. i. John,<sup>4</sup> Mar. 22, 1694-5, m. Ruth Hill, and d. at Mendon, 1756 ;
 ii. Elizabeth,<sup>4</sup> Jly. 22, 1696, d. 1782, m. Joseph Twitchill, Mar. 27, 1718 ; and 2d, Dea. James Whitney, and was the mother of the Hon. Daniel Whitney, of S., and the gr. grd. mother of Amos Twitchell, M. D., of Keene, N. H. ;
39. 20. iii. Jona.,<sup>4</sup> Dec. 21, 1699, d. 1754, m. Abigail Breck ; iv. Joseph,<sup>4</sup>
 May 1, 1702, d. Mar. 13, '25-6, um. ;
41. 21. v. Ezra,<sup>4</sup> Ens., May 16, '09, d. Nov. 10, '86, m. Grace Cooledge ;
 22. vi. Joshua,<sup>4</sup> Aug. 22, '14, d. Nov. 1, 1740, um., and intestate.
12. 23. Nathaniel,<sup>3</sup> 1st Mary Morse, daughter of Jona., by w. Elizabeth Barbour ; and 2d, Elizabeth Sheffield ; but by the latter had no issue. He drew land in Doug., 1715, and d. intestate, 1716. At his funeral, £6 were expended for gloves. Administration was granted, Nov. 20, 1716, to his wid., Elizabeth, who m. 2d, Geo. Blanchard, of Killingly, Ct., from whence she and husband, 11 years after, petitioned for allowance, and gave in an account of her administration, "so far as she had proceeded." Nathaniel was pr. a cordwainer, and settled on the lot bequeathed him, S. W. of the Meetinghouse common ;
45. 24. i. Nathaniel,<sup>4</sup> Sep. 13, 1701, d. June 3, 1774, was left to be brought up by his grandfather, Jona. Morse, who gave him a deed of his farm, on the N.
 side of the Lake, on which is now kept a house of entertainment. He m.
 Sarah Sanger.
14. 25. Samuel,<sup>4</sup> inherited the ancient homestead at Death's Bridge, drew 21 acres at Doug., 1730. He served as surveyor, 1725 ; assessor, '29 ; constable, '30 ; and selectman, 7 ys. He m. Kezia Morse, Sep. 4, 1718, dau.
 of Cpt. Joseph M., who d. Feb. 18, '54 ; and 2d, Elizabeth, pr. wid. of Joseph Daniels, of Med., and had i. Hannah,<sup>5</sup> Sep. 11, 1720, m. Ephm.
 Perry, 1742, and d. 1744, without issue ; ii. Tho.,<sup>5</sup> Apl. 21, '23, d. yg. ;
26. iii. Asa,<sup>5</sup> Jan. 17, '25-6, d. Jly. 28, '73, m. Mary Rider, Mar. 30, '56 ;
 iv. Kezia,<sup>5</sup> Aug. 23, '29, m. Aaron Daniels, of Med., had only Kezia,<sup>6</sup> who
 m. Jona. Hill, of Med., and inherited all her grd. father H.'s estate ;
 v. Lydia,<sup>5</sup> Aug. 12, '34 ; and no further reported.
- Samuel<sup>4</sup> seems to have survived all his children ; or the division of his estate was postponed until after the decease of his son, Asa ; for, I find that his farm of 195 acres, at Death's Bridge, Dec. 7, 1773, "was ordered and assigned to his grd. dau., Kezia, the wife of Jona. Hill ; provided, that if any other lawful heirs or heir shall appear, then she or her heirs shall refund to them their proportional part of the value of the same." Elizabeth, wid. of Samuel, at the same time relinquished to Hill, for £40, her right of dower ; and Kezia and her husband afterwards sold the place to Henry Death, and thus it passed out of the race of the Holbrooks, and is now owned and occupied by Mr. Charles A. How.
16. 27. Daniel,<sup>4</sup> removed to Wrentham ab. 1722 ; drew 82 acres in Doug.,
 1715, and '30, m. Elizabeth Clark, fr. Medfd., and had

19. 35. John,<sup>4</sup> is presumed to have settled first on the homestead, by Holbrook's Mills, and to have sold to his brothers, Jona. and Joshua, who held the place in common, until both had deceased, which was the occasion of much trouble to heirs, administrators and guardians. He m. Ruth Hill, Mar. 13, 1718-19, drew 37 acres in Doug., 1730, and about 1733, removed to Mendon. He had
36. i. Wm.,<sup>5</sup> May 24, 1719; ii. Silence, Mar. 23, '23-4, m. — Goodale; iii. Ruth,<sup>5</sup> Dec. 28, '26, m. — Eames; iv. Elizabeth,<sup>5</sup> June 6, '30, um. in '56;

38. vii. Moses,<sup>5</sup> b. pr. do., had Ephm. Sherman for his guardian. John,<sup>4</sup> their father, was three times married. His will, proved Apl. 27, 1756, gave John<sup>5</sup> half of all his lands in Grafton and Douglas, and Moses the other half. To Wm.'s portion he added 3 acres of intervale, near Cpt. Leland's, now Leland station, in Grafton. [Worce. Prob.]
20. 39. Jona.<sup>4</sup> m. Abigail Breck, Nov. 5, 1730, who. d. Mar. 30, '75, a. 70. He inherited the homestead, (now occupied by Jona. Holbrook, his gr. grd. s.,) in common with his brother Joshua; was selectman of S., 1749-66, and d. intestate. Administration was granted to his wid., Abigail, and inventories of his estate (appraised at £3,113 16s.), presented, May 20, 1754, and she appointed guardian of the three youngest children, but did not succeed in the execution of the trust to the satisfaction of all parties concerned or of her neighbors. They had i. Abigail,<sup>5</sup> May 8, 1732, m. Joshua Morse; ii. Mehetabel,<sup>5</sup> Mar. 7, '33-4, d. Jan. 18, '54; iii. Joseph,<sup>5</sup> Dec. 26, '37, d. Dec. 19, '40; iv. Silence,<sup>5</sup> Nov. 7, '41, d. Aug. 15, '75, m. Micah Holbrook;

24. 45. Nathaniel,<sup>4</sup> settled N. E. of the Lake; the W. part of whose farm has become an attractive watering place. He was a very shrewd man; served

- S. 4 ys., as selectman, m. Aug. 20, 1728, Sarah Sanger, dau. of Richd. S., by w. Elizabeth Morse, and aunt to Rev. Dr. Sanger, formerly of Bridgewater. His will, dated Jan. 18, 1773, and probated, June 14, '74, gave his homestead to his son, Moses, requiring him to keep 2 cows and a horse for his wid. Sarah, and pay her one-fourth of the produce of the land; and to take care of a helpless dau., Azuba. To s., Micha, he gave £23, and half his lands in Doug., and to s. James, the other half. To dau., Mary Babcock, Hannah Whitney and Mercy Twitchell, he gave 50s. each. To his s., Nathaniel, whom he had already settled on the W. half of his farm, he gave 5s., charging him to see to the execution of his will. His wid. is said to have attained almost to her 100th year, and to have d. at Templeton. Nathaniel,<sup>4</sup> had

 TO THE HOLBROOKS.

GENT. : Since the foregoing was in type I have received assurance of such aid in the examination of records in England as may enable me or the inheritor of my MSS. to render this work more certain, complete, and available. Being descended on both sides from ancestors in common with thousands of Holbrooks, a circumstance that led to this production, I shall be most happy to receive and impart more of their history ; and if this humble offering should prove acceptable, a supplement may follow it, containing information expected from England, notes and obituaries of many only here named, and the history of branches not yet fully traced. To accumulate materials for such an addition and improvement will require delay and the aid of others. In the mean time let any of the race who have records and notes to communicate, direct the same to me at Boston, to the care of Mr. Charles C. Holbrook, No. 305 Washington st., pointing out any error in this work, however trivial, that can be detected ; and bearing firmly in mind that it is only by concentrating the correspondence and patronage in the hands of one man, and he not merely desirous of the undertaking, but by situation and long experience rendered competent to it, that the desired improvement can be made and issued. Direct your letters, then, as here requested ; and if I fail to arrange a supplement, I will pass them to some Holbrook, high-minded, honorable, and competent, tender of reputation, and alive to the honor of the name, who shall consent to receive our MSS., and act in my place. Antiquarians desire emulation, but they all deprecate and despise competition. The former assists, the latter defeats the labors of all.

Yours very affectionately,

ABNER MORSE.

1. Hopestill Layland, the common ancestor of the New England Lelands, was from Yorkshire, Eng. He landed and settled at Weymouth, probably as early as 1624. When the removal of Rev. Mr. Newman and the majority of the planters of W., to Rehoboth, occurred in 1644, he seems to have removed with the family of John? Holbrook, to that part of Dorchester which became Milton. Here his son Henry, the child of his old age, as it would seem, and born no doubt at Weymouth, grew up, formed the acquaintance of Nicholas Wood and Tho. Holbrook, both residents of the same part of Dorchester, and in company with them began the first settlement of Sherborn, 1652-4. Hopestill L. is believed to have had daughters married to some of the first planters in Medfield and Bogis-tow, many of whom were from Weymouth, Braintree and Dorchester, viz., one married to — Lovell, from whom descended Hopestill and Nathaniel L., of Med., another, Experience, the first wife of Tho. Holbrook, of Sherborn. When upwards of 70 years old he seems to have removed to Bogistow to reside with his children.
 Here the patriarch slept with his fathers in 1655, "aged 75." The manner in which his death is recorded indicates distinction. He was one of the most ancient men, if not the most ancient, who ever settled in New England. Holliston, more than half of whose inhabitants are his descendants, can have his bones but little decayed with evidence of their identity, if they will give him a protected grave and headstone. No monumental inscription in New England but his will date back to 1580.

2. Henry Layland m. Margaret Badoock, the sister of Robt. B., of Dorch., now Milton, and no doubt the grd. dg. of James B., who was born 158-- in Essex Co., England, removed with the Pilgrims to Holland and came in the ship Anne to Plymouth, in 1623. Henry L. was recd. to the chh. in D., 22, (3), 1653; and the next year came to Bogistow, as the S. E. quarter of S. was then called, and lived on land owned by Tho. Holbrook, for the ensuing 12 years; working perhaps still at his trade, as he continued to be styled tailor. In 1660, Mar. 3, he gave his bond for £40 to Henry Lane, of Boston, for 200 acres of land, formerly Capt. Keayne's, which he bought of Richard Brown, the grantee. This he discharged three years after, yet did not obtain a deed until 1667, when Sec'y Rawson and Gov. Danforth made oath to the purchase and payment. This tract included a meadow, still called Brown's meadow, and extended from the W. line of Parker's grant, which separated it from Charles R., almost or quite to Holl. line; and formed the nucleus of the great Leland farm. In 1666, he recd. a deed of Tho. Holbrook for 80 acres in three lots, which H. had previously bought of Andrew Pitcher, who had purchased it of Parker, the original grantee. The first lot consisted of 20 acres lying unto the new dwelling house of Tho. Holbrook, bounded N. by Pitcher, W. by Holbrook, abutting on a brook, E. [Sewell's] and on a highway W.,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  acres of the same being meadow. This includes the site of his first habitation, which was burnt in his absence, leaving his wife and then only child without shelter, food or effects. A 2d lot of 20 acres on a plain, bounded S. by Wood, N. by Pitcher, and E. and W. by common land; and a third lot of 39 acres was to be laid out upon the same plain, to include 5 acres of meadow, to be bounded precisely like the 2d lot. The first lot is now owned by David Daniels. He left the "old field" of 11 acres near Brush Hill, which Eleazer L. sold to his brother, Hopestill, for £46, whose descendants inherited it with his other lands, until the present century. He did not survive to draw much of the public land, but his right being inherited, secured his descendants extensive tracts and most of the farms in S. and H. which they still occupy.

Henry L. signed both petitions for the incorporation of S. He was chosen on a committee to provide a minister for S., and was associated with the selectmen "to grant town lots to those that were known among the inhabitants;" and tradition has brought down a high character of him for piety and kindness to the Indians. He d. Apl. 4, 1680, a. pr. about 50, and was interred about 100 rods S. E. of his dwelling. His wid., Margaret, d. at her s. Hopestill's, 21, (3), 1705, a. pr. ab. 75, having that year conveyed her property to him for having taken care of her, and for her future support. They had,

1. Solomon Phips, of Charlestown, took the freeman's oath, May 18, 1642, and had by w. Elizabeth, a dg. Elizabeth, born 1643. He d. Jly. 25, 1671, aged 52:

2. Solomon Phips, jun., of C., who m. Mary Danforth, b. Jly. 20, 1650, dg. of Dep. Gov. Tho. D. He took the freeman's oath, May 11, 1671; and d. suddenly, saying he was bewitched. This, the Baptists regarded as a judgment upon him for the sin of having purchased land taken from one of their communion, and sold for the payment of a fine.

3. Samuel Phips, who kept the Grammar School at Charlestown, in 1678.

4. Thomas Phips, who m. Eleanor Cutt, at Portsmouth, N. H., 1699.

5. James Phips, from Bristol, Eng., settled as a shipwright, at Pemaquid, near the mouth of Kennebec R., Me., prior to 1650. He had 26 children, 5 dgs. and 21 sons, one of whom was Sir Wm. P., Gov., b. Feb. 2, 1650; m. Mary Spencer, dg. of Capt. Roger S., and the widow of John Hull, mercht., of Bos. who m. for her 3d. hus. Peter Sargent, Esq., Oct. 9, 1701. She had no children by Gov. Phips. Spencer Bennet, son of her sis. Margaret, took the name of Phips, and was adopted by her, and became Lt. Gov. of Mass.; while the Gov. adopted John Phips, the son of his brother John, and promised him the largest share of his estate. In his 2d. will, (see Suff. Prob.) dated Dec. 13, 1693, designed to quell domestic discord at a time when he must have been the least able to endure it, he gave all of his estate, real and personal, to his wife, Mary, to dispose of as she should see fit; and if she should die without a will, then all should descend to the adopted son, Spencer Phips alias Bennet, and the heirs of his body. But if said Spencer P. should die without issue, then whatever of his estate might be left, should be equally shared ; one-half by his sisters, Mary and Margaret, and the heirs of his sis. Ann, or their heirs ; and the other half by the heirs of his wife Mary ; reserving out of the whole estate £100 N. Eng. currency, which his relations and the relations of his wife should cause to be paid to John Phips, son to his brother, John P., deceased, or to his heirs, adding, "if this clause be not repealed by my wife aforesaid."* Dame Mary Phips was appointed executrix, and a letter of admin. was granted, June 13, 1695. Sir Wm. deceased at London, Feb. 18, 1694-5.

"At the E. end of the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth, near the N. E. angle, is a pretty white marble monument, adorned with an urn between two cupids, the figure of a ship, and also a boat at sea, with persons in the water ; these beheld by a winged eye, all done in basso relievo ; also seven medals, as that of K. Wm. and Q. Mary ; some with Spanish impressions, as the castle, cross-potent, &c. ; and likewise the figures of a sea-quadrant, cross-staff, &c., and this inscription :

Near this place is interred the body of Sir Wm. Phipps, Knight ; who in the year 1687, by his great industry, discovered among the rocks, near the banks of Bahama, on the N. side of Hispaniola, a Spanish plate ship, which had been under water 44 years, out of which he took, in gold and silver, to the value of £300,000 sterling ; and with a fidelity equal to his conduct, brought it all to London, where it was divided between himself and the rest of the adventurers : For which great service he was knighted, by his then Majesty, King James the 2d ; and afterward, by the command of his present Majesty, and at the request of the principal inhabitants of New England, he accepted of the government of the Massachusetts, in which he continued to the time of his death ; and discharged his trust with that zeal for the interest of his country, and with so little regard to his own private advantage, that he justly gained the good esteem and affections of the greatest and best part of the inhabitants of that Colony. Here are also his arms depicted : i. e. sable, a trefoil slipt, within an orl of eight Mulletts Argent." This was erected by Lady Phipps, and it is worthy of remark, that the place of his birth and age at death, are omitted. The insertion of these might have affected her future prospects. [Gen'l Regr.]

6. John Phips who settled at Wrentham, before 1700, was the nephew of Sir Wm. Phipps and his adopted son. A tradition, deemed in this instance perfectly reliable, declares that Gov. Phipps, Dec. 18, 1693, before embarking for Eng., made his will, giving his son, as he had previously promised, a large share of his vast estate, to which Lady Phipps made such violent opposition as to induce the ex-Gov. to destroy this will and make one to her mind ; he promising privately to make another like the first as soon as he should reach Eng. On his arrival, he was much harassed, and died without fulfilling his promise. Lady P. in administering on his estate, offered John a pittance of what had been promised. This he spurned—purchased a farm at Wrentham, [pr. N. part] where he seems to have had

* This woman, who had not scrupled in the absence of her husband to act as Gov., did repeal the last clause, and the whole of Sir Wm.'s. estate went to Spencer P. ; though John P. had been with his uncle in that adventurous voyage by which it had been acquired. But the above will was not intended for execution. [See next article.] For the further history of Sir Wm. Mr. P. and wife were interred in the Central Burying Ground, where neat headstones mark their graves.

32. 12. ix. Jason, Esq., Oct. 19, '34, d. May 8, 1817, aged 83; x. Samuel, Mar. 1, '36-7, d. young; xi. David, Oct. 25, '39, d. young.

8. 13. Wm., Rev. A. M., as well as his brothers, must have been by nature a remarkable man. His genius for the acquisition of languages was such, that with the little aid of his time, he is said to have mastered no less than 12; a circumstance thought indicative of a descent from literary ancestors. New Sherborn as a District had been called, having been erected into a town by the name of Douglas; and "Dr. Wm. Douglas, a Scotchman, of Boston, and large proprietor of D., having settled £500, O. T., on a free school, and £50 per annum for seven years on the first minister of D., besides other bounties;" and a chh. having been gathered there, Mr. P. received a call, and was ordained, Dec. 16, 1747, 4 years after his reception to full communion in the chh. at S., 1 year and 5 months after his graduation at H. C., and "less than 7 years after he first began grammar learning." Rev. Samuel Porter, the godly pastor of S., preached on the occasion; and in commendation of the pastor elect, said: "We of the town and chh. from whence he came do bless God who raised up one of our children with so blameless a character at home and abroad, and who we have so much reason to hope will be a rich blessing to you and to the world in his day. And indeed, if I should boast to you somewhat of his parts and acquirements, considering the very short time he has had for improvement, I should be in no fear that he would make me ashamed, having had opportunity to see the uncommon progress he made while under instruction. You must not think it hard, brethren, if I am very free and earnest with you on his account, whom I call my son for the love I bear to him and the share I have had in his education." The death of his father had lately subjected a numerous family to orphanage. Wm., as the senior child, became to them a father, and they removed, most if not all of them to D., where some of them remained until about the time of his resignation. In his life and doctrine he seems never to have disappointed the fond hopes entertained at his ordination. But he was settled too near R. I., to find an orderly, ministerial people, and in too poor a town to realize an adequate salary. He was starved into toil and trade for support; and after a ministry of about 20 years less barren than the engagements of the people, he retired to Oxford, now Auburn, with talents so improved for business as to compensate for want of salary; was appointed a magistrate; espoused the cause of freedom; acted as moderator of county conventions; wrote thrilling addresses to the people, and contributed to arouse and guide that spirit of resistance which achieved our independence. He m. Abigail —, who d. Jly. 31, 1820, aged 92, at Oxf'd., and had

i. Susanna, who m. — Craig, r. Auburn; ii. Moses, who probably d. at Oxford, Feb. 9, 1813, aged 46; Sylvester Phips, now of Oxford, Moses P., of Webster, and Calvin P., who d. 1822, aged, 32, at Oxford, are supposed to have been his descendants.

10. 30. Jedediah Phips had a rare sensibility to beauties in language, creation, and Providence. I visited him in 1811, then in his 94th year, when the faculties of his mind had a vigor that many lose at 60. He had never been sick in his life; could describe the constellations as easily as the fields of his farm, repeat quotations correctly from the classics, and give the names of his former acquaintance who had seen and conversed with Peregrine White. He dwelt much upon the divine goodness, past and present, and anticipated its enjoyment forever. Though professedly a laboring man, he had stored his mind by a habit of spending his minutes of relaxation in reading; and he had long been the oracle of his vicinity, and was well known in all the bordering towns.

He first settled in Douglas, from whence he removed to Sherborn, May 5, 1768, with his wife and four children, and settled on the W. side of Peter's Hill, and on the E. side of the N. road to Fram. In middle life he had a good landed estate. He became a zealous whig of '76; was moderator of town meetings '78 and '79, selectman '73 and '80, and with Pres. Loek and Hon. Daniel Whitney, chosen on a standing committee of correspondence for 1774 and '75. He was a member of the Co. convention, held at Concord, 1779; and on committees to instruct the representative of S., in '77, and to hire soldiers; and one of a committee of safety, '80. The records of the General Court at the beginning of the struggle, when the army was almost without ammunition, state that, "Whereas Mr. Jedediah Phips, of Sherborn, has produced to this Court several pounds of genuine saltpetre, of his own manufacturing, and given full evidence of his knowledge in discovering earth impregnated therewith, as well as of his abilities to manufacture said commodity; and has also consented to enter into the employment of the government for improving the art and business aforesaid, and engaged to communicate his useful discoveries therein: Therefore resolved, that the said Jedediah Phips be taken into the service of this Colony, as aforesaid, until the 15th of Dec. next; and he is hereby directed to repair to Newburyport as soon as may be, and use his utmost efforts with Doct. Whiting, Mr. Baker, and Capt. John Peck, a committee of this Court for the purpose aforesaid, or either of them, to make further improvements in the art of manufacturing said commodity, and for every day which he shall be absent from home and employed agreeable to the direction of this resolve, he shall be allowed and paid out of the public Treasury, the sum of 6s. per day for his service, and 20s. per week, to defray his expenses, as already provided for said Committee."

He m. Sarah Learned, b. 1731-2, d. Mar. 6, 1810, dg. of Capt. Edward L., of S., by w. Sarah Leland, (dg. of Ens. Henry Leland, by w. Mary Morse) and grd. dg. of Dea. Benoni L., by w. Sarah Fanning, and gr. grd. dg. of Isaac L., of Woburn, by w. Mary Stearns, and gr. gr. grd. dg. of Wm. L., of Ch'stown. Mr. P. and wife were received by letter from Doug. into the chh. in S., Oct., 1769. They had, 48. 31. i. John, b. at Douglas, m. Hannah Cooledge; ii. Jedediah, b. at D., d. 1847, a. 88, at Digby, Me., was a teacher of music and of a grammar school; iii. Jesse, who was drowned, m. Elizabeth King, r. S., and Frederick, N. B., had i. Wm. K., m. Hannah Coon, rs. Fram.; ii. Rufus, (d), r. Chs'town, m. Elvira Copps; iii. Mary, m. John Coon, r. Bos.

And. N., of S., and had i. Joseph, '90; ii. Geo., '91; iii. Andrew, '93; and was grandmother to Rev. F. R. Newell, of Brewster;

vii. Anna, bap. Nov. 29, '78, m. Hon. Calvin Sanger, of S., and now living here, giving promise of great longevity, having by her unimpaired memory greatly aided in recovering this genealogy. For her family see Sanger.

11. 32. Aaron, Dea., after the death of his father was apprenticed to Dea. James Russel, of Holl., as a blacksmith; and during his time, 1747-51, planted the magnificent elms in front of Col. Whiting's house, one third of a mile N. of Hol. common. He purchased, at different times, of the heirs of Aaron Morse, the farm now owned by Eli Phips, one half m. S. W. of Hol. centre, on which he settled and spent his days. He was a superior man; distinguished for independence and strength of mind, soundness of judgment, enterprise, tact, and energy in worldly pursuits. He was rather acquisitive, yet ever just; and if he sometimes stood for his rights where others would have quailed, it was because they were rights; and he himself lawyer and advocate enough to maintain them, as he did triumphantly. "He was a natural debater, could speak with rhetorical propriety and logical force, whether in town meetings, civil or ecclesiastical courts, or before the Gov. and Council. He often acted as draftsman, and much of his neat, unambiguous chirography exists in ancient wills, &c. He had a taste for the beautiful in nature and art, as his adorned and spacious mansion continued to testify within my own recollection. He had a high sense of character, never sought popularity, and "knew," as he said, "no distinction between inferiors and equals so long as both retained their self-respect and integrity of character."

He was chosen Dea. of the eh. in H., May 2, 1766, and also treasurer; was greatly respected for his consistent deportment, and beloved for his tender piety; a most excellent neighbor, much relied upon for advice and aid in emergencies, and given to hospitality, the abuse of which cost him his life and the community a severe loss. He d. with the small pox, contracted in receiving from a guest an infected bundle from a pest house. He m. Mar. 17, 1757, Zeruah Haven, b. Feb. 18, 1736, d. Dec. 8, '80, dg. of John H., by w. 32 $\frac{2}{3}$ . 32 $\frac{2}{3}$ . Joseph Phipps at his birth was less than one fourth of the size of his twin sister, a circumstance however that dwarfed neither mind nor body. On the contrary his growth, and the early development of his intellect, and a taste for books, induced the aspiring parents, like others of their time, to select him as the son destined for the college and ministry; as though God would call whom they chose; or they could read the divine purpose in the capacity and bias of an unconverted boy. But he was destined to another sphere; and the family, whom he moulded as no minister, pent-up or absent, could have done, may yet demonstrate that it was probably one of greater usefulness. The sudden death of his excellent mother, and the unfortunate 2d marriage of his father, interrupted his course, and he exchanged his books for a musket in the army that suppressed the rebellion of '87. He married very early in life the youthful and only daughter of Capt. Daniel Eames, of Hopk., the patriot soldier of 1775-83; and took charge of the farm at Phipps Hill. After the decease of his father and erratic step-mother, he sold his interest in the homestead, and removed with a handsome property to Lee, N. Y. Here fortune smiled as if she would give edge to ensuing frowns. His agricultural pursuits were successful, and brought him the means of purchasing the unoccupied site of Utica, and but for the perfidy of the man to whom he loaned his money, it had been his, just before he saw a city piled upon it. "Bitter disappointment, unproductive seasons, and unforeseen reverses left him in a few years with a numerous young family, dependent alone upon his energies and those of his persevering wife for their support and education." Still he did not despair, nor remit his exertions to mould their minds and hearts for usefulness and honor. For years he struggled with poverty and its temptations without ever compromising his honor or integrity. At length he removed to Orleans Co., N. Y., and during the last 9 years of his life resided at the Phipps Female Seminary, in Albion, which his daughters by their enterprise and energy had established. Here he d. May 6, 1842, having lived to see all his children but one (and he since added,) walking in the truth which he had inculcated; and nobly engaged in transmitting its influence to others.

Mr. P. seems to have inherited characteristics of his father's race. He loved knowledge and was a great general reader. He revered and adorned religion. As a husband and father he was faithful and kind; and as a man, uniformly conscientious. He was much respected by my brethren in the ministry, one of whom, Rev. Dr. Frost, pronounced him among the best theologians of the day. "He had a very retentive memory, rare argumentative powers, an easy flow of words and a calm self-control, which secured him advantages in discussion; and though ever reluctant to engage in religious debates as unprofitable, yet when forced to do so his antagonists were sure to feel his strength." He m. Mary Eames, dg. of Capt. Daniel E., of Hopk., by w. Mary Cutler, (dg. of Jona. C., by w. Abigail Clark,) and grd. dg. of Daniel E., of H., by w. 12. Rev. Joshua Prentiss, b. at Cambridge, 1718 ; grd., 1738, H. U., ord. at

H., May 18, 1743, d. Apl. 24, '88. "He was the oldest son of an intelligent and pious father. From a letter addressed to him by his father, a few days previous to his ordination, containing most affectionate and faithful advice, we learn, that when seven years of age he was visited with a violent fever, which reduced him so low as to leave little hope of his recovery. Under the anxiety and distress produced by the forbidding prospect of losing a child upon whom he doted, his father writes; 'retiring from the bed to another chamber, I spread my case before the great God, and prayed earnestly for the life of the child, — yet with submission, — that if it might be consistent with his holy will to spare his life, and to bring him back from the grave's mouth, and restore him to health, I would then according as he should enable me, give him up, and devote him to his service; and by his grace, I have been enabled, in some measure, to perform those vows which my lips uttered, and my mouth spake when I was in trouble.' In addition to his baptismal dedication to God in infancy, his father says, 'you have been, by a more particular and renewed promise of your father, given and devoted to God's service.' And there is no inconsiderable ground for believing, that the prayers, and vows, and pious efforts of the father, in regard to this son, were not unavailing. In early life, he professed faith in Christ, and publicly assumed the obligations of his parents in his baptism, and devoted himself to the service of God. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1738; being at that time only twenty years of age. His religious sentiments were Calvinistic; and his preaching was plain, instructive, and evangelical. For about five years before his death, his health was so greatly impaired as to render him unable to preach only occasionally. And perhaps it was owing wholly to this circumstance, that the congregation was induced to procure, in 1784, a dissolution of the pastoral connection subsisting between him and them. But the fact, which seems the most unpleasant upon this subject, is, that having fallen behind in the payment of his salary, the people should refuse his pecuniary claims, and compel him to the ungrateful task of a civil prosecution. The demand was, however, ultimately discharged without a legal process; greatly to the credit of the people, and the satisfaction of the pastor. From the time of this settlement to his death, peace and good feeling prevailed; as is evident from the fact, that after his dismission the town exempted his estate from taxation, and appropriated, for the use of his family, a seat in the Meeting-house." [See Fitch's His. Dis.] He m. Mary Angier, Nov. 9, '43, who d. Jan. 4, 1754; 2d, Margaret Appleton, '55; 3d w. Mary Haley, '70. I. Joshua, Oct. 18, 1744, r. a merch. at Marblehead; II. Tho., Rev. D. D., Oct. 14, '47, adm. A. B., 1766, S. T. D., 1808, H. U.; ord. at Medfd. ab. 1770; d. 1814; III. Henry, Feb. 24, '48–9, r. as a merch. in Bos., d. at Medfd., a. 73; IV. Mary, Jan. 19, '52, d. Nov. 26, 1789, Timothy Dickenson; IX. Elizabeth, Jan. 9, '64, passed her days um., and d. in H., at an advanced age. The prayers of a godly ancestry were answered in her early and sound conversion; and throughout her long life, she was zealously and uniformly devoted to the immortal good of her race, of every color and clime. Precious and admonitory is her memory. It seems to inquire, Who has arisen, who will arise to take her place in the chh. ? and, like her and Susan Anthony, lead a life of prayer, making all whom she meets think of preparation for the life to come, and of the immediate duty of doing more for God in the world ? In her life she devoted her earnings and the proceeds of her property to the cause of Christian benevolence, and by will consecrated all her estate to the use of the Theo. Sem., at Bangor.

Richardson. This is a patronymic; and when surnames were introduced, there were so many Richards who had sons, as to exclude the idea of a common origin of the Richardsons since the time of Noah. Even in this country so many of the name early appear, and the records are so incomplete, that no individual or association can derive our Richardsons any more than our Smiths, from one stock. The Gen. Register reports, and I have discovered that Symon Richardson, aged 23, and Tho., aged 26, embarked at Gravesend for Virginia, 1635. Tho. arrived in the Speedwell, 1656. Tho., of Chemford, had Mary, 1673. Tho. d. at Woburn, 1774, a. 93. Tho. d. at do., 1773, a. 67; Amos, wf. Sarah, had Stephen, 14, (4), 1652, at Bos. Rev. John, d. at Newbury, 1696, in his 50th year; Lt. John, d. at Woburn, 1696-7, a. 58; John witnessed a will at Exeter, 1642; John d. at W., 1749, a. 81; Samuel took the freeman's oath, May 2, 1638; Samuel d. at W., 1754, a. 84; Samuel, w. Susanna, d. at W., 1726, a. 56; Samuel d. at W., 1712, aged 66; Ezekiel took the freeman's oath, Oct. 19, 1630. This name occurred early in Needham; Capt. Josiah was of Chemsford, 1659; Nathan, w. Tabitha, d. at W., 1739, a. 33; Nathan's wid. Esther d. at W., 1727, a. 27; Joshua, d. at W., 1748, aged 68; Dea. Nathan, d. 1775, at W., aged 74; Lydia, wid. of Nathan, d. at W., 1776, aged 85; Theophilus, m. Hannah Chickering, at Needham, Feb. 1, 1739-40, and had Abijah, '41, d. yg.; Theo. and Ebenr.

Several of this name early settled in Medfield. Tradition says they came from Concord, where the name early occurred, and they were not improbably the descendants of Samuel, senr., of Woburn, who was selectman, 1644-5-6-9-51. They were

71. 87. Abijah Richardson, M. D., in 1770, entered Harv. Col., where he remained two years. He then commenced the study of Medicine. Having completed his studies, he entered the Revolutionary army in the capacity of surgeon's mate, under Dr. Samuel Whitwell. He afterwards received a surgeon's commission, and continued in the service of his country until the close, or near the close of the war. He then settled as a physician, in Medway, and there continued in the active and successful performance of the duties of his profession until his death, May 10, 1822, a. 70. Few physicians pass their professional career more honored or beloved. He was an eminent Botanist; indefatigable in the pursuit of knowledge, and with a memory so retentive that he seldom forgot what he had once acquired. He performed the duties of every relation of life with the most scrupulous exactness. He was affable, communicative, benevolent; but not obtrusive. He was an honor to his profession and to his country; and for many years to come his memory will be held in grateful recollection in the vicinity in which he lived. He m. Rockwood.* The names Rockwood and Rocket were formerly identical, and the latter a corruption of the former. For in the mother country the Rockwoods are an ancient and somewhat numerous race, while the Rockets are almost unknown, there being lately only one in London, and he unacquainted with the existence of the name out of the circle of his relatives in the interior of the kingdom. The name of Rockwood was no doubt local, derived from Rocky Woods, the place of the exploits, or of the abode of the first who assumed it; and if "there is not an ancient town, * Tradition says that a page by the name of Rockwood, at the court of Henry VIII, in a game of chess with his king, won a manor belonging to one of the monasteries distributed in his reign; and that, in commemoration of the victory, received from the king for his arms 6 chessrooks. Tradition, like other great liars, sometimes speaks the truth, and perhaps in this instance does so. The above estate is said to be still occupied by Rockwoods who are of the gentry.

village or hamlet in England or Normandy, that did not give name to some family in England ; " if John de Hill and James of under the Hill ; if Peter of the sandy Ford, and John of the lay [Plain] Land ; if Nicholas of the woods, and Joseph of under the Woods derived their names from land marks, no marvel if, while the English were assuming lower or surnames, some Nicholas, Richard or John should have taken his from the Rocky Woods, once so common in the W. of England ; and when the customs of another age and country are considered, none need fear for the rank or dignity of their ancestor in conceding that his name came out of the woods. In this country it was first recorded Rocket, and this orthography was generally preserved until 1728, when Dea. Nathaniel R., of Wrentham, and brothers, restored the original spelling of Rockwood. This they did 19 years before the death of their revered uncle Benjamin, who was born in 1651, and whose grandfather and perhaps father were both from England, and who must have known the true orthography of the name, and might have influenced his nephews to the contrary if they were attempting an innovation. Besides, I am inclined to believe that he, rather than his nephew, Benj., who was then jun., was the " Benj. Rockwood " who subscribed a petition to the General Court in 1737, on account of " services and sufferings in the late Indian wars ; " and if so, then he joined with his nephews, or preceded them in restoring the true spelling. But this was not the first resort to the original orthography. The corruption of the name seems to have been resisted far earlier, and from the first, at the very place where they first settled : for I have recently found it spelt " Rockwood " upon a very ancient record at Braintree, from whence the entire race had removed in 1664, so that I am satisfied that in the further pursuit of their genealogy, the Rockwoods of New England must explore the history of their Puritan sire, not among the Rockets, but the Rockwoods of England, and in Dorset. and Suffolk Co's, rather than in other parts of the kingdom.*

Of the number of Rockets who early arrived in New England, and of their previous history, nothing reliable can be gathered from tradition. The names of only two have been preserved, only one of whom left issue ; and from whom all the Rockwoods of New England origin have sprung. Of their history prior to their arrival nothing is yet ascertained, and almost nothing but their names occurs on our records. Yet if we regard them as following the uniform custom of their times, of naming the first son after the paternal grandfather, and the second after the father, or the reverse, then one of them has told us that their father was Nicholas Rockwood. Other circumstances add more. The high and holy character of the community which attracted them, and in which they first appear ; the strict morality exacted of all who entered or tarried in it, and the silence of all town, church and colonial records as to anything amiss, indicate that in conduct they were moral, and in heart, pious ; while their early arrival excuses them from the sinister motives that drew later emigrants, and proves them to have been men of enterprise and moral courage. Their names were,

1. John Rocket,<sup>1</sup> who was enrolled as a planter in Dorchester, in 1636, indi-

* Further examination and reflection convince me that the name was never spelled Rocket by the family. It was so pronounced, as it still is, and so written by others, and answered to by the Rockwoods. But on no petition, deed, will, or certificate, ancient or modern, signed by either of them, have I ever found it subscribed otherwise than Rockwood ; and both Nicholas<sup>2</sup> and John,<sup>2</sup> as if mindful of the importance of the true orthography, had their marriages in 1656 and 1662 recorded by the name of Rockwood. Such precaution in their day and circumstances was anomalous and significant. Other families yielded to innovations, adopted without resistance the misspelling of clerks, and seldom, if ever, recovered the original orthography of their names when thus publicly corrupted. But the Rockwoods (some, if not all, of the 4 first generations) withstood the corruption, [universal on Town Records until 1728,] continued to subscribe their names Rockwood ; and they seem finally to have effected the correction everywhere, though at different and wide intervals. None of the race are known to retain the more convenient spelling of Rocket, which further indicates that such was never the name. A rule, however, of antiquarians requires a literal transcript from records.

eating that he had passed a previous probation of at least one year. Nothing more is recorded of him. He either returned to England with some others from D. about this time, or more probably d. without issue.

2. Richard "Rocket,"<sup>1</sup> alias "Rockwood," probably the brother of John, was also a planter in Dorchester, in 1636. He and his wife the same year sold a house and 20 acres of land at Weymouth, formerly Zachary Bicknell's, ("after Bicknell's death,") which belonged to their child; [pr. Nicholas]; and the General Court, Mar. 9, 1636-7, bound the son when of age, either to ratify the sale or "allow all such costs as the Court shall think meete."

Richard<sup>1</sup> m. two, and perhaps three wives. His first is supposed to have been the daughter of Zachary Bicknell, to whom he must have been m. as early as 1627, three years prior to the settlement of Dorchester. This leads to the presumption that he had previously lived at Weymouth, where the marriage had taken place, or more probably at Weymouth in Dorsetshire, from whence the early planters of our Weymouth came; and that he and his brother John were among the number who removed from W. to D. after the arrival of their former neighbors, and perhaps kinsmen from Dorchester, 8 ms. from Weymouth in Dorsetshire. But however this might have been, his earliest connections and company point us to one of these towns or their vicinity, as his natal place; so that the Rockwoods of New England need not despair of further knowledge of their Puritan sire, and of their ancestors of remote antiquity.

Richard m. Agnes —, who d. at Braintree, 9 (5), 1643; and 2d, Ann —, who d. 1664. He d. 1660, intestate, and Dec. 15, 1660, his wid., Ann "Rockwood" and E. Kingsbury made oath to an "Inventory of the estate of Richard Rockwood." His wid., "Ann Rockwood" d. four years after, and administration on her estate was granted John Taylor, Apl. 28, 1664, [Suff. 3. 5. Nicholas Rocket,<sup>2</sup> first located at Braintree. In 1650, the enterprise of settling the new town of Medfield, drew him and the sons of Henry Adams<sup>1</sup> senr., from B.; and he became one of the first settlers and proprietors of that town. He drew lots from time to time, most of which, by a division of the township in 1713, fell into Medway. In 1663, a company of 15 of his former townsmen, with others from Weym., having undertaken the settlement of Mendon, he and the Adamses at Medfield proposed to join them; and he actually presented his request for acceptance as a proprietor; but the Adamses finally declined, and his proposal seems not to have been acted upon, he having most likely withdrawn it. He finally settled, it is presumed, about one quarter m. S. W. of Richardson's mills, in the N. E. part of Medway, and was with most of his family in the stone house, at Bogistow Pond, in 1676, when Philip and his warriors met with their "notorious repulse." He became a member of the chh. in Medfield, and took the freeman's oath, May 23, 1666. He m. 1st, Jane, pr. Adams? who d. Dec. 15, 1654; 2d, Margaret Holbrook, Jly. 16, 1656, who d. Apl. 23, 1670; and 3d, Silence —, who d. Nov. 9, 1677. He d. Jan. 26, 1680.

His estate was inventoried 26, (11), 1680, and appraised by Edward Adams and John Harding, the husband of Elizabeth Adams. Administration was granted Mar. 18, 1680, to his son, Josiah, and his estate harmoniously settled. He owned lots at Bear Hills, in Medfield, in and adjacent to Broad Meadows, on Long Plain, and 85 acres on the New Grant, now W. Med. ; and he seems to have been a husbandman in common circumstances, and a worthy and respected citizen. He had,

i. Samuel,<sup>3</sup> Dea., b. pr. at Braintree, m. Hannah Ellis, Dec. 15, 1671 ;

ii. Benj.,<sup>3</sup> Sep. 8, 1651, at Medfd., d. Dec. 5, 1747, at Wrenth., "in his 97th year."

iv. Elizabeth,<sup>3</sup> b. Aprl. 3, 1657, m. John Partridge, jun., of M., '79 ;

21. 9. v. Joseph,<sup>3</sup> b., pr. ab. 1659, m. Hanh. Partridge, Apl. 2, '79, and d. at Swansea, July 21, 1693 ; supposed to have been a Baptist ;

22. 10. vi. John,<sup>3</sup> Rev., b. Feb. 12, 1662, d. Dec. 16, 1746, at Medway ;

29. 11. vii. Nathaniel,<sup>3</sup> Dea., Feb. 23, 1665, d. Sep. 24, 1721, at Wrenth ;

viii. Isaac,<sup>3</sup> Jly. 22, 1677, d. Oct. 11, 1677, at Medfield. On the death of their father, John<sup>3</sup> and Nathl.<sup>3</sup> chose Edwd. Adams their guardian. Nicholas,<sup>2</sup> the father, seems to have named no child after himself, and what is very remarkable in that age of filial respect, none of his sons named any after him. But this may be accounted for without any distrust of his character, or of the respect of his sons. Perhaps he had adopted the principle of selecting Scriptural names according to his admiration of Scriptural characters, which excluded his own and that of his father ; or, he wore the name of some oppressor whom all wished to forget ; or, to call a child after a tutelar saint, might to them have savored of Romanism ; or, to give a name identical in use with that of the god of the North sea, might have seemed idolatry ; or, perhaps, the heralded Nicholas Rockwood, of Kirby, in Suffolk Co., (who might have been his grandfather,) or some other Nicholas R. had denied him an expected bequest, or proudly disinherited his Puritan father, or supplanted him in his birthright, which he had not funds to recover, and which, if it existed, may perchance on the extinction of the inheriting line, or by an earlier revival of the claim, yet be the inheritance of some of his posterity in this country.* Still, this dropping out of a patriarchal name is an anomaly not explained, but suggestive.

4. 12. "John Rockwood," m. 15, (7), 1662, Johanna Ford, at Braintree. Fifteen of his townsmen and ten others from Weymouth, were that year accepted to be settled at Mendon, before the 7th mo. 1663, and he seems to have joined them on their setting out, or as soon as the condition of his family admitted. He no doubt expected his brother Nicholas at Medfield to accompany him, who had made application to the company, and whose greater age and acquaintance with the country and people, would have rendered him peculiarly helpful. But he encountered the disappointment, and remained with the settlement at Mendon, until the destruction of that town, at the beginning of Indian hostilities, in 1675. To him, Philip's war was disastrous. Twice must he and his have fled for their lives, as appears from a petition of his, on file at Boston, and dated at Milton, 1678, praying the General Court to abate a tax of 19s., on the ground that the Indians had burnt his house, barn, corn and bedding, at Mendon, and all that he had saved afterwards at Medfield, so that he had been forced to Milton to work to support a wife and 6 children. In 1678-9, he purchased of James Albee, at Mendon, a dwelling lot of 4 acres, with 20 acres more adjacent, and bounded E. by Muddy Brook, with a ten rod highway crossing it. This shows that his 2d dwelling place in Mendon, was on the flat, a short distance S. E. of the centre of the present village. He had,

* Claims in Europe 500 years old, have been legally established ; but they perish in reference to those who will not recover and keep their genealogy. The claim of an American to an entailment pronounced sure 60 years ago, by legal authority upon the ground, was not prosecuted for want of funds to commence. The claimant returned, and d., leaving no records of the births of his children, or the location of his claim ; and neither his grandchildren nor great-grandchildren are yet recorded. Thousands who would censure this, may be equally faulty in reference to claims that may arise or be discovered.

"In the beginning of Philip's war, when searching in the wilderness for a stray horse, he discovered, about sunset, a trail of 42 Indians; and suspecting that they intended to attack the town the next morning after the men had dispersed to their work, he followed them until they halted for the night. He then returned to the settlement and reported the discovery; whereupon Capt. John Ware, with a company of 13 men, after securing their women and children in the garrison, went out and attacked them in the morning as soon as it was light, while they were preparing to decamp, killing from 20 to 24 of their number. The rest fled, some leaping down a precipitious rock from 10 to 20 feet high; and others attempting to conceal themselves in Mill Brook. One of the fugitives was brought down at the distance of 80 rods, by a bullet from Woodcock's famous gun, called the Buccaneer.* This occurred at a place now called Indian Rock, about 2 m. S. E. of Franklin Depot. Benj. had at W. i. Bethia,<sup>4</sup> Jly. 4, 1679, at Medfield; ii. Judith,<sup>4</sup> Mar. 17, 1680, at Wrenth.; III. Mary,<sup>4</sup> Oct. 2, '83, d. Apl. 12, 1763, m. 45. 140. Ebenezer Rockwood,<sup>6</sup> A. M., M. D., possessed a "character of great worth and acknowledged excellence," which his posterity and the race would do well to emulate. The excellent spirit which dwelt first in his ancestors lived in him, and throughout his long life he adhered to sound Christian principles in all his intercourse in society, in all his relations to the Church, and in all his influence over his family. He grad. at H. Col. 1773, studied medicine, entered the army of U. S. as surgeon, and afterward settled as a physician at Wilton, became eminent in his profession, and ever had an extensive practice. On Feb. 10, 1830, then in his 84th year, he passed to his final reward, amidst the grief of friends and the regrets of the community. He m. June 10, 1779, Mary Emerson, b. Nov. 14, 1753, d. 142. 146. Ebenezer Rockwood,<sup>6</sup> Esq., A. M. grad. at H. U., 1802, read law, s. in Bos., where he d. May 8, 1815, at the age of 34 ys. While he lived his intimate associates were of the highest circle of talent and refinement. Numbers of them, ere merit had ceased to be a passport, rose to the highest stations of honor in the gift of their fellow-citizens ; and had Mr. Rockwood been spared, such were his talents and address, and such his moral worth, that he could hardly have failed of a full share of such honors. One fact illustrates the nobility of his friends, and the esteem in which he was held. When his death was announced, the members of a class club of which he was a founder while at the University, met and resolved, as one of their testimonials, "that $500 of their funds be put out on interest for the aid of the first of his children who should wish a col. education," and thus it would have been cheerfully expended had there been need. The following obituary appeared in the Weekly Messenger of June 2, 1815 : —

The late Mr. Rockwood but a few days since, was seen in our judicial tribunals, giving proof of powers of mind destined, as was anticipated, to adorn the bar and public assemblies of our country. Without the aid of fortune, and with no friends but those attached to him by his own merit, he was advancing with undeviating step to the first rank in his profession. His example has illustrated the truth, that patronage is not necessary to talents ; but that associated with virtue, they lead, with an independent vigor, over every obstruction, to the honors and advantages of society. He came into Boston a stranger. But there was in his exterior such a recommendation of dignity and intelligence, that notice and respect were soon attracted to him. Acquaintance became esteem, and the great number of those who regarded him, are left to feel for his loss a regret much more lasting than was the period permitted to their friendship.

Mr. Rockwood's mind was naturally of a high cast. His understanding was sound and clear, and extremely rapid in its deductions. It possessed a springing energy which supplied at the same time quickness and force. He was not habituated to long trains of reasoning — while others were arranging their arguments, he threw out his bold and luminous opinions. They were received with surprise, often with incredulity — but all who reasoned justly, came at last to the same result, though by a far longer process.

Although he was young, his knowledge was abundant ; for this, however, he was not much indebted to books.

He never resorted to them, when he had opportunities for observation, — and even in that profession, in which great erudition is almost a sufficient qualification, and learning often succeeds where talent alone fails, he seldom had recourse to books except as authorities, — his arrangement, his argument and his decision, were original, and apparently intuitive.

But these powers, though rare and valuable, are not all that is worthy to be described in Mr. Rockwood. Clear and true as was the glance of his mind, this was not more admirable than his noble and generous heart. The selfish man would have shrunk in his presence and felt how elevated a principle of action is disinterestedness. He was ever more active, judicious, and even cautious, when others were concerned. The energy of his understanding, and the ardor of his feelings, found their true focus in the interest of others. He was full of affection and humanity — yet he had little of that tenderness which often weakens the best resolves. He neither shrunk from pain himself when it was salutary, nor hesitated in like circumstances to inflict it on others.

He was called from amidst the most active scenes in life to the bed of death. He did indeed desire to live ; for to him the prospect of life presented a scene of usefulness, of tender attachments, and of advancing reputation. Few had less to fear, and few had more to resign ; yet he looked up to Heaven with that humility which fears to trust even the approbation of conscience. He could not approach the throne of his Maker without trembling ; yet with that decision which uniformly accompanied him, he bent his few remaining hours to prepare for death. Religion, that principle so congenial with great and good minds, was here his first resource. By her aid, he was enabled to turn, with resignation and tranquillity, from the endearments of life, to sever the tenderest ties which bound him to this world, and to await his last moments, with a steady and confiding mind.

154. 174. Rev. Otis Rockwood, A. M., graduated at Midd. Col., Vt., 1813, and at the Theol. Sem., Andover, 1817; after which he spent six months in the 1st Cong. Socy. in Charlestown, where he had a call to settle as Colleague Pastor with the Rev. Dr. Morse, and at the same time a call from the 1st Cong. Chh. and Socy. in Lynn. After due deliberation he concluded to accept the latter, and was ordained July 1st, 1818. He found that ancient and venerable chh. in very depressed and disheartening circumstances, being reduced to 40 members, only 8 of whom were males, and the Socy. much embarrassed with debt; and their house of worship so much dilapidated as to be deemed unworthy of repair. During his ministry there of 14 years, the chh. was increased to 130 members—their pecuniary obligations discharged and their house of worship rebuilt. In Dr. "Cooke's Centuries" in Lynn, there is an interesting notice of Mr. Rockwood's ministry in that city, from which the following is an extract: "But the true importance of the work which he did here consisted in breaking the force of the tide which was bearing all to destruction, and beginning to set it an opposite direction. He found here a church having but two praying families, and left it with many. He found few minds evincing an attachment for the doctrines of the cross, and left a church prepared to unite in a successor who gave fearless utterance to those doctrines. He found the church declining in life and strength, and left it in a state of thrift and rapid increase. And he has been honored of God to break the succession of an erroneous and life-depressing ministry, and head a new series of the preachers of the truth, to whose labors God will attach his blessing; and whoever comes in after generations to write the history of this church, and trace events as time will then have developed them, will trace great results to causes which had their spring under his labors. "The honor which the providence of God put upon his ministry was this, that it was the turning point of life to an apparently expiring church. He sacrificed his own interests, and perilled his prospects of a happy settlement in the ministry, to make here what was thought to be the doubtful experiment whether this church could live. Such instances of self-sacrifice on the part of ministers are little thought of. With most it is taken as a first principle that ministers have a selfish motive for every act. And when he declined a call to one of the best churches in the State, that he might unite his fortunes here with an apparently sinking cause, he had no credit for his self-denial: it was even turned to his disadvantage; and many inferred that he must be a small affair if he would consent to labor here with such a forlorn hope of a church. So little do the world, judging others by themselves, appreciate the moral sublime in self-denial. But it matters not. He has not lost his reward. Events in after years will show—they have already begun to show—more good accomplished, that is, more honor achieved, by that self-sacrificing ministry than is ordinarily secured by a ministry in our largest churches. God has honored him by setting him at the head of a many-branching stream of life-giving influence here, where children and children's children will see cause to call him blessed."

The effect of the sea air upon Mr. R.'s health urged him to seek an inland situation, and his pastoral relation was dissolved, July 1st, 1832. He subsequently preached in Hopkinton, in Berkley, and Wayland, and in Canaan, N. Y., where he had invitations to settle. He was at length installed over the 1st Cong. Chh. in S. Woodstock, Ct., where he labored with success till 1844, when his ministerial relation was again dissolved. For several years past he with his family have had their residence in Boston.

24. 188. Joseph Rocket,<sup>4</sup> was sent in early manhood to keep garrison at Oxford, and became enamored with the country, and resolved on settling there. After the dispersion of the French Huguenots and the acquisition of a title to O. by a second company of settlers, he was upon the ground, and on the 5th of Feb., 1715, in the first division of lands, drew 60 acres where Oxford village now stands, and in 1730, a 12 acre lot on the N. side of Great Swamp. He was unfortunate in his location, however rich might have been his soil, for the substratum was too coarse for capillary attraction, and in seasons of unfrequent showers he must have lost his crops. This was probably learned by experience, for his sons settled in other parts of the town, and particularly in the S. E. part. He must have been an acquisition to the strength of the settlement, for his mother was a Twitchell, and "if a Twitchell, strong," said the ballad of his day ; and several of his grd. nephews, to my knowledge, had the strength of two common laborers, coupled with rare activity and moderation of diet. He m. 1. Richard Sanger, if not a German by birth, had a German name, denoting minstrel, which did not occur in England much earlier than his day, and which has not in the English world yet become common. In Germany it may be more ancient than Sangerhausen. Richard Sanger, the progenitor of the New England Sangers, embarked Apl., 1638, at South Hampton, settled as a blacksmith at Sudbury, 1646, took the oath of fidelity 1647, [Barry's His. of Fram.] removed 8, (9mo.) 1649, to Watertown, where he died, Aug. 20, 1690, leaving an estate, the inventory of which, though humble in amount, shows that he had, for his day, the ordinary comforts and conveniences of life. To him and his two adult sons, with three others, was intrusted, during Philip's war, the charge of guarding the mill at Watertown. Richard,<sup>1</sup> w. Mary Rannals, 2d w., Sarah —, r. Watertown, had,

4. 19. Richard,<sup>2</sup> came to Sherborn at the age of 21, with his brother N'athl, to establish the business of blacksmithing. He probably built his house on the North side of the common. A few rods further north, cinders reveal the site of his shop. After passing the customary year of probation, he was approved as a good and wholesome inhabitant, and presented, by a vote of the proprietors, July 1, 1689, with "20 acres of land and town rights in future with themselves; he to bear proportionable charges with them in the town, having no power to sell, let, or give said land for the space of 7 years." He subsequently, and at different times, drew other lots. July 5, 1690, Edward West gave him a deed of 31 acres, i. e. 12 of meadow received by his wife from her father, Daniel Morse, (jun.) and 19 of upland received from the town. This tract was bounded N. by West's land, which separated it from Rev. D. Gookin's; "W. by the road (from the plain), to the Meeting house in part: S. by Jona. and Nath'l Morse's, and by common lands on all other parts." This includes the sight of Elbridge Sanger's buildings.— By common lands must be included the burying-ground which formed a part of the West boundary; for Eleazar Morse in 1722, deeded to "Richard Sanger,<sup>2</sup> 3½ acres, bounded E. by Richard's own land," and "N. with the common land reserved or set apart for the burying place,"* (see Mid. Reg. of Deeds, Lib. 32), "W. by the highway leading from the Plain to the S. part of Sher., and S. by Wm. Barron's, the said land being near the Meeting house." Richard's<sup>2</sup> estate at his death was inventoried at £706, not including town rights and allotments at Douglas. He seems to have been a useful and respected citizen, and an exemplary member of society. To him was committed the sacred charge of taking care of the Meeting house, to which his was much the nearest dwelling. His children were, I. Elizabeth,<sup>3</sup> Ap. 2 or 16, 1693, d. 1775, unm. at Sherborn; II. Mary, Apl. 11, '95, m. Andrew Morse, 1745, d. without issue; III. Hannah, Feb. 7, '97, m. Ephm. Twitchell, of Sherborn, Feb. 9, 1726-7; IV. Esther, Oct. 20, '98, d. 1732, m. John Twitchell, of S., Feb. 2, '20-21, had David and Moses; V. Deborah, Aug. 5, 1701, d. Jan. 10, '27-8; VI. Sarah, Feb. 10, '05, m. Nath'l Holtbrook, Aug. 20, '28, r. Sherborn; 22. 20. VII. Richard,<sup>3</sup> Nov. 4, 1706, d. May 14, '86, recd. to chh. Jan. 23, '85; VIII. Abigail, July 3, 1709, recd. to full communion in chh. Aug. 8, '36, pr. d. unm. IX. David,<sup>3</sup> Feb. 22, 1715, (yeoman) m. Bathsheba Pratt, r. Framingham.

* Richard Sanger<sup>2</sup> having become the proprietor on three sides of this Reservation, probably inclosed it with his own land, as in it few interments had yet been made. The town being interested in two older graveyards, and having no record of the reservation, neglected to fence it, until it came to be regarded as private property. Capt. Samuel Sanger the 1st so regarded it, and repeatedly offered to give the land, if the town would inclose it. But they disregarded the offer, and he, for the sake of decency, inclosed the portion containing monuments, and used it as a private burying place; and it has since, in opposition to the wishes and efforts of his heirs, been sold and subjected to profane trespass. But the sale, though ordered by a Judge of Prob., will be set aside whenever the land is reclaimed, as it can be at any future time. Possession "for no period whatever" can give title to land set apart like this, whose bounds are ascertainable: and if the town has forfeited all moral right, then let them procure an act of the Leg., vacating the land as a cemetery, and give a quit claim to the present occupants. Regard for justice and the peace of posterity may require it.

20. 22. Richard,<sup>3</sup> was a remarkable man. He inherited the combative, mirthful, acquisitive, and persevering characteristics of his mother's race, and excelled them in enterprise. He was brought up to the business of his father, and continued to be styled blacksmith until thirty years of age. Soon after attaining his majority, he purchased of Rev. Daniel Baker, two acres on the west side of the road, opposite his father's land, bounded south and west by Baker, and north by James Coolidge; and the next year commenced building the north half of the Old Sanger House, now occupied by Mr. Joseph Sanger. At the age of 23 he m. Deborah, dg. of Hn. Wm. Rider, by w. Deborah Morse, (see "Mem. of Moses," p. 3,) and at the next town meeting received a certificate of his marriage in the customary form of an election to the office of hogreeve. About this time he seems to have come into possession of the five acre building lot of Rev. Daniel Gookin, now in the first lot on the east side of the way upon the plain north of the meeting house, and for some time to have lived in the Gookin house. This house stood upon an eminence near the north side of the lot, and about twenty rods east of the road. His shop stood between the house and highway. On the death of his father, two thirds of his real estate was assigned to him and his brother David, whom he, in 1735, bought out. He soon after took down the Gookin house, and erected and adjoined it to the south end of the tenement he commenced in 1729. This part of the house was built in 1679, and is 176 years old. Near it may still be seen, in the rear of Eldridge Sanger's house, the Old Gookin Barn, having by repeated demands for sound tenants to new sills, lost half of its lower story.

In 1733, he purchased, for £63, of Edmond Quincy and William Brattell, commissioners for the sale of lands formerly given by the town to Rev. D. Baker, seven acres south of his own land, east of the road from the meeting house to the south end, north of the farm road, and Nathaniel Holbrook's land, and west of N. Holbrook's.

In 1734-5, he bought of Rev. Wm. Cooper and Judith his wife, (the dg. of Chief Justice Sewall), 200 acres, or one half of the Hull Farm; Capt. Joseph Ware purchasing at the same time the other half.

In 1737, he opened a store, which he seems to have left in the hands of another in 1747, when he removed to Boston, and for a short time did a large and lucrative business. The climate disagreeing with the health of his lady, he returned the next year to S., and here traded extensively in merchandise and real estate. He was at that day concerned in land speculations in Maine. He accumulated a large fortune, which he divided among seven children, without reserving enough for protracted old age.

Between 1740 and '67, he served the town ten years as selectman, and often acted as moderator at town meetings. He was a good whig, served on committees to provide for the poor of Boston, in the time of the war, and to report on the services of soldiers employed by S. In 1776, he was the first man placed on the committee of safety with President Locke.

His wife, the daughter of the accomplished surveyor and clerk, Wm. Rider, and the niece of Rev. Joseph Morse, of Stoughton, was a lady of uncommon dignity and excellence. Her library consisted of such works as Willard's Divinity, Flavel's and Tillotson's works, &c.

From the markings in these volumes, I infer that she kept a theological school in the nursery, doubtless from the conviction that doctrine is the only foundation of correct practice. She d. Aug. 15, 1789, aged 79, but her influence survives to this day. Their children were, I. Zedekiah, Nov. 27, 1730, d. Jan. 23, '35-5; II. Deborah, Mar. 4, '32-3, d. Feb. 2, '35-6;

23. 29. Capt. Samuel Sanger,<sup>4</sup> senr., was distinguished for his athletic frame, personal dignity, moral integrity, courage, independence, and energy. During a long period of active life, he bore a conspicuous part in the civil transactions of Sherborn, and was eminently serviceable during the great conflicts for our liberties and the maintenance of the constitution against the rebellion of '87. Then it was, that his appeals, from the moderator's chair, were wont to rouse his townsmen to enthusiasm in their country's cause ; so that no town of its size in this patriotic commonwealth, went before S. in the number of volunteers for the public service, or in promptness in furnishing supplies. To him Pomologists owe the discovery and first cultivation of the incomparable Porter apple. He inherited the ancient Sanger house, kept a small store and tavern, and once entertained Gen. Washington. As a landlord he did much to discourage idleness and excess. No man dared roll at his ninepins between one holiday and another. Gross offenders against decency and good order would hide from his presence, and feel more terror at his rebuke, than at any fulminations from S. pulpit. On the sabbath his bar was locked, and a key of gold could not open it ; yet his rooms were open and fires free during the interim of divine service, while a solemnity befitting the day, reigned throughout the house, and no discourse was entered upon which could interrupt him in his uniform practice of reading the Bible. His children, all by his 2d wife, Abigail Whiting, a lady of eminent piety, were :

- i. Mary,<sup>5</sup> Nov. 6, 1757, bap. June 11, '58, d. Dec. 17, 1819, m. Moses Perry, 3d, of S., and had Nathaniel, of Boston ;

31. 46. Hon. Calvin Sanger,<sup>5</sup> of Sherborn, one of the most distinguished citizens who ever lived in this ancient town, was not born to an independency, nor favored with academical advantages above the youth of his day in the country. His constitution was naturally feeble, and his health too precarious to justify hopes of success in the toilsome pursuits of agriculture, then the only pursuit towards which the emulation of his associates was directed. Under circumstances thus adverse, he passed his minority without any regular initiation for either mechanical, mercantile, or professional employments. But not more wisely adapted to beneficent ends, are nature's irregularities in the physical world, than are the dispensations of Providence to develop talent when and where it is needed. Sherborn would soon want a leader. Her aged counsellor and guide, Daniel Whitney, Esq., was advanced in years. Her social and civil order, which had been preserved with scarcely a temporary interruption, from the arrival of Nicholas Wood and his colony in 1652, would be in danger. Her inhabitants, being an intelligent, strong-minded, and independent yeomanry, would furnish numerous aspirants, with equal claims to office; the political sophistries, and base appeals of Jefferson's pen, to the vilest passions and prejudices, were being circulated; men were taking sides; the political conflict was coming on; and some man of master spirit would soon be needed for the good of all. Such a man could not be expected from abroad. There was nothing to allure him. One must be raised up among them,—a man of patriotism, honesty, and responsibility, of intelligence, modesty, and good address; and above all, one who could give the strongest reasons.

Young Sanger was endowed with the natural gifts, and, in consequence of feeble health, subjected to the right discipline, to fit him for the service which his fellow citizens would require. Besides possessing the rare gift of an uncommon share of common sense, he had an active and discriminating mind, a tenacious memory, and a remarkably sound judgment. He was fond of books. He treasured up facts in history and political economy, and investigated the political questions of the day, which enabled to form and defend correct opinions. He acquired so much knowledge of law, as made him the Lawyer and draftsman of his community: and had he devoted himself to the legal profession, his judgment was so good, and his memory so capacious and ready, he could hardly have failed of eminence.

As his health was improved by travelling, he was much abroad in distant States, and often in cultivated society, to which he owed, among other acquisitions, easy and polished manners, and the happy use of language. By intercourse with senior and maturer minds, he escaped every symptom of that vanity which is so liable to sprout in situations admitting few comparisons. Thus was he formed; and in 1806, as soon as Sherborn had need, they almost by acclamation placed him at the head of her public affairs.

When a company of cavalry was first raised in S. and vicinity, he was elected Capt., and subsequently Col. of cavalry.

In 1806, he was chosen to represent S. in the General Court, and for 30 years after, re-elected almost without opposition, as often as he would consent to be a candidate, until he was advanced to the Senate; and the records of the Legislature attest the high and continued confidence of that body in his wisdom and fidelity.

He was appointed a magistrate about 1806, and acted in that capacity until his death.

For more than 40 years he served the town in various minor offices, freely devoting a large amount of time and labor. He was Town Clerk in 1800, and for 25 years he kept her books in a model style. The plainness of his chirography, considering its range, will enroll him as a favorite with antiquarians. In his care for the public, he was vigilant, self-denying, and persevering, consulting the interest of the future as well as of the present. His earliest efforts at trade were directed to the purchase of soldiers' rights, choice tracts of land in Western N. Y., and the township of Sangerville, and a part of Garland in Maine. In 1805, he opened a store in Sherborn, and for a series of years, did an extensive business, and established a high reputation for honesty, fairness, and responsibility. During this period, above 20 farms in S., beside others in conterminous towns, passed through his hands; and never, during this time, nor, on inquiry, since, have I been able to hear of those who ever charged him with fraud, or any act inconsistent with fair and honorable traffic.

With him originated the first cotton manufactory in Framingham; and other enterprises, in the benefits of which, individuals and the public have largely participated. In all business transactions his honesty and judgment were universally acknowledged. Such confidence was reposed in him, that he was wont to be the first chosen to arbitrate differences at home and abroad, and he was sometimes associated in such courts with the most eminent lawyers in Mass., where immense sums were in dispute.

Col. Sanger possessed a large and liberal spirit. He never forgot the imperfect rights of the unfortunate, nor waited for their cries to pain him to action. He anticipated their wants, sympathized with their feelings, and gave without ostentation, not in stinted measures, but heaped, and in proportion at least to his ample means. His history supplies no argument for agrarianism. All had reason to rejoice that he was rich, and all, honorably dismissed from his employ, were his fast friends. The old adage that familiarity breeds disgust is founded in the fact, that human nature is so corrupt, that it loses more than it gains by inspection. But in reference to Col. Sanger, it is evident that those who knew him best, esteemed him most; and none but an envious man can deny him great benevolence and extensive usefulness. In his domestic relations, he was true, affectionate, indulgent, and kind. He left a widow still living, and eight children, six of whom survive in honorable prosperity, testifying by their refinement and beneficence to the wisdom and care of a father in their nature and education. He had,

1. Edmund Sheffield, was of Roxbury, 1644-5, where he m., Apl. 17, 1644, Mary Wooddy, and of Braintree, 1646-67, where he m. 2d, Sarah Marsh, 5 (7), 1662. In 1672, he, in company with his brother, Wm. S., purchased of Lt. Joshua Fisher, the grantee, 600 acres at Chabboquasset, E. of Winthrop's grant, but does not appear to have ever occupied it. He had, i. John, Mar. 6, 1644-5; ii. Edmond, 15 (10), '46; iii. Ann, 1 (9), '49; iv. Isaac, 15 (1), '51; v. Mary, 14 (4), '53; vi. Mathew, 26 (3), '55; vii. Samuel, 26 (9), '57; viii. Sarah, 4 (6), '60; ix. Mary, 26 (4), '63; x. Nathaniel, 10 (11), '65; xi. A daughter, 23 (4), '67.

7. Wm. Sheffield and w. Mary —, were of Braintree in 1660, and began the first settlement, of H., 1673, on what is now called the Stedman place.

On the breaking out of Philip's war, he is supposed to have retreated to Portsmouth, N. H., from whence he afterwards came to S., where land was assigned him, 27 (11), 1682. Of the land which he purchased with his brother, of Lt. Fisher, he had obtained no deed in 1688, Lt. F. having d. 10 (6), 1672, immediately after the sale, and before completing him a deed; and, not knowing how to proceed in the case, the poor man was in much trouble, and "on a training day in Sherborn, Nov. 22, 1688, the following petition of Wm. Sheffield was presented "to ye fathers, with all the inhabitants of Sherborn." "Wm. Sheffield, of Sherborn, the aged, your humble petitioner, doe humbly intreat you to show your love to me, to give, grant or confirm my land which I bought of Lt. Fisher, of Dedham, to confirm to me and mine, I shall be very thankful to you forever; for I am like a man having myself half in the mire, and want to be holpen, help I pray you and damnifie no man with it." In answer to this "request, the inhabitants then present, did generally by their vote, grant and confirm to him the said land, soe far as they had any interest in it." He seems, by an order of the Court, to have afterwards obtained his deed; but the Indian title to this tract he had extinguished in 1675. In 1686, he was rated the 3d highest in S., and d. Dec. 6, 1700. He had

"In an uncommonly sickly time among his people, when he was almost constantly, night and day, visiting and praying with the sick, sometimes for whole nights together, being, as he said, willing to spend and be spent in the service of the souls of his people, he composed his last sermon from John 17: 4. 'I have glorified thee on the earth; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.' This sermon was published after his death, with the following preface, by Rev. Messrs. Porter, of S., and Peabody, of Natick. [Fitch's Dis.]

"The great esteem which his own people, as well as those in the neighboring towns, had of the author for his great sweetness of temper, his good humor, his instructive conversation, his exemplary piety, his great diligence and faithfulness in the work of the ministry, his prudence in all his conduct, his uncommon and excelling gift in prayer, and his orthodox, judicious and fervent preaching,—all which, and many more desirable qualifications were well known to shine in him,—have caused many in Holliston, and some in other towns to urge the publication of this sermon."

Dorothea Babcock, ? from Milton, and grd. dg. of Nicholas W., by w. Mary, pr. Williams, from Roxb., and through her succeeded to the inheritance of the E. half of the ancient Wood farm, now owned and occupied by Maj. John Goulding, a descendant. Capt. W. was an able, enterprising man, and much respected citizen. He served as cornet of horse in an expedition against the Indians, and was selectman 11 years. About 1710, he, in company with Cpt. Joseph Morse, built the first grist mill on Sewell's brook, and his slave, Duty, being a better miller than Capt. M. could supply, secured him all the custom, and induced my ancestor to sell out, and the privilege has remained to this day in the family of Capt. W. The ancient Hull farm having descended through Hull's only dg., Mrs. Judge Sewell, to her dg. Judith, the wife of Rev. Dr. Cooper, of Boston, Capt. W. in 1734-5, purchased of them, for —, the the S. E. half of the same, consisting of 250 acres, Richard Sanger purchasing at the same time, for an equal sum, the N. W. half. Capt. W. proceeded immediately, it is believed, to erect the venerable mansion yet standing on the N. bank of Sewell's Brook, upon the W. side of the road to E. Med., known from a magnificent Elm, planted about the same time by his slave, Duty, moved into it and there spent the remainder of his days. His remains were interred in the desecrated burying-ground at the S. end of S., where his elegant headstone may be found lying in the vicinity of his grave, if not yet thrown into Charles R. Josephus Wheaton, Rev., b. Mar. 16, 1788, s. of Joseph W., Esq., of Rehoboth, a descendant fr. Rev. — W., the 2d pastor of the Bap. chh. of Swansey, "early evinced a strong thirst for knowledge," and by his own energy and perseverance, obtained a thorough education. He grad. with distinguished honor, in 1812, at B. U., where he continued his residence, studied theology, and at the same time, had charge of the Acad. connected with the Univ., was tutor in the same, 1813--15; licensed, 1814; ordained pastor at H., Dec. 6, 1815; and d. of a consumption, Feb. 4, 1825. He was by nature, a most amiable man, endowed with fine sensibilities, rare sagacity and self-control. He penetrated into the arcana of whatever he made his study, and could communicate his knowledge with readiness and propriety. As a tutor, he excelled in gaining the esteem of undergraduates, and in rendering them thorough in their studies, and circumspect in their deportment; and had he chosen the profession of a teacher, few of his cotemporaries could have excelled him at the head of a college. But this was to him a secondary calling. From the date of brightened hopes in the pardoning mercy of God, his heart and understanding were fixed upon preaching the Gospel as the highest pursuit in which men or angels can engage ; and from that time he devoted all his energies to become a workman that would not need to be ashamed. He had previously pursued a variety of studies, having no reputed direct connection with the duties of the sacred office, yet "well calculated" to prevent that hostility to science, which belittles not a few otherwise valuable men, and "to enlarge his sphere of ministerial usefulness."

His various attainments, soundness in doctrine and evident consecration—his appearance as a speaker, and his plain, yet winning address, fitted him peculiarly to harmonize and restrain the then discordant elements of H., and to inculcate and defend those truths, which alone could ensure permanent peace. For such reasons, H. was proposed to him, and he to H. ; and he was engaged to supply the pulpit, before he resigned his tutorship. After his settlement, the chh. had rest, and was edified.

"In his intercourse with his people, Mr. Wheaton's wisdom was evangelical ; first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated. His conciliating deportment, amiable temper, and dignified, yet unaffected manners, won the affections of those who were not always pleased with his theological sentiments ;" which closely resembled those of his worthy predecessor, and embraced the peculiarities of Calvinism to which the term Hopkinsian is applied by way of designation. He was completely successful in uniting and harmonizing this people at a time when they were found not a little discordant in opinion and feeling ; and enjoyed, in an unusual degree, their respect, confidence, and affection, from the commencement to the close of his ministerial life.

"Mr. W. was a student as well as a pastor. What time the more active duties of his office would permit, he was with his book and his pen. He excelled in an intimate acquaintance with the classics. His literary character, and eminent talents as an instructor of youth, made his house a favorite resort of young men fitting for college, or perfecting their education."

"As a preacher, Mr. W. was, what he principally aimed to be, instructive. Yet he was also an animated and animating preacher. His whole soul appeared in his work. To be eloquent was not his object ; and yet he was occasionally eloquent to a high degree. His style was worthy the man who wrote, and of the important subjects on which it was employed. He seemed to think with Addison, that good thoughts ought to be well dressed. As it respects the delivery of his discourses, it was natural," though uncommonly rapid ; "and his animation, united with the rich materials of his sermons, made him a highly acceptable speaker."

"His piety was ardent ; and humility was a distinguishing feature of it. His trials with respect to his own piety, though not without example, were peculiarly severe. But his sun was not always overcast ; he hoped in God ; resigned himself with confidence to his disposal ; and often had joy and peace in believing." [Chris. Magaz.]

During his ministry the present orthodox chh. was built and consecrated. On the latter occasion Mr. W. delivered a discourse, which was published—"a lasting monument of the man and the event." He published several other sermons, a work on School Education, and one often referred to, on the Equality of Mankind, and the Evils of Slavery. He m. 1st, Mary Ide, Jan., 1816, who d. Nicholas Wood. In the early forest of Woods in New England, appeared

1. Nicholas, of Concord, where he had Abigail, 10 (2), 1642;

2. Nicholas, of Dorchester, in 1640, who, in company with And. Pitcher, took the freeman's oath, June 2, 1641, and for a series of years occupied as tenant, the extensive farm of Hon. John Glover, in what is now Milton.

Here a gross insult was offered to his wife by an Indian, from about Providence, which the Government noticed, by sending to Meantanomo, Sep. 8, 1642, a demand that the offender should be sent to them to be punished, "not with death, but some other punishment."

The Sachems, Sacanonoco, of Pawtuxet, and Pumhom of Shawomock (now Warwick, R. I.) having, on 22 (4mo.) 1643, formally placed themselves and country under the jurisdiction of Mass., Nicholas Wood, with Henry Adams, senr., of Braintree, Henry Adams, junr., and Tho. Samuel, John and Christopher Adams, and above twenty others, were induced to petition the General Court, who, Oct. 1, 1645, granted them 10,000 acres West of Narragansett Bay, to be "set out for their town," and resolved that the number of 7 actual settlers should have power to admit or keep out whom they should think good; that the General Court should write letters to Benedict Arnold to compound with Pumhom at the easiest rate he could, for his right in any improved ground; and that the petitioners should dispose of the houses built upon said ground [by the persecuted Gortonites], and pay to such as built them, what the Court shall hereafter appoint, adding for their encouragement, "if they shall see cause so to do." [Col. Rec. and Drake's Book of Indians.]

The iniquity of this enterprise, which no doubt originated with the intolerant and grasping Winthrop & Co., was probably discovered, and voluntarily relinquished; or the prior sale of Shawomock, by Miantonomo to the Earl of Warwick, and by the Earl to Rev. Samuel Gorton and associates, compelled the Government to revoke their grant, and yield to Gorton his prior rights; for neither Nicholas W. nor his associate grantees ever took permanent possession; nor does it appear that they ever received indemnification for the relinquishment of the grant.

On 8 (3mo.) 1652, Nicholas W., with Tho. Holbrook and Andrew Pitcher, all of D., received of Richard Parker, of Boston, a deed for 535 acres of meadow and upland, "lying in the woods on the W. side of Charles River, 3 ms. from Natick, lying between the land of Capt. Robert Kayne on the S. side, and Mr. Richard Browne, of Watertown, in some part on the S. side, also; by Charles R. on the E., [and a rocky point, now called the neck, running into the R.]; and by common woods on the W."

This tract now includes most of the farms of Mj. John Goulding, Jona. Holbrook, Martin Barbour, Walter Barbour, David Daniels, Joseph and Jedh. Leland, Dexter Amsden, and Charles How. It seems probable that Goodman Wood had taken possession, and made improvements prior to the date of this deed, for an act of the Gen. Court, passed three weeks after, directing the laying out of Natick, ordered the Eastern line to be extended up the river as far as his house; and he had a child, b. pr. at Milton, recorded at Medfield, the nearest incorporated town, as early as Jan. 3, 1651. He erected his house 13 rods S. of Holbrook's mills, where the road now runs, and founded it upon a rock; as if he would say to succeeding generations of the town he first planted, build upon the rock of ages. He seems to have been a very responsible and enterprising man. He signed the first petition for the incorporation of S.; was a member of the chh., and for his day, possessed of a large property. He left no male posterity, who perpetuated his name, but his blood has mingled extensively with families of other names; and from him have descended many ornaments of literature, science and religion. His grave, marked by a mound, more than that of any other founder of S., merits an imperishable monument.

WILL OF NICHOLAS WOOD.

In the year of our Lord, 1669, on the 16th day of January, I, Nicholas Wood, living at my farme in Natick Bounds, having been for some considerable time under the afflicting hand of God, and thereby very weak and low in body, but of perfect remembrance, thanks be to God, and considering that the end of man's life is very uncertain, and forasmuch as I am persuaded that it is my duty to provide for death, that I be not unprovided when I shall approach [my Judge] I have thought it good for the quiet of my mind, to ordain and make this my last will and testament, in manner and form as followeth:—First, I having most and chiefest care of my soule, do humbly commend the same into the hands of Almighty God, from whom I first received [it], trusting in and through the mercy of Jesus Christ, my Saviour, that my said soule, after it be departed out of this my body, shall immediately inherit life and glory; and as for my body, I commit it to the earth from whence it was taken to be Christianly buried at the discretion of my Executors. And as concerning my worldly goods, which God of his mercy have given me, I do dispose of them as followeth:—First, I will and bequeath unto Anna, my now loving wife, the thirds of all my houses and lands at my farm, which I formerly bought of Mr. Parker, with all her wearing clothes and linen, and £17 a year out of the produce of the farm and my other lands, until my son, Jona., come to one-and-twenty years of age, for the bringing up of my two younger children. Item, I will and bequeath unto my son, Jona. Wood, all those lands, both upland and meadow, which I formerly bought of Mr. Parker, being the farme which I now live upon, with all the buildings upon it; 4 acres of English pasture, lying on the N. side of the brooke, that runneth by my house, excepted; allsoe I give unto the above said Jona., ten acres of meadow land out of that parcell of meadow, which I formerly bought of Lt. Fisher, of Dedham, as it shall be set out to him by my executors, at the south line of the said meadow next unto Mr. Jno. Hull's farm: allsoe I give unto the said Jona., one pair of oxen, one cow, one young horse, two ewes, one-half of all my tackling belonging to my teame, one-half of all my wearing clothes, and one-fifth part of all my household stuff. Item, I will and bequeath unto my son, Eleazer Wood, all those lands, meadow and upland, which I formerly bought of Lt. Fisher, of Dedham, adjoining to my other farme above said, the ten acres of meadow land given to my son, Jona., above said, only excepted. Allsoe I give unto the said Eleazer, four acres of English pasture, which lyeth on the North side of the Brook above excepted: allsoe I give unto the said Eleazer, one pair of oxen, one cow, one young horse, three ewes, one-half of all my tackling belonging to my teame, one-half of all my wearing clothes, and one-fifth part of my household stuff. Item, I will and bequeath unto my daughter, Mehetabel Wood, all that my meadow land, lying in the town of Milton, in the salt marsh, provided that what it shall amount to more than £60, upon a just and due valuation by indifferent men, shall be returned into the hands of my executors. Moreover, I give unto the said Mehetabel, two cows, two ewes, and one-fifth part of all my household stuff.

Item, I will and bequeath unto my daughter, Abigail Wood, all those my lands lying and being in the town of Roxbury, both upland and meadow, and what it shall fall short of £60, upon a just and due valuation by indifferent men, it shall be made up by [my] executors out of my other estate. Moreover, I give unto the said Abigail two cows, two ewes, and one-fifth part of all my household stuff.

Item, I give unto my daughter, Bethya, all those houses and lands that I have in Watertowne, which I had with my last wife, after her decease, provided that what they shall amount to more than £60, upon a just and due valuation by indifferent men, shall be returned to my executors. Moreover, I give unto the said Bethya, two cows, three sheep, and one-fifth part of all my household stuff. And further, my will is, that if it should please the Lord to take away my son Jona. before he come to one-and-twenty years of age, being in a single condition, that then my son Eleazer shall be sole heir to his portion, paying out to all his sisters then living, ten pounds apiece, which said payments shall be made as followeth, viz., ten pounds to his sister Mary Thurston within one year after the decease of ye said Jona, and so annually until he have paid to each of them ten pounds; or if it should please God to take away my son Eleazer by death, before he shall come to the age of one-and-twenty years of age, that then my son Jona. shall be sole heir to his estate, paying out thereof six pounds apiece to all his sisters then living, which said payments shall be as followeth, viz., £6 to his sister, Mary Thurston, within one year after the decease of his brother, and so annually until such time as he have paid each of them £6; or if it should please God to take away any of my three daughters, now in their minority, before they be of age to dispose of what I have left, then being in a single condition, that then their portions shall be equally divided between their brothers and sisters then living.

Item, I will to my grandchild, Abraham Harding, the son of my dear daughter, Hannah Harding, now deceased, the sum of £5, to be paid him by my son Jona. when the said Abraham shall be one-and-twenty years of age.

And as for the residue of my estate, bills, bonds, debts, or moveables, with the produce of my farme, and my other lands, the £17 a year above mentioned, for the bringing up of my two younger children, except unbequeathed, and not given in this my last will and testament, my debts being paid, and funeral expenses, with all other necessary charges defraidd, my mind and will is, that it should be equally divided between my two sons and my six daughters, when my son, Jona. Wood come to one-and-twenty years of age. And considering that the future as well as the present good of my family consists as much in their peace and love, as in what I have done for them; and therefore as it have been so, at present is, as my duty, so my care, God assisting, so to leave things as might most conduce to the end, and therefore my will is, that if any of my children, one or other, son or daughter, shall be discontented with what I have here done, and shall thereby occasion any uncomfortable agitations or distractions, or suits at law, thereby to trouble my executors, notwithstanding their faithful endeavors to perform the trust committed to them, according to my true intent and purpose, their so doing shall stand as a just plea and bar against them, whosoever they be, for having any right to any part of my estate left, and the portion above willed them, shall be equally divided between the rest of my children.

Item, I constitute, appoint and ordain Anna, my now loving wife, and John Thurston, jun., and Tho. Bass, both my sons-in-law, all executors of this my last will and testament, to ye intent that they shall see the same effectually performed, according to my true intent and meaning in the same.

Item, I nominate and appoint my loving friend, George Barbour, of "Medfield," suprouisar of this my last will and testament, desiring him, that he would be aiding and assisting to my executors in the execution thereof; and I do hereby utterly revoke all other wills made by me at any time, with all gifts, legacies, whatever, by me at any time made; and in token that this is my last will and testament, I have hereunto put my hand and seal this 18 of ye 4, 1669, in the presence of

HISTORY OF SHERBORN.

Sherborn is situated between 17 and 22 miles of W. S. W. of Boston, having Medway on the S., Holliston and Ashland on the W., Framingham on the N., Natick on the N. and N. E., and Dover and Medfield on the E. From the two last S. is separated by Charles River. The township now contains about 10,000 acres, and her extreme length from N. to S. is six miles and thirty rods, and from E. to W. 4 miles and 154 rods.

The peninsula included between Concord and Charles Rivers,* and a line from Saxonville to S. Natick, across the centre of which the original township extended, and which now embraces Sherborn, Medway, Holliston, Hopkinton, and large portions of Bellingham, Milford, Ashland, Framingham and Natick, was originally occupied by the Nipmuck Indians,† and formed the S. E. part of their country. They were the first inland tribe with whom the English formed an acquaintance. When first reported to some from Plymouth in 1621, they were an independent nation, governed by a squaw-sachem, who resided near Wachusett mountain. They possessed most of the present counties of Middlesex and Worcester. On the N. and W. their country is supposed to have extended still farther. In 1647 they had difficulty about a chief, and, in their anarchy, bands of them seem to have attempted the preservation of their nationality. Tradition favors the belief that one body of them set up for independence, and erected their Stannocks W. of the straits in Sherborn, and that, long after, in consequence of a dispute about the location of the S. End school-house, and of the secession of the W. half of the district, and the erection of another school-house, the name was revived and applied in reproach to the new house, and at length to the whole of the new district. This band of the tribe are supposed to have had their principal residence at Mucksquit. Other portions of the nation also set up for independence, so that the Nipmucks at one time had no less than five distinct chiefs. These divisions were probably a death-blow to their power and importance: for, "having no [single] chief of their own, they were at liberty to unite with other tribes." Those of the S. W. united with the Narragansetts; but those * These rivers rise so near each other in the W. part of Hopkinton, that a snow bank on the intervening ridge might supply water for both fountains.

† All Indian deeds to tracts of this country were signed by members of that tribe, except a quit-claim by Josias to Medfield, while including Medway. Josias was the grandson of Chickatawbut, who resided on Neposet R., and was subject to Massasoit, in 1621, while the Nipmucks seemed to have been independent. Both tribes at a later day were called the Massachusetts.

occupying our peninsula and further N. became the allies or subjects of the great Massasoit, and were induced by his son and successor, Philip, to join in his disastrous war upon the English.

Previous to this, Eliot had preached to them in their language, and very small congregations of them had been collected at Natick, Grafton, Hopkinton, Dudley, Marlboro' and Groton, most of whom relapsed, joined King Philip in the war of 1675, and miserably perished. The last body of them remaining together in force sufficient to cause alarms, resided in Rutland. Of the remainder, who professed to welcome Christianity, enough has been written. How long they had inhabited here, cannot be conjectured. Throughout the peninsula have been discovered stone arrows, knives, hatchets, pestles, chisels, &c., attesting to the remote presence and barbarism of their predecessors. These have not been found equally dispersed. In some localities the greater number discovered point out the scenes of their encampments and battles; and especially on the S. W. side of Winthrop's Lake, where they were gathered in such quantities by my great-grandfather and sons, as to induce the belief that one of the petty tribes, into which the Nipmucks finally divided, were located here when instruments of stone were dropped in exchange for those of iron and steel; and that here stood the Indian town of Mucksquit.* After the grant of Medway to the proprietors of Medfield in 1650 and 1659, a body of the Nipmucks resided within its territory, and, notwithstanding the deed of Josias, of the Massachusetts tribe, acknowledging the grant of his grandfather Chickatawbut, and confirming to Medfield her entire territory, it is highly probable the Nipmucks continued to claim all W. and N. of Charles River, and that their claim was at length partially acknowledged, though I have met with no Indian deeds to prove it; for a band of them resided in the unimproved part of M. in 1698, and probably later; and such of them as finally retired to Natick, continued in their descendants, within my own recollection, to claim the right of cutting broomsticks and making basket-stuff in M.; and I was told by my father, who was remarkably curious in such matters, and accurately informed in the history of Med., that "such was the agreement, and that neither he nor his neighbors had any right to forbid them." Thus, it is presumed, conflicting claims to M. were compromised. But in reference to Sherborn lands, the rightful claimants first appeared and were satisfied. Deeds were taken of the Nipmucks to all parts of the original and present town.

*This name was applied as a term of reproach to the N. W. quarter of Medway, but by most of the early settlers, it was repudiated, pushed N. and E., and confined to a tract scarcely larger than my ancestor's farm. Several circumstances must have invited the Indian to pitch here rather than elsewhere on the peninsula. It was near its territorial centre, bordering on its largest and most central lake. Here is a S. E. declivity and several moraines that offered sheltered situations for his wigwams on the N. E.; the shore of the lake is here bold, and indented with narrow bays and inlets, to afford facilities for hunting and fishing, launching and loading his canoes; here herring and shad, which then ascended to the place, were stopped;—a few rods W. was an elevated ridge for watching the flight of game, and, on three sides, were natural meadows to attract it; and from this place, during vernal and autumnal floods, he could descend in his canoe to Bogistow pond and Charles River, through marshes and meadows teeming with fowl, or by the portage of his canoe, one-third of a mile W. he could glide down Wennakeening brook to the same river, and on its current visit Populatic pond, pass through the Broad meadows, land at Bogistow pond, pack home his game or, on the next flood, return by water.

The exploration of their lands by the English probably commenced with the discovery of their tribe in 1621; for, in 1631, when Winthrop & Co. ascended Prospect Hill in Waltham, he "saw the whole Nipmuck country." In 1643 this part was so well known, that the G. Court did not hesitate to encourage its settlement by grants to individuals. These grants, which were multiplied until the entire district was incorporated into towns, conveyed to the grantees only the rights secured to the colony by charter from King James I, who, by right of discovery, claimed the entire country, to the exclusion not of the aborigines, whatever other sovereigns had done, but of other nations, and of the independent jurisdiction of colonists. Such grants never interfered with the perfect right of the Indians to such lands as they had improved, nor denied their imperfect rights to such as remained in a state of nature, and over which they had chanced to be the first to roam. On the contrary, the grantees were required to extinguish by purchase the Indian claims, which were doubtless rights with reference to other Indians who subsisted by hunting, but mere claims of doubtful right in reference to such as would denude and till the soil. The grantees, or their representatives, as will be seen, respected the condition of their grants. All Indian deeds were not recorded. Enough, however, have been found to justify the belief that they paid the Indian to his full satisfaction for every acre they took, and such a price, too, that had he invested a fraction of it in an axe, a spade, and a hoe, and obeyed an obvious law of nature, illustrated and enforced by the example of his new neighbors, he would have quickly attained to comforts unknown to him in his savage state, while in the occupancy of all his lands.

The following grants occur on the records of the General Court viz. :—In 1643, to Mr. [Rev.] John Allen, of Dedham, was granted 200 acres in the woods W. of Chs. R., now in the N. E. part of Med., owned and occupied by Cpt. Eleazer and Dea. Paul Daniels.

Oct. 23, 1649, to Cpt. Robert Kayne [of Bos.] 1,074 do. of meadow and upland upon Pawsett alias Pocassett hill, beyond Dedham Village [Medfd.], bounded S. by Mr. John Allen's farm; S. by E. and E. and N. E. by Charles R.; N. and N. W. and W. by waste lands. See p. 23.

At the same date, to Richard Brown [of Watertown] 200 acres; bounded on the S. and S. W. by Kayne's land; on the E. by Charles R. ?; on the N. W. [pr. N. E.] by Richard Parker; and on the N. W. by waste lands. See p. 161.

At the same time to Richard Parker [of Bos.] 435 acres, bounded S. by Brown's; S. E. by Chs. R.; E. by the upland running into the River; and on the N. W. the W. and S. W. by waste land; and confirmed to him 100 acres more, bought of the Surveyor General. His lot "was to continue so far on the River, taking in the meadow on both sides as lyeth on the E. side of the path going from Pocassett Hill to Natick." See p. 261.

About the same time, and before Natick was incorporated, was granted to some one 500 acres, including Sewell's meadow and the upland N. and E. and S. E. of the same, which was owned and improved by Cpt. John Hull of Bos. prior to 1674.

1656, to Simon Bradstreet was laid out 800 do. [granted before Natick was laid out], bounded E. by Chs. R. and situated E. and N. and N. W. of Farm Lake. See p. 178.

May 26, 1659, to Capt. Eleazer Lusher 250 do., the S. angle thereof lying near Medfield new grant, and the N. angle near the S. W. angle of Natick bounds [the land on which the central village of Holliston is built]; also to him 12 acres of meadow in two parcels beyond the N. W. angle, lying on the brook Wennakeening, [Chicken Br.,] which Lusher sold to Henry Adams of Medf'd 15 (15) 1660; and which was afterward owned by Col. Samuel Brown, of Salem, and Judge Sewell. See p. 69 and 243.

May 11, 1659, was laid out to Dean Winthrop, s. of Gov. John W., and to Francis Vernon, 700 acres as it abutteth upon Medfd. line, in part towards the S., and a stony ridge in part, and Bogistow brook in part towards the E. and S. E., and upon a pond (Winthrop's) in part toward the W., and upon waste lands on all other parts. This was purchased and extensively improved by Capt. John Goulding. See p. 91 and 174.

1658, to Tho. Holbrook was granted 50 acres, and he purchased 43 more, making up the "upland running into the River" at the Narrows E. of Parker's grant. See p. 140.

1658, to Mr. Wm. Colburne of Bos., and laid out in 1660, 300 acres in the wilderness beyond Medfd. adjoining unto the E. side of Nicholas wood," now situated between Maj. Goulding's and the Farm Bridge.

1662, to Col. Wm. Brown, 500 acres on the S. side of Sudbury R. at Cold Spring, on which stands Ashland village, which was measured out in running the N. line of Sherborn, and afterwards annexed to Hopk., and afterwards owned and improved by Col. Jones.

1664. 27, (3) to Lt. Joshua Fisher of Dedham, 300 acres upon Mdfd. line towards the S., and Tyng's farm toward the N., Sheffield's farm towards the W., and an acute angle towards the E. This land he seems to have sold to Nicholas Wood. He appears to have previously received a grant of 900 or 500 do. W. of this grant, which he had before sold to Edmond and Wm. Sheffield.

About the same time, to Edward Tyng, a committee of the G. C. recommended that 250 acres be granted, which he doubtless received, N. E. of Bogistow Br., and now situated S. of the late Wm. Leland's, or Horatio Gardner's.

1664. 28 (8) to John Parker, 150 acres now in H.

Other grants, and one of Hopper's farm of 280 do. in the W. of H., were also granted prior to 1674. These grants were early sold to actual settlers, who extinguished the Indian claims as they found claimants or chiefs empowered to make conveyances. Sheffield purchased in 1675, 500 acres of John Awasamog, now including Doct. Fisk's farm and the Stedman place. Others united in procuring a common quit-claim, as the following transcript from Suff. Reg. of Deeds will show.

To all Christian People to whom this present Deed of sale shall come, greeting. Know ye that we, Waban, John Awasamog, Peter Ephraim, Piamboho, John Magus, Andrew Pittmee, & Great John, natives & natural descendants of the ancient inhabitants & proprietors of the lands lying in about the town of Sherborne within the Massachusetts colony of New England, for ourselves as principalls, & in behalf of the other Indian claimers of said lands, being thereto impowered by them, for & in consideration of the summe of Two and Twenty Pounds current money of New England, to us in hand at and before the Ensealing hereof, well & truly paid by the several persons hereafter named, viz., John Hull, Esq., of Boston, Capt. Wm. Gerrish, [successor to Mr. Richard Parker, late of the same place, dece'd,] Daniel Morse sen., Hopestill Lealand & Margaret Lealand, [joint Executors of the last will of Henry Lealand dec'd,] John Hill, Tho. Breck, Tho. Holbrooke, Benj. Bullard, Joseph Twitchell & Joseph Morse, all of Sherborn aforesaid, in proportion according to the several tracts, or parcels of land, herein to them granted, the receipt whereof we do hereby acknowledge to our full content and satisfaction, have granted, bargained, sold, released, enfeoffed & confirmed, & by these presents do fully, freely, & absolutely grant, bargain, sell, enfeoffe, release & confirm unto the persons above named, all these tracts or parcells of land lying in or about the Towne of Sherborn aforesaid, now possessed by or heretofore taken up or granted to them & every of them, viz.: unto John Hull, Esq., lands in severall parcells, estimated at six hundred acres, be they more or lesse; unto Capt. Wm. Gerish, six hundred acres, more or lesse; unto Hopestill & Margaret Lealand, two hundred acres, more or lesse; unto Daniel Morse sen., six hundred acres, more or lesse; unto John Hill, two hundred & fifty acres, more or lesse; unto Tho. Breck, one hundred acres, more or lesse; unto Thomas Holbrooke, three hundred acres, more or lesse; unto Benjamin Bullard, one hundred & fifty acres, more or lesse; unto Joseph Twitchell, one hundred acres, more or lesse; unto Joseph Morse, one hundred acres, more or lesse, both upland and meadow grounds within the said severall tracts or parcells; together with all and singular, the wayes, rights, libertys, pasturages, herbage, comonage, feedings, rivers, waters, ponds, springs, pools, fowling, fishing & hunting thereunto belonging, & all woods, underwoods, trees, and timber whatsoever thereupon standing, lying or growing; and all the estate, right, titles, interest, use, propriety, possession, claime & demand whatsoever of the Indians or either of them, of, in, or to the said lands & premises, & every of them.

To have & to hold the above granted tracts or parcels of land above mentioned, with the rights, libertys, priviledges & appurtenances thereof, unto the said John Hull, William Gerrish, Daniel Morse, sen., Hopestill & Margaret Lealand, John Hill, Thomas Breek, Thomas Holbrooke, Benjamin Bullard, Joseph Twitchell & Joseph Morse, respectively, & their respective heirs & assigns forever; and we, Waban, John Awasamog, Peter Ephraim, Piamboho, John Magus, Andrew Pittimee & Great John, for ourselves, our heirs, execu's, admin's, & successors, & for & in behalf of the other Indian claimers of said land, being by them impowered thereunto, do hereby covenant, promise & grant to & with the said John Hull, William Gerrish, Daniel Morse, sen., Hopestill & Margaret Lealand, John Hill, Thomas Breek, Thomas Holbrooke, Benjamin Bullard, Joseph Twitchell, & Joseph Morse, their heirs & assignes, that they & every of them, shall & may, from time to time, & at all times, forever hereafter, lawfully, peaceably & quietly have, hold, occupie, possess, & enjoy their said respective parcells of land, improved or unimproved, with all rights, libertys, privileges & appurtenances thereunto belonging, without the least let, denial, reclaime, hinderance, suite, trouble, eviction or expulsion, of us or either of us, our or either of our heires, execu's, admin's, successors or assignes, & of all other Indian or Indians whomsoever, claiming the same or any part or parcell thereof; we having full power, good right & lawful authority to release & confirm the said lands unto the above named persons, their heires, & assignes forever. In witness whereof we have hereunto put our hands & seales, this Twelfth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand six hundred eighty & two, Anno qr. R. R. Caroli Secundi.

Memorandum: It is agreed, before the signing & sealing hereof, that grant & deed of sale is not to be understood to abridge the Indians from fishing and fowling in or upon the pond or rivers within this tract of land above mentioned, according as the law of the country gives liberty as well to the English as Indians.

Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of us,

This deed legally acknowledged by the parties that signed and sealed the same this 12th day of July, 1682, before Daniel Gookin, Senr., Assistant.

Entered Aug., 1682, Js. Addington, Clre.

This deed of 3000 acres to the grantees and their representatives covered none of the other lands included in the township. But these were afterwards purchased, and no doubt of the same representatives of the Nipmucks, for I find upon the Proprietor's Records of a later date, a transcript of the following rates assessed in 1686 upon the "Inhabitants of Sherborn for the Indian title," not including those who had in the mean time been set off to Framingham.

The amount assessed upon those who were annexed 15 years afterwards to Framingham is presumed to have made the rate £10.

This, added to £22 paid by the associated proprietors of 3000 acres, makes £32. If we add what was paid by Sheffield and other grantees, who, probably, like him, took separate Indian deeds; and the 200 bushels of corn (at 2s. 4d. per bushel), given to the Naticks to render equivalent lands given them in exchange for an equal quantity, the amount paid them for the township could not have been less than £75. This sum was more than equal to that paid by other communities for larger and better tracts, and this in an age when £1 was a representative of four times its present value in the necessities of life, and in a country where land was so plenty and cheap that half a township is ascertained to have been sold by an English proprietor for a wheelbarrow. The natives in the purchase were not defrauded. The strictest justice marked the conduct of our sires towards them. Long after they had given them 4000 acres, now in Hopk. and Ashland, for an equal quantity taken from Natick, and 200 bushels of corn to boot, the Indians complained that the difference in value was greater. Our sires entertained their complaint, chose a committee to examine its grounds, who reported in favor of a further appropriation. This appears to have been unanimously accepted, and we hear no further complaint. Our fathers were honest men. They came not as robbers. They found these lands as God gave the whole earth to man; and they laid at the feet, yea, urged the indolent savage to accept a tenfold equivalent in temporal good for all they invited him to surrender. His refusal and consequent ruin was not their fault. But the poor Indian is gone—the nation is extinct; and the record of his doom deserves perpetuation as well as the desolations of Nineveh and Egypt, for it echoes the fearful declaration, “The nation and kingdom that will not serve me, shall utterly perish.” All that he has left of his language and works are a few mineral implements and the names of a few localities. The latter, let us revive upon our maps; and the former, arrange with our cabinets, in mournful remembrance of his history, and in admonition of the certainty that our end will be as complete, and our relics as few, in proportion to our greatness, if we despise such warnings, and array ourselves against the laws of the Highest.

When the first planters arrived, they found the country densely covered with massive and towering trees. The uplands, by the annual vernal fires of the natives to hasten vegetation for the deer, were deprived of underbrush, and the trees trimmed by flames to a height convenient for extensive views. The low grounds abounded as much then, as now, with wet prairies, called meadows, which were then prolific of blue-joint and other nutritious grasses. These were the lands first sought and most highly valued. Their stock was their wealth and chief dependence. No man could subsist without a natural meadow for hay; and no grant was worth accepting, no farm was bought or assigned afterwards, without this indispensable appendage. Next to wet prairies, cedar swamps were most valued. Unacquainted with the feasibility of constructing walls of boulders, few of which comparatively had then risen to the surface, or with the durability of rails of other timber, a cedar grove was almost indispensable. Tracts yielding cedar, like the meadows, were ever divided into small lots, to accommodate each planter. The botany of the country was then somewhat different from the present. It is probable that all exogenous plants now growing spontaneously here, occurred then. Sycamore, buckeye, horse-chestnut, sugar-maple, butternut, persimmon, mulberry, locust, black walnut, white-wood, and other varieties, indigenous to our botanical province, were seldom, if ever, then found on our peninsula. But white and yellow oak, of all varieties, hickory, chestnut, and in many localities, pine and hemlock, covered most of the ground, and rendered the task of clearing extremely slow and difficult. Some herbaceous plants, originally abundant, have nearly or quite disappeared, giving place to less valuable ones. Fowl-meadow, so called from a supposition that birds had brought the seed, made its first appearance about one hundred years after the arrival of our sires; and as it had never been seen before, it was probably a new creation.* When the parties entered the country, its contour seemed more various than at present. The hills, covered with the loftiest trees, appeared mountains. The streams, obstructed by fallen wood and the dams of beavers and natives, then overflowed their banks, and were long in discharging their waters, a circumstance subjecting them often to the loss of their hay, and greatly embarrassing intercommunications. They found no roads. The natives had cleared a few fields, and marked out for them the fording places;† and a saddled ox or horse, and often a canoe, served them for a chaise or wagon. The various wild and destructive animals abounded here,‡ and the treacherous savage was in the land, not yet disarmed by the apostolic labors of Eliot.

* Science shows that God watches over every clod of his earth and drop of his water, and stocks it with useful organic forms adapted to the altered states which they assume. This was his manner in former epochs: and the record of the six demiurgic days' work implies no intimation that creation was then brought to an eternal standstill; and that though the earth should change through the interference of man faster than ever before, God would not follow it, as formerly, and make further displays of his wisdom and power, in calling into being new species of plants and animals.

Such was the condition of our peninsula in 1652, when our sires began its settlement.

ORIGIN OF THE SETTLEMENT.

The first transfer of either of the above described grants to actual settlers was on May 8, 1652, O. S., (see page 261). Immediately after, Nicholas Wood and Tho. Holbrooke took possession and commenced operations. They were soon followed by Henry Layland, (see pages 140 and 161). They located between Death's Bridge and Holbrook's mills from  $\frac{1}{3}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$  mile from each other, and 4 miles from their nearest English neighbors. In 1657, or early in 1658, Benj. Bullard and Geo. Fairbank began improvements on the margin of Bogistow Pond, (see pages 23 and 82,) and about the same time John Hill and Tho. Breck settled between them and Death's Bridge, (see pp. 16 and 101). In 1658, Daniel Morse established himself about  $\frac{1}{3}$  mile N. W. of Farm Bridge, (see page 178.) These were men in the prime of life, and possessed of considerable property, especially Wood, Hill, Morse and Holbrooke. They were soon afterward joined by Tho. and Samuel Bass, Wm. Briggs, Geo. Spear and Benj. Albey, who located near them, but removed prior to 1674. Encouraged by such accessions, and the prospect of more, they began to entertain hopes of being erected into a town. Though remote from \*See note on preceding page.

† One of these fields was on the south side of Peter's Hill, where Peter Ephraim is said to have raised corn; another on Edward's Plain, northeast of S. common; another near Holbrook's Mills; two others one fourth of a mile south of Mucksquit; and another on Abraham's Plain, one half mile north-west of the latter place.

An Indian trail ascended Charles River, crossed Sewell's brook where Holbrook's Mills stand, proceeded through the straits to Pocasset mountain, which afforded them an observatory for watching the flight of ducks over the meanderings of Bogistow brook and Charles River. This trail is supposed to have extended to Mucksquit, crossing Bogistow brook at the Stedman place, and the inlet of Winthrop's Lake, near its mouth, and was doubtless the path to Mendon mentioned by Eliot, and trod by his holy feet.

‡ These animals were not exterminated for a century. The last moose was attempted to be captured by Richard Sanger and negro about 1745. The sons of John Phipps killed the last deer in Sherborn about 1747, and one was shot on Abraham's Plain in H. about this time. Bears were troublesome on Wennakeening brook and Winthrop's Lake as late as 1730. The last panther made his appearance in Medway about 1790.

Meadfield, and not included within her corporate bounds, they took up privileges there, and became enrolled and taxed as her citizens, and on her records for 25 years the births and deaths in their families were entered. But after the expiration of 10 years from the commencement of their settlement, they subscribed the following petition:—

“The humble Petition of several of the inhabitants of Bogistow, to be presented to the much honored General Court, 7 of 3mo, 1662.”

“Whereas, the Providence of the most wise God who hath appointed the bounds of all mens habitations, having in mercy we hope disposed of us and our families in that place commonly called Bogestow, upon lands which we purchased of several gentlemen in this country, and having for some years although with great difficulty attended upon the means of grace at Meadfield; first, in respect of the distance; and secondly, by reason of the great danger that many times we goe in, in going over Charles River, which is caused by great floods and much ice, although as yet no great hurt done, for which we have great cause to bless God; yet considering that it may be more for the honor of God and the future good and benefit of ourselves and posterity, that we should endeavour the setting up of the worship and ordinances of God among ourselves; especially, being increased to some number of inhabitants already, and more are daily expected. These and such like considerations doe imbolden us whose names are here underwritten, humbly to petition this much Honoured Court liberty to be a Towne of ourselves with such others as may be admitted to our Society hereafter. And further, we your humble Petitioners are bold to request this Honoured Court to grant unto us and our associates for those ends formerly exprest such a tract of land as may be in some measure comfortable for our future subsistence, as a small village in this Commonweal; namely, so much land as conteines five miles square, where it may be found adjoining to our own lands already purchased, or upon Natic line, or upon Meadfield bounds as this Honoured Court shall see meet. And wee who acknowledge ourselves subjects of this Commonwealth shall pray as our duty is that God would bless and prosper you in all your weighty occasions.

“DANIEL MORSE,”

“HENRY LAYLAND,”

“THOMAS HOLBROOKE,”

“THOAS BASS,”

“JOHN HILL,”

“THOMAS BERCK,”

“BENJAMIN BULLWARD,”

“WILLIAM BRIGGS,”

“GEORGE FAIRBANK,”

“SAMUEL BASS,”

“GEORGE SPEAR,”

“ROBERT KENTDILL,”

“BENJAMIN ALBEY.”

In answer to this Petition, the General Court appointed "Ephraim Littlefield and Edward Jackson, a Committee to view the place and return their apprehensions." The result seems to have been unfavorable, as nothing more is heard of their petition. Of its 14 subscribers, 6 removed and one died before 1674. The settlement, however, continued, and was strengthened by the arrival of Dea. Samuel Bullen and adult son, of Joseph Morse and John Perry, and by the marriage and establishment of 4 sons of the first planters.

The settlement was now 22 years old, had large and productive orchards, and the stock and produce of the farms were equal to those of the largest in S. at the present day, yet it had not extended far beyond the second bank of Charles River.

ORIGIN OF THE TOWN.

The first planters of Bogistow had now become advanced in years, and a new generation had arisen to revive and urge on their favorite scheme of a new town and church. In their second application, Joseph Morse, then a young man, evidently took the lead, and appears to have drawn and first subscribed the following petition :—

To the Honoured Gov. & Deputy Gov., with the rest of the assistants & deputyes of the Generall Court of his Majesty's Colony of the Massachusetts, in New England, now sitting in Boston this seventh day of October, 1674 :

The petition of diverse of the Inhabitants & proprietors of lands at or near Bogestow—

Humbly sheweth, Whereas the Lord who hath appointed unto all men the bounds of their habitations to dwell on the earth, hath by the good hand of Providence planted neere twenty families already settled on farmes formerly granted unto severall by the Honoured Gennerall Court in this part of the wilderness called Boggestow, & neere thereunto, besides some other farmes, not yet Improved, lying between the bounds of Naticke & Meadfeild, & upon the west of both, which probably may shortly be emproved also ; & whereas your humble petitioners, that have for some years lived at Boggestow & there abouts, amongst other difficultyes have not found it our least to goe to meeting on the Lord's day unto Meadfeild, by reason not only of the distance from theare, and the leaving of severall at home, but also in regard of the difficulty in passing over the water betwext in winter seasons & times of floods, which sometimes proves hazardous to health & life ; wherefore for our reliefe herein, and that wee may not wholly omit our duty what in us lyeth to spread the Gospel in this wilderness by the procuring of the ministry of the Word amongst ourselves, not only for our owne edification & consolation, but also that after us God & the Word of his grace may be to our posterity a standing refuge ; wherefore for our encouragement in this worke, & for the better regulating of affayres amongst us, we your petitioners do humbly crave the favourable help of this Honoured Court, first that this Court will be pleased to grant unto your petitioners all those parcells of common or countrey lands that lyeth between the bounds of Meadfeild & the bounds of Naticke, & so at the west end of Meadfeild & Naticke bounds, so much of the country lands as conteynt six miles square; and secondly, that this Court would be pleased to grant that all the farmes & lands of your petitioners, & all the other farmes, improved or not improved, lying betweene the bounds of Meadfeild & the bounds of Naticke, with the quantity of land of six miles square of the wilderness land, and all those farmes formerly granted falling within that tract of land as may [be] layed out, may be by this Honoured Court made a towne, & that the name thereof may be [———], and your petitioners shall ever be your remembrancers. And further your petitioners humbly desire leave that this Court would grant unto us liberty of Naticke Indians to purchase, by way of exchange of lands or otherwise, for pay, two miles in breadth of their lands on the south side of their bounds from the west bounds of the farm of Daniel Morse unto the west end of Naticke bounds, and also that this Court would be pleased to grant us freedome from country rates for 7 years, or such time as this Court shall please.

“At a General Court, held at Boston, Oct. 7, 1674.—In answer to the Petition of the Inhabitants and proprietors of Land near Bogestow, the Court, Oct. 21, granted the Petitioners the quantity of Six miles square, not exceeding eight miles in length, to take in as many Farms with the vacant Lands adjoining or intermixed therewith as that quantity of Land will admitt; provided that none of the Farmers shall have any part of the aforesaid vacant Land now granted by this Court;—but the said Land to be distributed amongst such other persons as will come to inhabit in the said Town as the major part of the Farmers think meet; provided that there be a Farm of 200 Acres of meet land reserved, and by Captain Fisher laid out for a Farm for the Country; and that no Man shall have allotted above fifty Acres, till there be twenty new families settled there, and then the whole that is free to be disposed of as the major part of the Inhabitants, capable by law to vote, shall judge meet. And the name of the Town to be called Shearborn. A true Coppy attested.

* Henry Adams was of Medfield, but signed the petition as a proprietor and occupier. The remainder were residents.

EDWARD RAWSON, Secretary."

The form of the township, when laid out, was very peculiar. The original S. line of Natick was directed to be drawn 4 miles Westerly from Charles River, or the house of Nicholas Wood, which stood 13 rods S. of Holbrook's mills, and it extended W. to a rock on Jasper Hill W. of the Comb manufactory in Holliston. From this "corner" or "Jasper Rock" the W. line of Natick extended N. Westerly to Sudbury River to a point 4 miles in a straight line S. W. of "the wading place" on Cochituate Brook, supposed to have been not far from its mouth. When, therefore, Sherborn was protracted, it must, in form, have resembled a hand card with its handle between Natick and Medfield, about 1 mile wide, and with its blade W. of those towns extending N. to Sudbury R. and S. to Charles R. and the N. line of Bellingham, then a part of Dedham. It included the S. W. quarter of Ashland, except 500 acres between Sudbury R. and Cold Spring Brook, the Eastern third of Hopkinton, and the E. part of Milford, then Mendon. But when the survey was found to have "intrenched" upon a previous grant, and Mendon corner had been taken out, its form next resembled the arms of a wind-mill with the North and West arms conjoined. After an exchange of the N. W. quarter of the township for the S. part of Natick, the form was more convenient, but hardly more comely.

As the petitioners modestly refrained from proposing any name for their town, the G. C. are presumed, as in similar instances, to have assigned the name of the native place of some settler or proprietor. Sherborn, after which it is named, is an ancient, large and well inhabited town in the N. part of Dorsetshire, 40 miles W. by S. from Salisbury, and 118 W. by S. from London.* Present population about 2,000. It was formerly a place of much distinction, where some of the ancient Saxon kings were buried, and where a monastery existed. It was at a later day rendered famous as the place where the prime nobility met William, Prince of Orange, and welcomed him to the throne of England. Other circumstances almost prove that some of the sires of the first planters were from Dorsetshire; and Sherborn was not improbably the birth-place of some prominent settler or proprietor, and most likely of Henry Adams, then a venerable member of the G. C., from Medfield, and the most distinguished of the petitioners and proprietors. Six weeks after the passage of the above act the records of the town commence.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE TOWN, AND GENERAL COURT.

Sherborn, 1674-5, Jan. 4th.—Assembled for the ordering the affairs of Shearborn, Daniel Morse, George Fairbanks, Robert Badcock, Henry

*Some antiquarians derive the name of Sherborn from the Saxon words Scine brun—denoting pure water. If this etymology is correct, it is most appropriately applied to our town.

Adams, Thomas Holbrook, Benjamin Bullard, John Hill, Henry Laland, Joseph Morse, Obediah Morse, Daniel Morse, jr., Jonathan Morse, John Perry, Jonathan Wood. Thomas Eames is accepted as an inhabitant of Shearborn.

At this meeting Committees were appointed, to take a view of the Land for the laying out of the Courts grant; to agree with Thomas Thurston, Surveyor, for the laying out that Tract of Land—and assist the measurer about laying out the Land, &c. Also, Henry Adams, Robert Badcock & Thomas Eames are required to treat with Capt. Gookin and whom it may concern else, for the purchasing of some Natick Land to the accommodating the Plantation, and to make return to the Company.

Sherborn, 1675.—March 8th—Assembled for the ordering the affairs of Sherborn. “Voted to raise fifty shillings for the Surveyor for his work.” At this Meeting Committees were chosen “to take a view where to add to the grants of Land what is yet wanting to make up the complement, and to take a view of Natick Land, for the exchanging with them.”

But the consent of the G. C. was first to be obtained, and on their records the following act occurs, dated May 12, 1675:—“In answer to the petition of Henry Adams, in the name and by appointment of the farmers and petitioners of Sherborne, it is ordered that Capt. Daniel Fisher, Sarjant Richard Ellis, and Sarjant Tho. Thurston, of Meadfield, be a Committee to see the said exchange performed to mutual consent of parties; and Capt. Gookin and Mr. Eliot, on behalf of the Indians, and to consider the equality of their other request, [probably the offer of £50 to boot,] provided Natick bounds be first layd out and agreed upon, and presented perfected to this Committee by the 1st of Sept. next, however, that the Committee go on to perfect the plantation by the next session making their report to this Court.”

Philip's war broke out immediately afterwards, and suspended for nearly two years all further action relative to the town. Alarmed for the safety of their lives, the inhabitants prepared for the murderous visit to which they were peculiarly exposed. Their two garrisons were doubtless put in order, and every man, woman and boy trained to handle a musket and watch against surprise from an enemy who knew no honor or mercy. Of their situation let imagination conceive. Surely the pains of fear and suspense which they must have endured would have worn out any but the stoutest hearts and the most determined purposes. But they meditated no retreat, as appears from the following note, addressed, as is supposed, to Maj. Gen. John Leverett, then Governor, and found in the Sec'y of State's office:—

“May it please your Worship,

Prostrating my humble service to your Worship, I made bold lately to request your help of 4 men to be the garrison at my house which is for my family and my sons with me, most being married men; I humbly prosecute my request that so it might be that I might have 4 men out of Medfield, and that Edward West and Benjamin Fisk (sons-in-law) might be two of them, they living in the remote part of Medfield next my farme and they being willing to come if liberty by authority were given that they might be imprest by authority to be ready when I shall call for them. Thus I make bold, humbly begging the everlasting blessing and constant presence of the Almighty to be with your Worship. So prays

Your humble servant,

DANIEL MORSE, Sen'r,

"Sherborne, 26, 11, 1675-6. In the name of my sons.

"Granted for the present." (See also p. 24.)

Although only one house was burnt in S. by the enemy, the inhabitants suffered the loss of 5 or 6 lives, (see p. 79 and 264) and of property to such an amount that they were included in the act of the G. C. ordering them and the people of Medfield a remittance of £120.

Sherborn 1676-7.—March 15th—Then was Obediah Morse chosen to keep the Records of Sherborn. It was the mind of the Inhabitants and their desire that Capt. Fisher should be treated with, that He would be helpful, or undertake the settlement of the Plantation.

G. C. Record, Jan. 24th, 1676, [pr. 1676-7.]—It being propounded in Court at Nonantum to have a parcel of land belonging to Natick encompassed by Mr. Danforth, Goodman Death and John Stone, on three parts, it was consented that this parcel shall be included with the land Sherborn men have in exchange from Natick. This tract was bounded W. by Washacum and Farm ponds, now in Fram., N. by Sud. River, E. by the lands of Stone and Death which lay W. of Cochituate lake and brook. Death's farm was subsequently annexed to S.

1676.—2d m. 13th day—Assembled to prepare for the exchange of Land between Natick and Sherborn, as encouragement has been given at the Court by Mr. Eliot and Major Gookin.

3d month, 9th day.—At a meeting of the Inhabitants of Sherborn, The Committee chosen by the General Court being then with us—The Committee enquiring where was the place intended for a Meetinghouse. It was then voted and agreed on that the place intended for a Meetinghouse should be on a parcel of Land joining or bordering on the Land of the late Nicolas Wood and Capt. Hull's Farm.—Capt Hull's house stood a few rods W. of Mr. Thos. Bickford's, and the spot agreed upon was on the top of the hill about 20 rods N. E. of the New South burying ground.

Voted that propositions should be made to Maj. Gookin and Mr. Eliot and to the Indians in referring to the exchange of Lands between Natick and Sherborn, as to give Fifty Pounds in current pay and as much Land as a Committee of the General Court shall think meet.

Report of the Committee of the General Court.

At a General Court held at Boston, 28th of May, 1677.

We, whose names are subscribed, being appointed by the Gen. Court to consider the case referring to the petition of Sherborn about exchange-ing of Lands with the Indians and other things contained in that Petition, in pursuant whereof & obedience whereunto, being desired by Sherborn the 1st of the III mo., 1677, when we expected major Gookin & Mr. Eleot with some Indians : but waiting some time, only two Indians came with a paper from Mr. Eliot, by which we understood nothing was likely to be done. But taking notice of the order referring to the purchasing the Plantation, we find there is but little or no Country Land near the place where they intend to sett their Meetinghouse.

2d. "As to the farmes adjacent we conceive all those, in Medfield bounds that were granted by this Court and received nothing from Medfield, shall be accounted and liable to all charges and take up priviledges in Sherborn: those in Natick bounds, all the Petitioners Lands shall be accounted Inhabitants in Sherborn, and all other Farms that are highest Sherborn Meetinghouse, shall be likewise in the bounds of Sherborn, and do duty and receive priviledges therein : but we doubt whether they be like to a Town, if some considerable tract of Land be not procured from the Indians, either by exchange or purchase or both.

Your Honors humble servants,

DANIEL FISHER,
RICHARD ELLICE,
THOMAS THURSTON.

23 3mo. (77)

The Court approves of this Returne provided always, that the tract of waste Lands, situate and lying indifferently accommodable for Sudbury and Marlborough as well as Sherborn and are now belonging to Thomas Danforth, Esq., Dep. Governor, be excepted.

A true Coppy. Attest, EDWARD RAWSON, Secretary.

Sherborn, July 31, 1677.—Voted and agreed to by all of us from this time to improve the Liberty of a Town in a Civil Body that the honored Court and Laws of our Country gives to us. At this meeting it was voted that Edward West, as Sergeant, should take the care of the Military in Sherborn.

7 mo.—Voted if any of the Inhabitants shall neglect to attend Town meetings appointed and being warned of it, shall be under the penalty of 3s. 4d. for every such offence, to be for Town use.

G. C. Rec., Oct. 7, 1678.—Granted Sherborn inhabitants freedom from one single rate in a year during the term of three years now next coming, provided they be supplied with an able minister there.

Sh., 1677—8th Month 26th day. Then was consultation and consideration in way of preparation for a Minister, &c.

Voted to raise thirty pounds per year by the present Inhabitants, one third part to be paid in money, and two thirds to be in current country pay as may be raised by us. N. B. Only 15 persons were present when the above vote passed.

Sherborn, '78—11 mo.—1 day.—Voted that five men be chosen as Selectmen, Daniel Morse, sen., Geo. Fairbanks, Edw. West, Thomas Eames, Obediah Morse chosen to keep the Records or as a Clark. N. B. This was the first time the Town chose Selectmen who stood for 10 years.

Voted That the first second day of January should be from year to year held to be a public meeting for the public affairs of S.

Sh., 1779.—13th mo. In reference to the settling a Minister ; Voted, that we shall pay to the Maintainance of the Minister £40 per year by the Inhabitants ; £20 in money & £20 in good country pay as is most suitable to the Minister and to build a suitable house.

Voted, that Daniel Morse, sen., Thomas Eames, Henry Lealand, and Edward West be chosen as a committee to act as the town for the settling the Minister amongst us, Mr. Gooking or some other Minister as God shall direct.

Voted, to Ewd. West that in case he do stay in Sherburn one year from the date hereof then he shall have that land and meadow formerly granted to him by the Town, in the same state as the Petitioners land is ; if the Town have not a Minister settled. If there be a Minister settled, then to be in the same state and condition with other Inhabitants.

July 18th.—At a meeting &c. to choose a Committee to treat with Mr. Nathaniel Gookings to settle amongst us. Then was chosen this Committee, Daniel Morse, sen., George Fairbanks, Thomas Eames, Ensign Bullen, to act representing the Town to engage & settle a Minister amongst us.

7 mo. 18th.—Voted, That this Committee Capt. Prentice, Deacon John Stone, & Mr. William Bond which are chosen by the Councell 12th present month to act according to the Law published since the last session, in 19th this present month this Committee concerning the place they have determined for the settled place for the Meetinghouse. For their satisfaction desiring should be voted by the Inhabitants of the town, the place voted was and thereby determined on a hill. Mr. the Committee and the Inhabitants made a second stand to look about on that account near Edwards Plain.

8 mo. 29.—Then was chosen four Men to be undertakers for ourselves in building a suitable House for a Minister, viz. Edward West, Thomas Eames, Joseph Morse & John Hill, these 4 to call others to assist in that work as they shall see meet, and as Men are capable to help. Also, that all shall bear equal charges on their house Lots according to their proportion of Acres.

And concerning the Ministers House that is to be built it is voted and concluded that it shall be built according as is agreed with the 4 Men chosen as undertakers to see it done. The length 38 feet the breath 20 feet.

It was also concluded that the undertakers shall see that this House be covered and inclosed by the last of May next ; and that this house be thoroughly finished by the last of September next.

Also, that the place concluded upon by the Committee for the Meetinghouse near Edwards plain be reserved for the accommodation thereof to the quantity of 20 rods square as may suit.

SOCIAL COMPACT OF SHERBORN ADOPTED.

1679. "For as much as the further promulgation of the Gospel, the subducing this part of the Earth, among the rest given to the Sons of Adam, and the enlargement of the bounds of the habitations formerly designed by God for some of His people in this wilderness; It hath pleased the Lord to move and direct the much Honoured Gen. Court to grant a tract of land in the land adjoining to or near the place called Bogestow with the Farms therein laid as is judged a meet place for the erecting and settleing of a Town."

"We the persons whose names are next under written, for the prevention of questions and mistakes, disorders and contentions that might otherwise arise, do order and determine and resolve as followeth."

1. "That all persons whatsoever, that shall receive lands by grant from the said Town now called Sherborne, shall become subject to all such Orders in every part and point of Town Government, as are at present, or hereafter by the authority of the said Town shall be made and appointed for the ordering, regulating, or governing thereof: Provided they be not repugnant to the Orders, or any Orders of the general Court from time to time. And that every such Grantee, shall for the firm engagement of himself and his successors, thereunto subscribe his name to our Town Book, or otherwise, his grant made to him shall be of none effect."

2. "That if questions, differences, or contentions should fall out or arise in any manner or way in our Society, or betwixt any party therein; that they shall really endeavour, to resolve and issue the same even in the most practicable way and manner, by Reference, Arbitration, or some other like means before it shall come to any place of publick Judicature except it be in our own Town."

3. "That we shall all of us in the said Town faithfully endeavour that only such shall be received to our society and Township as we may have sufficient satisfaction that they are honest, peaceable, and free from Scandal and erroneous opinions."

4. "That none of the inhabitants aforesaid or our successors at any time hereafter for the space of seven years from the date hereof upon any pretence whatsoever without the consent of the Selectmen for the time being first had and obtained, shall alienate, Let, assign or set over for the space of seven whole years any part or parcel of Land formerly granted to him or them by the Town, except to some formerly accepted of by our society; always provided that this shall in no sort prejudice or hinder any Heirs at Common Law." 1679.—Articles of agreement between Daniel Morse, sen., Thomas Eames, Henry Lealand and Obediah Morse in behalf of the Town of Sherborne on the one part. Wabon, Pimbow, Thomas Tray, John Awonssamage, sen., Peter Ephraim and Daniel Takawombpait on behalf of the Town of Natick on the other part, concluded and agreed upon this sixteen day of April, 1679.

Whereas, It hath pleased the general Court by their Order bearing date May 12th, 1679, to give leave to the People of Sherborn to purchase by way of exchange, from the people of Natick, a quantity of Land belonging to Natick, for their furtherance and promoting of Sherborn Plantation.

2. The people of Sherborne above named in behalf of the rest, do desire about Four Thousand Acres as it is Plotted, described and bounded on the Northeast with Natick: on the Southeast Southwest and West by Sherborn, on the West and Northwest with a Farm belonging to Mr. Danforth.

3. In compensation for the same, they agree to give by way of exchange the like quantity of Land be it 4,000 acres more or less, lying and being adjoining to Mauguncoog Indian Hill, which Land was granted unto Sherborn by the general Court of Massachusetts; moreover they do promise and covenant to pay unto the persons above named, their Heirs or Assigns, the full and just quantity of 200 bushels of Indian Grain to be paid one half in hand or at demand, and the other half the last of March next ensuing. Moreover, they are willing that Peter Ephraim do enjoy the Land he hath broken up within that Tract of Land they are to have of Natick, at a place called Brush Hill, and to add thereunto so much more as may make the Lot 12 Acres, with an equal proportion of Meadow, to enjoy to him the said Peter Ephraim and his Heirs and Assigns forever; but to be under the government of the Township of Sherborne as the English Are.

4th, Also, we agree & consent that on the Lands we are to have of Natick there be a Lot of Fifty Acres sett out where the Commissioners of the Colonies, Major Gookin and Mr. Elliott, and Indian Rulers shall choose within that Tract of Land, to be appropriated forever to the use of a free School for teaching the English and Indian Children there, the English Tongue & other Sciences.

In witness whereof, &c.,

In answer to a motion in behalf of Sherborn Inhabitants this Court does ratify and allow of the exchange of Lands made as abovesaid.

Attest, EDWARD RAWSON, Secretary.

'79.—At a meeting of the Inhabitants of Sherborne, in reference to exchange of Land with Natick: for the paying of 200 bushels of Corn to boot, &c. 18 persons present.

Daniel Morse for his Farm do engage 25 bushels of Indian Corn this year. Thomas Eames and that Corner of the Town, 25 bushels. Henry Lealand 25 bushels, others assisting him—and in case the other quarter cannot be defrayed, then Obediah Morse do engage for the other quarter upon the desire and promise others to bear him out in either Corn in wheat or money; to be paid wheat at 5s. per bushel, money at reasonable abatement." Ensign Bullen and Henry Lealand are chosen a Committee with the Selectmen to grant home Lots to those that are come amongst us.

Sherborne granteth to such as shall make a sawmill on a Brook [Bogistow, where the cotton mill stands in Hol.] about half a mile on this side the corner [Jasper] rock that was Natick bounds, the sum of 50 Acres of upland adjoining to that brook, and 3 or 4 Acres of Meadow, if it may be found upon that Brook as may be convenient—also 10 Acres of Swamp, the Cedar timber excepted. This sawmill to be built by the end of 12 months, and be continued three years, or as the Selectmen then in being, and the owners shall agree. So the Land to be settled to the owners. This offer seems to have been accepted by Samuel Lind of Boston, who early built a corn mill upon it.

'79—9mo. 29—Thomas Sawin is accepted as one of the new inhabitants at Chestnut Brook, to take up a first Lot, as may be convenient for building a Sawmill on it. This is where the late Galim Bullard lived. This mill stood a few rods below the mill of Mr. Isaac Cozens.

1679.—Daniel Morse, sen., and Joseph Morse and another, were chosen to treat with a minister for settlement.

1680.—Ensign Saml. Bullen & George Fairbanks, refusing to take the oath of Tytheingmen, the Selectmen, in obedience to the Law, do choose Thomas Holbrook to have inspection over those families at the widow Lealand, Hopestill Lealands, &c., 10 Families. And Joseph Morse as tytheingman to inspect over Eleazer Fairbanks and 5 other Families.

Difficulties of a serious nature had now arisen, the nature of which we are left in part to infer from the action of the Court. The inhabitants at the S. end had insisted on the place first staked, for the meeting-house and roads referred to on proprietors' records, had been laid from that place to remote parts of the town. They had as yet obtained no minister, and the condition on which they had been exempted from rates had not been complied with. A few lots appear to have been illegally assigned. Daniel Morse, senr., Dea Benoni Learned and others, in 1680 petitioned the G. C., imploring "aid that they may be relieved of their difficulties, professing a desire to settle a pious and able minister, without which their hopeful plantation would be ruined, and they and their wives and children be forced either to live like heathen, without God's Sabbaths and ordinances, or remove."

G. C. Rec., May, 1680.—"In answer to the petition of the inhabitants of S., Maj. Thos. Savage, Mr. Bartholomew Gedney, Capt. Hutchenson, Mr. Joseph Lind and Mr. Joseph Cook, are appointed a Committee, and required to repair to S. and settle all differences depending among said inhabitants, and give such directions as to them shall seem meete for ordering of their prudentials; and what any four of them shall agree upon, shall be valid for the determining of such controversies as are among them, and what they shall do herein they are to make return thereof to the present session. ("Which they did, and is on file, not perfected.") 1680.—June 2d—At a meeting of the Inhabitants of Sherborne to attend the consultation of the honored Committee, Major Savage, with the other Gent. of that Committee—did then agree before them and engage to lay down of their lands for needful highways for the use of the Town, and to choose a Committee to lay them out.

On the return of the Committee, and the rendition of their report, the G. C., June 11, 1680, say:—

There appearing something necessary to be further donne with reference to the settlement of Sherborne Towne, and the well ordering the prudentials thereof, and some dissatisfaction with reference to the placing the meeting-house, this Court, judging it necessary to remove all obstructions that may hinder their quiet and peaceable proceeding, doe appoint and impower Wm. Stoughton, Tho. Savage, and John Richards, Esqs., a committee to order and governe the prudentials of the said towne for three years next commencing, as to laying out lotts, and raying of taxes.

From the above date until June 11, 1684, the town was placed under loving guardianship, and submitted like an affectionate and dutiful ward.

October 12th.—Reckoned with Thomas Sawin for his work about the Meetinghouse for framing the Meetinghouse and provideing Boards, Shingles and Clapboards, and making Windows and Doors according to bargain about the Meetinghouse, - - - - - £50 0 0
For Boards and his work laying the Floor of do. - - - - - 3 0 0

Daniel Morse, sen., John Hill, Benj. Bullard, John Death with the Selectmen, are chosen to seat the Meeting when seats are made.

1680.—9th mo. 15. The Committee that formerly was chosen and impowered to act as the town for the settling Mr. Gookin or some other Minister as God should direct, making their return to the town that except the Inhabitants do agree to what was done by that Committee in '79, 7 mo. they see no likelihood of obtaining Mr. Daniel Gookin to settle among us.

Voted, that John Hill, Thomas Holbrook & George Fairbanks is desired to assist a Committee to settle a gospel Orthodox Minister on the place obtained for a Minister according to what is voted by the town for Ministers maintenance, &c. Edward West chosen Town Clerk.

1681.—Voted, that Daniel Morse, senr., Joseph Morse, and Edward West are chosen to treat with Mr. Cusheon or some other Minister to settle in Sherborne. And Thomas Holbrook was chosen to go to speak to Mr. Cusheon for an answer from him in reference to his settling in Sherborne. * * * * *

1681.—April 29. Whereas we the Inhabitants of Sherborn having formerly applied ourselves to the Rev. Daniel Gookin to be our settled Minister of Sherborn, he was pleased to give us his mind and word and writing to be willing to come amongst us, provided that we could agree to have the Meetinghouse on that place appointed by Capt. Prentice, but some not willing for it, did put us upon further trouble and the impeding that work amongst us wherefore having a meeting of the inhabitants & proposals being made if ***** would adhere to the settling a Minister on that place commonly amongst us called the Lot place, we, being desirous of not only the settling a Minister amongst us, but also peace and concord, did yield to the motion, and made choice of some of those that did oppose our former proceeding to act accordingly; but now we perceiving their fruitless endeavors in that respect, and being desirous, if God permit, to have one amongst us to break the bread of life to us and ours, and especially the Rev. Mr. Daniel Gookin, do if authority permit of it, bind ourselves to these particulars under written in the full sum of Ten pounds Sterling to be paid by us upon every wilful neglect or refusal.

1st, That application be made to the Rev Mr. Daniel Gookin, to be the settled Minister of Sherborn, by those three Men the town have lately made choice of to Settle a Minister in Sherborn, viz.: Daniel Morse, senr., Joseph Morse & Edward West, with as much speed as may be.

2d, That in case Mr. Gookin do agree to come amongst us, we do engage to pay to him annually as the Town in general have voted, viz. twenty pounds in money, and twenty pounds in country pay, such as we raise among ourselves, and such as the Minister wants, at such prizes as go from man to man amongst ourselves: as also when the Minister hath a family or the people increase in the Town by the addition of new Families considerably, then to augment his allowance and this to continue with the help of such as may by Law be brought in to pay, during our abode in Sherborn.

3d, That the house for the Minister, in the place where it now stands, be fitted and finished conveniently to dwell in, and one Acre of Land to be broken up and fenced in a town charge; and this House and Land as it is now in part lotted out shall be given to him the said Mr. Gookin, and his heirs forever, provided he do engage himself to us to be our settled, constant Minister, together with his interest in common Lands as other inhabitants.

4th, We do agree that when we do build our Meetinghouse it shall stand where it was ordered and agreed, near Edwards Plain.

Finally, We do agree that all those above written charges shall be raised according to the Town vote viz. by heads & estates ratable in the country Invoice, and do also agree that all forfeitures that shall be made as above said shall be paid to the Minister towards his yearly maintenance. To these above said particulars we do bind us and our heirs in the sum above said firmly and do make of the Men above written to see to the execution of this agreement of ours according to the true intent thereof. In witness whereof we have putt to our hands, dated 29th April 1681.

DANIEL GOOKIN, JR.

This note has no date but was pr. written soon after Apl. 29, 1681.

1681.—July 4th—George Fairbanks proposed to resign up to the Town all his rights and Interests in Sherborn with all his former charges from the first petitioning provided they would free him from Sherborne.

1681.—8 mo. 27—Voted by the Inhabitants that there shall be a division of so much of our common Land as is judged meet for a dividend by Daniel Morse, Thomas Holbrook, Jonathan Whitney, John Death, and Joseph Morse, If our honored Committee approve of it. Also a Committee was chosen to acquaint the honored Committee with the state of the Town as to the accommodation of the new Inhabitants, and intreat their power and advice which way this Dividend shall be laid out. Also the Committee to obtain a Survey to lay out this Land. Each man shall choose his Lot: and if 2, 3, 4 or more shall pitch upon one place, then they to draw Lots who shall have that Lot. Each man that shall take up Land shall pay the charges of the laying out his Lot. If any Man do mislike his Lot: then he to choose his Lot out of any part of any of the Towns upland without circumference.

BOSTON, Nov. 3d, 1681.

Having perused and considered the first vote above written concerning a division of common Land in Sherborne, We the Committee for that Town do approve and confirm the same, And for the way thereof We advise that it be first divided into 4 parts, to lye to each quarter of the Town according as they shall find it most convenient as to vicinity, respect being had to the quality of the land, that there may be an equality in each quarter as much as may be; Then each quarter or squadron of the Town to divide their part amongst themselves by lot. We further order, that before any division be made of upland, such new inhabitants as have not had proportionable meadow already allowed them, shall have due shares allotted and laid out to them. And according to a former vote of the Town, we adjudge the new Inhabitants to pay two shillings per Acre upon their home lots, towards public charges, and then for the future to be equally rated with the rest.

(Signed,) THOMAS SAVAGE, JOHN RICHARDS, WILLIAM STOUGHTON.

1682.—Granted to John Awasamug 20 acres of Land, 'to clear all Indian Titles that concern the Land exchanged between Natick and Sherborne.

G. C. Rec., Oct. 11, 1682. Whereas there is about 50 soldiers at Sherborne, in probability they will increase to a greater number in a short time, and they having no higher officer than a Sarjant, it is ordered by this Court and the authority thereof that Sargeant Edward West be Leiftenant to the said company and Jonathan Morse, Ensign; and they are to choose two sarjants, a drummer and clark for the said company according as the law directs; and that the said company do belong to the regiment of Maj. Gookin and ye secretary is ordered to issue both commissions for them.

G. C., Rec., May 17, 1684. "In ans. to the petition of Tho. Holbrooke, Edward West, selectmen for the towne of Sherborne, it is ordered that the grant of land unto the inhabitants and others at or near Boggestow shall be and hereby is confirmed unto them according to the plat now before the Court dated, 25 (3 mo.) 1677, signed Thos. Thirston, provid always it doe not intrench upon former grants to any toune or particular persons, and it is ordered that the name of the toune be Sherborne and that it belongs to the County of Middlesex."

N. B. The great delay of the usual act of confirmation doubtless arose from the confused state of the town and their tardiness in complying with the conditions of their incorporation.

1684.—Decem. 8.—Voted by the Inhabitants of S., being assembled, that the difference that is now between John Hill, J. Eames & John Death for catching Wolves, it shall be referred to the Hond. Deputy Governor and Major Gookin to issue the Cause between them.

1694.—June 4—Edward West was chose Schoolmaster for S.

1695.—Feb. 3d—At a meeting of the Inhabitants of S. for to consider and conclude of a inlargment of our Town bounds by our * * * * of some of Naticks land that joins to the farm of Henry Rice to make one Township.

It was concluded by the Inhabitants, met this day, that we shall go on to lay that tract of land that is taken in platt with a inlargement to the farm of Henry Rice, and those Farmers that are willing to join in our Township according as offers have been made to themselves as also to procure a surveyor to run a straight line from the south Corner of Henry Rice's Farm to the Cartway crossing Cochituate Brook near where Course Brook meets with Cochituate Brook the charges of the whole to be borne by the Town of S. The Selectmen are chosen a Committee to see this work carried on for the benefit of the Town.

1700.—June 25.—The town of Framingham was incorporated and seventeen Families belonging to Sherborn were annexed to that Town. "A controversy soon arose between S. and F. respecting certain rights and privileges, which was at last settled without legal process."—[See Barry's His. of Fram.]

1705-6—Jan. 8th.—Was granted £20, for the repairing and better finishing the Meetinghouse. The Committee chosen were Sergt. Sawin, Lt. Joseph Morse, Deacon Benoni Learned, Corpl. Isaac Learned and Richard Sanger.

1707.—May 28th—Ordered, That whosoever should take bring or convey any Cattle from other towns to feed on the Commons in S., and such Cattle being taken up; the Person or persons who conveyed the said Cattle into Town, or the owner of them sd pay a fine of 5s. per head, the one moiety to the person who took them up and the other moiety to the use of the Town.

These orders were allowed of by the Court of quarter Sessions at Concord, June 17th, 1707, till further order.

ORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH.

Public worship was first set up at the house of Cpt. Joseph Morse, and there continued until the meeting-house was finished; and he received a grant from the town for accommodating the congregation.

The existing records of the Church begin Oct. 27, 1734. They give no account of the formation of the Chh.; but the MSS. of Judge Sewall contain the following notice of its origin:

"Thursday, Mar., 1685. Went to the gathering of the Church in Sherborne, & ordaining of Mr. Daniel Gookin, their Pastor. But six Brethren & three of the name of Mors.* Mr. Willson [of Boston,] Mr.

* The other three brethren were pr. Renj. Bullard, Tho. Holbrook & Benoni Learned.

Adams [of Dedham,] Mrs. Nathaniel Gookin [of Cambridge,] managed the work. Mr. Nathl. Gookin, ye younger, introduced ye elder—a happy type of ye calling of ye Jews; Mr. Torrey [of Weymouth,] Brinsmeade [of Boston,] Fisk [of Braintree,] Esterbrook [of Lexington,] Mann [of Wrentham,] Moody [of Boston,] Hubbard [or Hobart, of Newton,] Nehemiah Sherman [of Watertown,] Woodrop [of Lancaster,] Rawson, Grendal [of Mendon,] Willson, Junr., [of Medfield,] there, and the fellows of the College. Only Maj. Generall & self of the magistrates. No relations were made, but I hope God was with them.”

1707.—May 29. At a meeting of the Selectmen it was ordered, that each person in town, for the Pool or Pools he or she is rated for, shall cut and carry to the house of the Rev. Mr. Gookin, one half Cord of wood per poll; and each and every person who neglect to perform as aforesaid shall pay a Fine of 2 Shillings per poll to the use of said Minister.

Oct. 23.—Voted to hire a minister while March next and that Mr. Baker be the man to supply Mr. Gookings Pulpit, now in the time of his restraint, if he may be obtained.

1708-9.—March 7th.—At a Town meeting, &c. It was then manifested to the town what had been offered to the Hon. General Court by our Representative Saml. Bullard concerning the seventeen Families on the north part of the Town: with the acceptance and Concurrence of the Court therewith: and was consented to by a general vote.

G. C. Rec., June 3, 1715.—Upon the reading a petition of Joseph Morse, representative and the selectmen of the Town of Sherborn in behalf of the said town, praying that a Platt of 4,000 acres of land therewith exhibited, laid out and protracted by Thomas White, surveyer, pursuant to a grant of this Court at their session in June, 1710, on the West side of Mendon may be confirmed to the said Town. Voted a concurrence with the order passed thereon in the House of Representatives, viz: The plat having been presented for confirmation and viewed and inspected by this House.

Ordered, that the land therein described be allowed and granted and confirmed to the town of Sherborn as an equivalent for the 17 families laid to Framingham, mentioned in the plat provided it intrench upon no former grant. Consented to. J. DUDLEY.

Sh. June 17, 1715.—Voted, That the Invoice of Polls and ratable Estate taken in August 1714, shall be the Rule whereby the said 4000 Acres of Land granted and confirmed to the town by the G. C., shall be proportioned to and among the present Inhabitants being freeholders and such other inhabitants that have lived upon hire in the Town for some years past.

The above-mentioned New Grant was divided amongst 105 Persons “being Freeholders and such other Inhabitants that have lived upon hire.” December 29th, 1721, the proprietors granted to Ephraim Hill and his heirs forever, 20 acres of Land in the said 4000 acres, in consideration of his being the first settled Inhabitant there.

Two further grants of 6700 acres, now in Douglas, were obtained of the General Court by purchase. In 1730, these Lands were divided among the Inhabitants of S. in the same manner as the other Grant had been.

1710.—Dec. 11. At a meeting of the Inhabitants of Sherborn, Capt. Joseph Morse & Deacon Benoni Learned, Moderators.

Then it was put to the Inhabitants by the said Moderators that inasmuch as the work of the Ministry is apparently too hard for our Rev. and worthy Pastor, Mr. Daniel Gooking, he being a Crazie and infirm man and well stricken in years, whither they were willing to give the Rev. Mr. Baker a call or invitation to settle with us in this Town in the work of Gospel Service as an assistant to our Rev. Pastor aforesaid; and after some debate on the matter it being put to try the minds of the inhabitants it was voted very fully on the affirmative to give the Rev. Mr. Daniel Baker a call to settle in Gospel Service as an assistant to our Rev. Pastor aforesaid. Voted on the affirmative.

Also it was voted at said meeting To give the said Mr. Baker a yearly salary of 50 pounds money during the life of our Rev. Pastor and after his decease to augment Mr. Baker's Salary if need be.—Voted in the affirmative.

Attest, JOS. MORSE, BENONI LEARNED, Moderators.

At a Meeting of the Inhabitants of Sherborn, April 2d, 1711. Then the Rev. Mr. Daniel Gookin was pleased to exhibit the following:

“I have formerly as is well known, and several of the leading Men of the Town can testify, yielded to sink ten pounds of the country part of my Salary for the encouraging of the Town to proceed in yt. weighty design that they have been lately upon, and are not yet come to a full conclusion about—But it hath been signified to me that what I did (and that freely) would not be accepted of by those to whom the offer was made, or at least it would not be accepted of by the Town: but if I thought it would not be imagined that I had a mind to force the Town to an acceptance of it, I would say that I do freely give back to the Town ten pounds of the country part of my yearly Salary, which they may improve for the encouragement of the Rev. Gentleman whom they are treating withall with reference to a settlement: in case they can obtain him, otherwise if I must still carry on the whole work, as formerly, I do desire, and it is best meet that it should return to me and be paid to me as formerly—thus wishing Heaven to guide you in what is this day before you, I take leave and rest your assured friend,

DANIEL GOOKIN.”

This being publickly read at the said meeting it was gratefully accepted of by the Town.

Attest, WM. RIDER, Town Clerk.

1711.—Sept. 17. At a meeting to consider upon some proposals that the Rev. Mr. Baker hath made to said Town about the advancement of his salary after the Rev. Daniel Gookins decease. Voted to advance Rev. Daniel Bakers Salary to the sum of seventy Pounds per Annum immediately after the decease of our Rev. Paster.

These, with other inducements, as 1st, the sincere concurrence of ye Rev. Daniel Gookin, with the church & Town in ye above mentioned affair ; as also the generosity of the good People of said Sherborne, in subscribing liberally towards building and settleing of the Rev. Daniel Baker aforesaid, together with the land yt is offered to him for a settlement, and the good Council and advice of several of the Rev. Elders, our common friends and well wishers, hath prevailed with the Rev. Gentleman to give the following Answer to the Invitation given him to settle in the Gospel service insaid town.

To the Committees of the Church and Town of Sherborn, To be communicated to the Church and Town.

Reverend and dearly beloved in our Lord Jesus Christ. It is now a considerable time since you have given me an invitation to settle with you in the glorious Gospel of peace, and it is with no small importunity that you have for some time pressed for an Answer to your desires. The weightiness of the work you have asked me to engage in, with some other things I have had under consideration, will atone for my delaying an answer so long. I hope I have not been backward in seeking direction from the All-wise Counsellor, nor have I been wanting in asking the advice of several of the Rev. Elders, our common Friends and well-wishers, whose Counsel I highly esteem. I am at length (though not without a deep sense of the weightiness of the work you have called me unto, and my own utter insufficiency therefor, and to answer what possibly you may expect, for who is sufficient for these things !) persuaded to accept of and embrace your Invitation, acknowledging the encouragement you have proposed. And do signify to you my resolution (in convenient time) to come and abide with you in Gospel service, so long as you shall afford me gospel Encouragement, which, as you will doubtless conclude, I should charitably believe you will not fail to do, so you will not take it amiss that I assure you that I expect it.

Thus promising myself that you will not fail to ask for me at the throne of Grace all suitable and seasonable enlargements of the holy Spirit of Grace, that I may come to you in the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel, and that all my ministrations amongst you may be continually accompanied with the allpowerfull influences of God's Spirit as a means to the conversion and edification of Souls. To the gracious guidance of the same holy Spirit I commend you, and rest yours in Gospel service.

DANIEL BAKER.

Dedham, Dec. 29th, 1711.

1711-12.—Jan. 14th. At a meeting, Voted that Rev. Daniel Baker's Answer be verry gratefully excepted, and the Town renders thanks to him for his good intentions towards them, and do freely concur and take up with his said Answer.

At the same meeting a committee was chosen to take care about what is subscribed towards the Building for Rev. Daniel Baker, that it be regularly and orderly performed.

The only reported publications of Mr. Baker were two Fast Day sermons, one preached at Dedh., 1726, and the other at S., 1727, which make an 18mo vol. of 164 pages. His dedication of the latter discourse to his people illustrates his style and the condition of both pastor and flock in his day.

"Beloved Friends,—It is now more than Seventeen Years since you first Invited me to Preach to you, and above Fourteen since my Inauguration into the Office of Pastor to you, as an assistant to my worthy Predecessor, the Rev. Mr. Gookin; whose Company and Help in the great Work I had undertaken, I so much prized, that might I have yet enjoyed it, I have often thought that I could have been contented with the small Salary you first gave me. But a righteous GOD has ordered it otherwise; However much to My loss, yet undoubtedly to His great Gain and Advantage. It is now more than Ten Years that I have had the whole Pastoral Care of you. And it has been in Weakness and in much Fear that I have been with you. Yet I have this to Comfort and Encourage me, that I have reason to hope that my Preaching has not been altogether in vain to you. God has (and to Him be all the Glory) since my coming amongst you, made a very considerable Addition to His Church; and I am willing to hope of such as shall be saved. Moreover, it has been no small Encouragement to me that my Labours have found so much Acceptance with you. One Instance of which you have now given, in your forwardness to be at the Charge of Printing those Sermons which were Preached on Days of Fasting and Prayer for You and Others.

It is well known that it is owing to the Repeated and Undeniable Request of some of you (especially) that these Sermons are thus come to Publick View. Might I have had my own Inclination, and if I had no more regard to publick usefulness than my own private Interest, or Applause, and had it not been a pain to me to deny you, they had never seen the Light.

I have one Request to you, since I have granted you yours. I must freely confess, I don't remember that ever I asked anything of you of an external nature, or on a worldly account, but you always granted it. And now my Request is, that you would be earnest in your Prayers to God for me, that I may obtain mercy to be Faithful to God and Souls; that my ministry may yet be more successful among you, and that I may save my own Soul as well as yours. I am Your Affectionate Friend and Servant of your Souls.

DANIEL BAKER."

1718.—Sept. 26—A Committee was chosen to inspect the timber at Badluck Swamp, within the late grant of 3000 acres of land, and empowered to prosecute any person, or persons, should cut, make strip or pillage any wood or timber upon said premises.

The ensuing Warrant and Rate found among the papers left by my gr. grd. father Cuzzens is here inserted as showing the former manner of raising support for ministers, and the No. of polls and heads of families in S. in 1721, and also the comparative amount of real and personal estate which each possessed.

59. The Sum Totall, [or the half of £70, payable in money,] 34 0 10

This Rate was made by us the Subscribers November ye 6th, 1721, for the paying the Rev. Mr. Daniel Baker His Salary this present year according to the Grant and agreement of the Town with Him.

To Constable Isaac Cuzzens this list is Committed to Collect.

SAM'L BULLARD,	} Assessors of Sherborn.
JOHN DEATH,
WM. RIDER, JUN.,

1720-1.—Feb. 20.—A committee of 3 from the W. and 3 from the E. part of the town, were chosen to consult together and report at the next meeting, respecting the building of a new meetinghouse near dirty meadow, [W. Sherborn] bridge, and to deliberate and make report of what they may think may be for the best for the town to act upon in the premises; and to propose any method, that may be likely to conduce to the peace and well-being of the town referring to the concern of the meeting-house, &c.

March 20. The report of this committee not being accepted, it was voted to run a direct line from Framingham corner to Dopping brook, and then the brook to be the bound till it come into Bogestow brook, and then that to be the bound till it come to Medway line.

Sept. 25, 1721.—Voted to receive £267, their proportion of £50,000 of bills of credit, issued by the G. C. for the relief of the towns of the colony and to let it out in sums not above £30 nor less than £10 to a man so it might be timely paid in to the public treasury according to the provisions of the act.

N. B. The interest of these loans went to defray Town charges.

1721-2.—Feb. 5. Voted by a majority that money be raised by way of rate, (sufficient with the old meeting-house) to build a new one upon the land that the town formerly set apart for that purpose, near or upon the place occupied by the old house.

1722.—Nov. 12. It being moved to reconsider and nullifie the above vote, the motion was negatived by a majority.

1722-3.—March 6. The qualified voters met at the meeting-house, and immediately adjourned to meet at "the platt seventy or six Score Rods Easterly from Dirty Meadow Bridge, or Thereabouts," [about half a mile E. of the E. Depot in Hol.] when and where it was voted unanimously by all present, "that a meetinghouse be built for the town to worship God in, on Lord's Days upon a certain hill by the road side, where was laid a heap of stones to know the place by, &c. and made null and void and of no effect the former vote of the town above and bearing date Feb. 5th, 1721-2, so that the town remain together for the strengthening thereof."

1723.—Nov. 18th. The inhabitants "voted to nullifie and make void this vote of March 6, in consideration that the Form and Situation of the Town is so ill Convenient, that one Meeting house Cannot be so placed as to Suit the Whole town, but that in time there will be need of two to accommodate the Inhabitants." Also voted to build on or near the spot where the old meeting house is standing a new one, "ye Demensions to be about forty foot in length, about thirty two foot in bredth and about twenty foot post." And "that £160 be Levied on ye Inhabitants by way of Rate upon Polls & Estates to be Emproved towards the defreying the Charge of the said Building."

"At said Meeting after Sundry votes had passed, relating to the building, or rebuilding of ye publick Meeting house, the following motion was made by Sundry of ye Principle Inhabitants of ye said town, Who are Dwellers on ye West side of Dopping Brook. The request of us the Subscribers in behalf of Our Selves and the Other Western Inhabitants of ye town; Do desire that the following articles may be put to vote, viz. Whether they will not be free to Grant us ye liberty of Having that part of ye Sheffield's Farm Lying on ye East Side of Boggestow Brook and Edmund Morses Land and possessions on ye East side of Dopping brook aforesaid over and above ye Dividing line projected between the Eastern and Western parts of the town from Colonel Buckminsters Corner, &c. Then We will do all publick Duty to the town as heretofore 'till the Genll. Court Shall Set us off Except in ye Cost of Building or rebuilding the meeting house, as it has been this day voted. And if so We'll ask for a Dividing line no further Eastward."

JONATHAN WHITNEY,
TIMOTHY LEALAND,
AARON MORSE,
MOSES ADAMS, JR.,
JOSEPH JOHNSON,
EBENEZER PRATT,
GERSHOM EAMES,

JOHN GOULDING,
JOSHUA UNDERWOOD,
THOMAS JONES,
ISAAC ADAMS,
JOHN TWITCHELL,
JOHN LARNIT.

On the above the following vote is recorded. "The town by their vote do save to the said Western Inhabitants over Doppin Brook whensoever they are sett off, their proportion in ye £160 this day granted towards ye Building ye publick Meeting House where it now stands." The remainder of the above motion passed in the affirmative, "for the sake of future peace and good Neighborhood."

Sh., 1725.—Sept. 13. "One hundred and fourty pounds was granted to Defray ye Cost & Charge of Building & finishing the Meetinghouse in Sherborn."

Dec. 6th. Voted that "the room round the sides of the meeting-house below (except the alley room) be Emproved for the building of Pues, and that Such persons unto Whome the Town Should See reason to grant the liberty of the room for pues, Should do it at their own Cost."

G. C. Rec., June 3, 1724. A petition of the inhabitants of the Westerly part of Sherborn. showing the great inconvenience they are under by reason of their great distance from the place of Public Worship, the said town being near 12 miles long and the meeting house situated at the Easterly End; That they have applyed to the Town to be set off but cannot obtain a division by such a line as they think reasonable; and therefore praying that they may be made a distinct and separate township by such boundarys as are in the said petition particularly set forth. In Council read and ordered that Adam Winthrop, Jona. Dowse, Esqs., (with whom the House joined Eben'r Stone, John Quincy, Esqs., and Mr. Edward White) be a Committee to repair as soon as may be to Sherborn and make inquiry into the matter of this petition and report what they think proper for this Court to do thereon. The charge of the Committee to be born by the petitioners.

June 16, 1724. A petition of Timothy Leland and others. A Committee of the inhabitants of the Westerly part of Sherborn, praying that this Court would direct the said town not to levy any tax on them for building the meeting house till September next. The Committee appointed to consider their former petition not being able to proceed to Sherborn till the recess of the Court.

In Council read and ordered that the prayer of this petition be granted. In the House read and concurred in.

Nov. 20, 1724. Reported and recommended the Western part be erected into a precinct and separated from the first parish by the line that now divides Sherborn from Holliston and Ashland; that they be obliged within eighteen months to erect and finish at their own charge a suitable house of worship; that they provide as soon as may be a learned and orthodox minister; that they be allowed to assess the lands of non-residents within said precinct 1d. per acre towards the charge of building and settling a minister; that they be freed from paying any part of £160 lately assessed by said town for building a meeting-house in the Easterly part of the town; that they continue to pay their proportion for the support of the present minister of the town until they obtain a minister of their own, and no longer; that they procure and maintain a schoolmaster to instruct their youth in reading and writing.

Their report was accepted in the several articles thereof, "saving that the Western part of S. be a Town and not a precinct, and that a bill be brought in to erect the said lands into a Township; and that the inhabitants of the W. part pay the charges of the Committee, viz., £10." This bill passed to be enacted by both Houses, Dec. 3, 1724, dividing Sherborn, and erecting the W. part into a township by the name of Holliston, in honor of the illustrious Thomas Hollis, Esq., of London; and directing that Mr. John Goulding, a principal inhabitant of Hollis-ton be empowered and directed to summon the inhabitants qualified for voters to meet for the chusing of town officers to stand until the next annual election according to law. In the House read and concurred in and consented to by Wm. Dummer.

Sherborn, 1726.—Sept. 26. Leave was granted to all persons in ye said town that are disposed to build stables or Houses [called noon houses] for their conveniences on Lord's Day, to build on ye sides of ye Meeting-house Common, so as not to Discommode the Same.

1726-7.—Jan. 27.—Voted that what persons payed in ye last Meetinghouse rate be a rule to seat ye meetinghouse by allowing but one head to an Estate having respect to old age; that the third seat below and ye fore front be equal in dignity and ye fourth seat below and ye second front be equal in dignity. Deacon Hopeskill Lealand, Dea. Benoni Lerner and William Greenwood were chosen a committee to seat the meetinghouse.

1727.—Dec. 29. A vote passed to build a schoolhouse 18 feet wide and 20 feet long, and to set it on Meetinghouse Common on the South easterly side of the Meetinghouse.

1728.—April 16. A committee was chosen to sell ye school land in the town towards defraying the Charge of building and finishing the school house. This no doubt included the 50 acre lot that was "to be appropriated forever for the use of a free school for teaching the English and Indian children" if "it was ever set out." The consent of the G. C. seems not to have been asked.

1728-9.—Jan. 6. The school lands were sold to Obediah Morse and Dea. Benoni Learned, the former paying forty and the latter ten pounds.

1731.—Dec. 8. Voted and granted that ten shillings be assessed in the next town rate to repair the old, or build new stocks.

1733.—Dec. 7. Granted to Capt. Death the sum of ten shillings which is now in his hands to pay the Cost he was at for Entering a petition at the G. C. on the towns behalf relating to their being Doomed for Not sending a representative.

Granted to Mrs. Rebecca Baker the sum of £3 to make up a Deficiency in the late reverd. Mr. Bakers salary.

1736.—May 18. Several other grants were made to individuals, "to be paid out of the fine the G. C. sent back to the town."

1737.—May 18. Several other grants were made to individuals to be paid out "of the fine the Genll. Court returned to the town."

1746.—Nov. 12. Then ye Town Voted to pay Mr. Wilson, for Preaching (in the time of ye Revd. Mr. Porter's sickness) out of money returned to ye Town for not sending a representative.

1749.—Octr. 31. Then the town voted that the Revd. Mr. Porter's Sallary, for this present year, Shall be four hundred Pounds Old tenor. —Then a vote was asked whither the women should sit with their chairs in the alleys of the meeting house, and it passed in the Negative.

1752.—May 19. Isaac Coolege, Esq., was Chosen to represent the town in a Great and General Court appointed to be Convened for his Majesty's service at Concord, may 27, 1752.

1753.—March 6. Granted £13 6s. 8d. to Recrute the town stock of Ammunition. Granted to Elisha Kendal for ye Locks to Lock up the amunition 8d. Granted to the Selectmen that Were at Expence in Geting a fine remitted for the towns not sending a Representative the Last year, 13s. 4d.

1754.—“This year is remarkable, for the prevalence of an uncommon disorder, which prevailed in this town and Holliston, denominated in the latter place, the Great Sickness, and, in Sherborne, the Memorable Mortality. The number of deaths recorded in January is 12; February, 6; March, 2; April, 5. During the next six months no deaths are recorded. November 3, Dec. 5.

The whole number who died of this fatal malady in S. was between 20 and 30.”

1759.—Sept. 9. A certificate was sent from the Baptist Church of Christ in Boston, declaring Mr. Jonathan Partridge, of said Sherborne, to be a member of said Church, under the care of Mr. Ephraim Bounde, Elder of sd. Church.

Sept. 10.—Then the town voted that Mr. Porter's Sallary should be this present year 66 pound 13 shillings and 4 pence.

1758.—Oct. 2d. Granted twenty seven pounds and fifteen shillings to fulfil and Complete what remained due from the town for the Sallary of the Revd. Mr. Samuel Porter, Late Deced.* At the said meeting, the town granted £66 13s. 4d. to supply the town with Preaching for time to Come. At the above said meeting, the town made Choice of Deacon James Whitney, Deacon Jonathan Russell and Mr. Arthur Clark, a Committee to supply the Pulpit in sd. town.

Decr. 18.—Voted that the committee Which Ware appointed to supply the Pulpit be Desird to Ingage Mr. Minot for 1 or 2 months Longer to preach in sd. town.

1758-9.—Jan 29. The Church and town unitedly made Choice of Mr. Steven Minot to be their Gospel minister by a Unanemos Vote, and offered £133 6s. 8d. towards his settlement; and £66 13s. 4d. for his Salary.

June 29.—The town Voted that the Committee already Chosen, are desired to Ingage Mr. Locke, to Supply the town with Preaching, or Some other gentleman or gentlemen, Until there shall be another meeting on that affair.

August 15.—The town Concurred with the act of the Church, in Choosing Revd. Samuel Locke for their Gospel minister, by a majority of * The following Translation of his Latin epitaph in the central graveyard in S. is presumed to be a just discription of his character.

“Beneath this stone are deposited the remains of the Reverend SAMUEL PORTER; a man distinguished for active powers of mind; conspicuous for piety and prudence, for benevolence and courtesy of manners; a zealous preacher of the gospel; an ornament of the doctrine, and a shining example of the life of Christ; a most watchful and affectionate pastor of the church at Sherbourn, during twenty-four years. He was also well versed in human learning and sacred Theology, and distinguishingly endowed and adorned with social affections and virtues. He passed from this life to the heavenly regions, September 16, 1758, in the 49th year of his age.”

Votes, and voted £133 6s. 8d. for his encouragement to settle with us ; also £73 6s. 8d. per annum, for his salary, provided he settle with us in the Gospel ministry, and so Long as he continues in the same. At the aforesaid meeting, the town chose as a committee, to join with the churches committee, Dr. Bela Lincoln and John Morse, to treat with Revd. Samuel Lock.

Rev. Samuel Lock, by his answer in ye affirmative, on September 23d, 1759, manifested his Exceptence of the choice above mentioned.

Octr. 11.—In town meeting, voted that Wednesday, the 7th day of November next, be the day for the Ordination of Revd. Samuel Lock, into the office and service of the Gospel ministry in Shurborne, by a majority of Votes. Also at ye said meeting, the town chose Capt. Edward Learned, Capt. May 21.—Voted, that if the Hon. Continental Congress should in their wisdom declare the Colonies independent of great Britain, we, the inhabitants of the town of S. will, with our lives and fortunes, endeavour to support them in that measure; and we do hereby instruct Mr. Daniel Whitney, now Chosen our representative for the year ensuing to act in conformity to the above said vote.

July 5.—Voted to give £7 per man, in addition to the bounty that is given by the colony, to twenty one men that shall enlist to go to Canada.

August 26.—The last vote was reconsidered. Voted that the Selectmen procure a hospital for inoculating for Small-pox, if they can get liberty from the court.

1776.—Nov. 28. Voted that the present General Court of this State should form such a Constitution and form of Government, as they judge will most conduce to the happiness, peace and safety of the Inhabitants thereof, and that the same be made publick for the inspection and approbation of the Inhabitants of this State, before the ratification thereof.

“The votes of the Inhabitants of this town, during the whole of the revolutionary struggle, prove that they were animated, to a high degree with that spirit which achieved our independence.

As soon as the news reached them of the massacre at Lexington, on the 19th of April, 1775, the minute men proved themselves worthy of their title, by marching immediately to meet the assailants, and the rest of the able bodied men, of all ages, followed with all possible alacrity. But the distance was so great and the route of the enemy so uncertain, that they had not the satisfaction of meeting and helping to chastise them. They, however, furnished their quota to assist in the besieging of Boston; and a number of them displayed their heroism in the battles of Bunker Hill,” White Plains, and Brandywine. Seven brothers, the sons of Mr. Samuel Clark, (p. 60, No. 11,) enlisted as soldiers, and served, on an average, over three years per man. Other instances of remarkable devotion to freedom's cause might be cited, but it is deemed impracticable to ascertain the names or number of all from S. who served in that war.

1786.—This year was remarkable on account of an insurrection, called "Shays' rebellion." On this occasion the inhabitants of S. proved themselves to be firm friends of liberty and order, by readily furnishing their portion of officers and privates, to join the troops under the command of General Lincoln.

"Mr John Ware of S. acted as adjutant in this expedition. Being sent with orders to a distance from Lincoln's army, he stopped for refreshment, at a tavern in, or near Brookfield, where there happened to be a small party of insurgents, who took him prisoner and confined him in an upper room of the house, while they kept guard below. In the course of the day, Ware saw from his prison a company of cavalry approaching, which he soon recognized as being on the side of government. He hailed them from a window of his apartment and made them acquainted with his situation. The house was immediately surrounded, the Shaysites surrendered at discretion, and W. was enabled to accomplish the object of his mission."

1787.—Dec 10. Daniel Whitney, Esq. was chosen a delegate to represent the town in the convention, to be holden in Boston, on the 2d Wednesday of January next, for the purpose of approving, or disapproving the Constitution, or Frame of Government for the United States of America. Voted to give the delegate instructions, which conclude thus :

"But, sir, we mean not to give you positive instructions, relative to your voting for or against the reported Constitution. When assembled, you will have the collected wisdom of the State before you ; will hear all that can be said on the subject, and consequently be able to form a judicious opinion. And having the fullest confidence in your political wisdom, integrity and patriotism, we cheerfully, on our part, submit the all important question to your decision. And we beseech the Allwise Governor of the world to take the Convention under his holy influence, that so the result may be the best good of the people of the United States of America."

"This truly honorable member was one of the majority, who voted in favour of this truly invaluable instrument."

1793.—Dec. 2d. A vote was asked whether the town will accept of the bell, on the terms proposed by the subscribers, viz. That the town shall hang the said bell handsomely, and cause it to be rung, as usual in towns ; then said bell to remain for the use of the town, so long as they shall remain a religious society. Passed in the affirmative.

1797.—Nov. 6. Voted to make up the wages of the militia, that shall be detached from this town, according to a resolve of Congress, in expectation of a war with France, ten dollars a month, provided they march, and also $1 bounty, whether they march or not, for non-commissioned officers and privates. Also to give them $2 more bounty, if they march out of the Commonwealth.

The following acts of the Town, from June, 1731, to Aug., 1734, accidentally omitted on p. 299, should be there read in the order of dates.

[1731.—June 16. A committee of three, viz., Deacon Greenwood, William Lealand and John Holbrook, to take care for the supply of the pulpit, untill ye Town Com into Sum other method; Then was granted the sum of Fifty pounds for the Supply of ye Pulpit.

Sept. 27.—It was put to vote which of the Gentlemen who had of late supplied the pulpit, they wold here further in ye Supply of ye Pulpit, if they might be obtained, And Mr Uarney had the majority of votes.

Dec. 10.—Granted the sum of Sixty Pounds for the Support, and to pay those ministers which supply the Pulpit with preaching.

1731—2.—Jan. 26. It being tryed by a vote whether ye Town inclined to hire som other Gentleman in the pulpit, and it passed fully in the affirmative.

1732.—April 25. The Churches choice of Rev. John Warren to be their Gospil minister was presented to the Town for their Concurrence. And the Town by a full Vote accepted of the Churches Choice; And Lt. Joseph Ware, Dea. Greenwood and Samuel Holbrook, ware Chosen a Committee to Treat with Mr. John Warren, and report what the Town has dun, &c. At this meeting twenty six voters entred their dissent to the above proceedings, said meeting being counted irregular and Not Legal. And they observe Further more, We do not Concur with the Choice of the Church this Day.

Oct. 12.—Then it was put to the town to know their minds, whither they would accept of the Churches Choice of ye Rev. Mr. Ward Cotton to be their Gospel Minister, and the town unanimously manifested their acceptance of the Churches choice, of the Reverend gentleman aforesaid, by written votes. The town made choice of a committee to join with that of the church, to treat with Mr. Cotton, &c. Nothing further appears respecting Mr. Cotton on the records. At this meeting the town voted one hundred and twenty pounds, to supply the town with preaching, &c.

1733.—June 14. At said meeting, Mr. Nathaniel Walter was chosen the Gospel minister of said Church and town by a majority of votes—Also, a committee was chosen to treet with Mr. Walter, &c. Nothing further respecting Mr. W. on record.

Sept. 28th.—At a meeting of the Church in Sherborn, with the rest of the freeholders, and other Inhabitants of said Town, Duly qualified to vote in Town affairs, and to joyn Ishue, or Concur With, the Church in the choice of a Gospel minister—The Church and Town Unanimously voted and made choice of Ebenezer Hancock to be their Gospel minister, and a committee was chosen to Give him an Invitation or call to settle with us in the Work and service, &c. Nothing is further recorded of Mr. Hancock.

1734.—April 25. The Church and town by a Unanimous Vote made choice of Mr. Samuel Porter to be their Gospel Minister, and voted three hundred pounds in Bills of Publick credit towards his Settlement.

Also, voted one hundred and thirty pounds per annum for his Salary in Bills of credit on this province, according to their present value: and to rise and fall as Silver money doth With the Marchants of this province—Provided he Settle with us, in the Gospel ministry, and so long as he Continues in the Same.

Mr. John Holbrook, Capt. John Death, Lieut. Isaac Coolidge, Mr. James Whitney & Ensign Eleazer Fairbanks, were Chosen a Committee to joyn with the Churches Committee, To Treet with the Reverd. Gentlm. Chosen as afore sd., And to give him an Invitation, or call to Settle in Said Town, in the Work and Service of the Gospel Ministry.

July 16.—Voted that the Revd. Mr. Samuel Porter's Yearly Salary Shall be one hundred and Thirty ounces of Silver, or the amount thereof in Bills of Public Credit, And the Salary Annually to Rise and fall according to the Standard of Silver money at Twenty Shillings per ounce.

August 20.—The Church and Town Voted that the fourth Wednesday in October next, Shall be the Day appointed to ordain the Revd. Mr. Samuel Porter, and granted Twenty five pounds, to be Levied on Polls and Estats by Way of vote, according to the rules prescribed in the Law for the Support of the Ministers and Messingers at the ordination, &c.]

1807.—Voted to give the officers and soldiers, that are or may be detached, as our proportion of one hundred thousand militia, ordered by the President of U. S., to be detached and held in readiness to march at a moment's warning, at the rate of $12 per month, including the pay allowed them by the U. S., provided they are called into actual service.

1808.—Dec. 11. Voted to allow and pay to the officers and soldiers that were detached, in the course of the present month, as our proportion of one hundred thousand militia, &c., such sums, as shall, together with the pay allowed them by the U. S., be equal to $12 per month, during the time they shall be in actual service.

1809.—August 22. From this time the "PARISH RECORDS" have been kept in a book, separate from the TOWN RECORDS.

1814.—August 29. Voted to hire some person to assist the Revd. Elijah Brown, in the discharge of his ministerial duties, during his feeble state of health, and granted $100 for this purpose.

1814.—Voted to allow and pay to the soldiers that are or may be detached from this town, previous to the first Monday of March next, to serve in the armies of the U. S. such sums as shall, together with the pay allowed them by the State and General government, be equal to $15 per month during the time they shall be in actual service. Also voted to pay the commissioned and non-commissioned officers, the same sum granted to the soldiers, in addition to the pay allowed them by the State and General government.

1815.—May 23. Voted to raise $240 for hiring Preaching.

1816.—March 4. A vote similar to the above was past, money granted and a committed chosen to hire preaching.

Sept. Monday the day of—A vote was asked whether the Parish would concur with the Church of Christ in this place, in giving the Rev. Ephraim Randall an invitation to settle with them, as their Gospel minister, and it passed in the negative.

Nov. 4.—Voted and granted $75 to defray the expences of the Funeral of the late Rev. Elijah Brown.

1816.—Nov. 25. Shearjashub Bourne Townsend, a native of Barrington, R. I., and graduate of Brown University, 1814, was chosen by a vote of the church to be their pastor.

Dec. 16.—The parish voted to concur with the church in calling Mr. S. B. Townsend to settle with them, as their gospel minister. Three hundred dollars were granted to be paid him within one year from the time of his settlement; the further sum of $300 in two years from that time; and $600 annually.

1817.—June 9. The parish voted to concur with the church in appointing the second day of July next for the ordination of Mr. Townsend, who was then ordained.

1828.—August 25. Voted that the Parish Committee in concurrence with Rev. Mr. Townsend be directed to hire a minister, to supply the pulpit, during Mr. Townsend's inability to discharge his ministerial duties; and that they draw on the Treasurer for money to defray the expense to an amount, not exceeding $100.

1829.—July 1. "Gentlemen, Selectmen of the Town of Sherborn—

Having, after serious consideration, come to the conclusion to resign my Salary at the close of this year of my Ministry, I take this method of signifying my determination to you, and through you to the People at a convenient opportunity. The occasion would prompt me to say much; but my strength admonishes me to leave my motives to be chiefly interpreted by my past conduct and my known sentiments. The People will not be insensible, that I voluntarily remit what, if I live, I might long and legally retain. I see no reasonable prospect that I shall within several years, if ever, be able to perform the regular and necessary duties of the stated ministry, even on the supposition that I should live and my health be much improved.

I deem it my duty to say that I hope it will be considered one of my principal reasons for adopting the present measures, that the Church and people may have an early opportunity of concurring in the choice of a Christian Pastor and Teacher, before discord shall invade and divide a People hitherto noted for Peace.

If I make any sacrifice by this relinquishment, all I wish for myself in return is the affectionate remembrance of this People, and the permanent effect of my labors among them. I am sensible of many errors and deficiencies; I ask their forgiveness. And I shall cherish as long as life a deep sense of their past generosity and friendship.

I am yours, Gentlemen, with respect and affection.

SHERJASHUB B. TOWNSEND.

"P. S. As I have delayed till this time to make this communication, I have engaged Rev. Mr. Clarke to preach for three succeeding Sabbaths.

If any explanation of the above is required, it will be understood, that I desire to retain a nominal relation to this Society as Minister; and a Person settled would therefore be settled as colleague. But he would have all the compensation to receive, and, except what might be voluntary on my part, he would have all the ministerial duties to perform."

July 20.—Voted to discharge Rev. Mr. Townsend partially from his official duties—upon the conditions expressed in the above communication.

In the autumn of this year, Mr. T. and his wife went on a journey for the benefit of his health; first to Charleston, S. C., and thence to St. Augustine, in Florida, where he died without issue. He had formerly been a tutor in Brown University. He possessed a mind of a high order, though subject at times to partial alienation. Of his benevolence and piety none qualified to judge could doubt.

1830,—March 22. Rev. AMOS CLARKE, was invited by a vote of the church and congregation united,* to become the Associate Pastor, with the Rev. Mr. Townsend, over this Society.

June 7.—Voted that the Parish Committee be requested to write to the Rev. Mr. Townsend, our senior Pastor, and express to him our sympathy and sorrow for the continuance of his indisposition; our gratitude for the magnanimous sacrifice he has made by relinquishing his salary, to promote our union and harmony; and our anxious desire for his restoration to health and his early return to his People:—and also to make him particularly acquainted with all the important circumstances, that have taken place in the Parish during his absence.

August 18 and 19.—This Society raised a meeting-house which was finished in December following. It is 83 by 48 feet, containing 78 pews on the ground floor and 6 in the gallery, besides seats for musicians. The architecture of this house exhibits a happy union of simplicity and elegance. On Lord's day, Dec. 26, of the same year, public worship was attended, for the last time, and an interesting and instructive sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Clarke, in the old meeting-house, which had been devoted to that purpose, for more than a century. On Wednesday, the 29th of the same month and year, the new house, erected within a few feet of the old one, was solemnly dedicated to the worship of God.

On the 10th of February, 1830, a petition to William Harriss, Esq., or either of the Justices of the Peace, in the town of Natick, was signed by twelve of the male inhabitants of the town of Sherborn, in behalf of a majority of the church, and a minority of the congregation, requesting that "a warrant may be issued, in due form of law, for the purpose of forming a Second religious Congregational Society, in said town." A warrant was accordingly issued, on the next day, by Samuel Fisk, Esq., of Natick; and, on the 22d of the same month and year, the Society was duly organized.

This division of the parish, so lamentable in itself, and of the necessity of which doubts may be honestly entertained, had quite a majority of the Church; and as they retained the previous forms of government and belief, they must be considered as the original Puritan Church of 1685, and the rightful depositaries of the records of that body.

* Was not this an innovation on the usage of the church and parish? See pp. 300, 302, 305-307.

Very truly yours,

On the 8th of July following, this society raised the frame of a meeting-house, on a rising piece of ground, about 40 rods S. E. of Meeting-house Hill. This house is 60 by 46 feet, contains 64 pews on the floor, and a gallery for musicians. It is a pleasing specimen of plain and neat architecture. The congregation worshipping in this house, styled the Trinitarian Church and Society, Sept. 30, 1830, called Mr. Samuel Lee,† who graduated 1827 at Yale College, and subsequently at the Theological Seminary at New Haven. He was installed Nov. 4th following. Mr. Lee, after a successful ministry of some years, was succeeded as pastor of this church by Mr. Smith, now Professor in Bangor Theological Seminary, who was succeeded by Edmund Dowse, the present minister.

LAWYERS.

Sherborn has never had a lawyer; and yet is believed to have transacted her own business as legally, and to have been afflicted and impoverished far less by litigation than her sister towns, which have long had able and high-minded lawyers established in their midst. Such was formerly her relative rank for other characteristics than litigation, as to attract hither the immortal Ames to establish himself in practice; but he soon left for Dedham. Daniel Warren, about 1812, opened a Law Office here, but his fees did not encourage his continuance; and the like result would probably be realized from a third attempt, if made before Sherborn changes her inhabitants or greatly increases her business.

POPULATION.

In 1674, when incorporated, S. contained about 108 souls; in 1721, three years before Holl. was set off, she had about 408 souls; in 1764, there were 113 families and 630 inhabitants; in 1820, 811 do.; in 1830, 900 do.; and in 1850, 1043 do. During the last 5 years, in consequence of the introduction of shoe manufactories, her population has increased more rapidly, and may now amount to 1,400.

EDUCATION.

S. from the first was attentive to education; and she has furnished for her population a rare number of graduates, mostly the sons of laymen. In 1770, Rev. Dr. Locke, and after him, Rev. Mr. Brown, kept schools for preparing young men for college. In 1825, an edifice was erected, principally by subscription, in which Rev. Mr. Clark and others gave regular instruction in the Classics and higher branches of English; and which has of late years continued to be thus used only for an Autumn term. The town, first divided into 3 districts, now consists of 7. Each is furnished with a neat and commodious school-house, in which a school is supported by liberal grants from the town for a term, varying with the number of scholars, from 5 to 8 months in a year. Improvements in the organization and management of the schools are anticipated, and a High School, under favorable circumstances, is about to go into operation.

A circulating library of good size and well-chosen volumes is owned by an association, and a great variety and number of periodicals are weekly received. Lyceums and meetings for the discussion of various subjects, (some of late on agriculture,) Sunday schools and Bible classes have been established for years; and the modern practice of employing distinguished lecturers from abroad has been introduced, much to the amusement, if not profit of the young.

GEOLOGY.

Primitive crystalline rocks outcrop abundantly in the S. W. and E. parts of the town; and altered mica slate in the central and W. parts. Superimposed upon these is a deep deposit of very coarse drift, consisting of large bowlders and angular fragments of ledges, situated invariably to the North, at a distance varying from a few paces to forty miles. The ledges, when uncovered, reveal the marks of the drift always pointing in the direction from which it was urged by the waves and currents of a former sea. In the valleys and meadows, and beneath the ponds, occur alluvial formations. Every division of the town bears witness to remote volcanic action; producing changes in the relative level of different tracts, altering, fracturing, dislocating, and overturning rocks of aqueous origin and former horizontal position, and forcing through them mineral matter in a state of fusion, forming veins and dykes of a different rock. The mica slate formation exhibits all these effects. On the common, it is traversed by veins of quartz, and N. of the plain it is the wall-rock of an eruption of porphyritic trap.

S. contains 4 remarkable uplifts, viz.: Pocasset Mountain in the S. part, City Hill in the W.; Brush Hill in the N. W., and Peter's Hill in the N. The latter, upraised apparently by a force acting in a S. W. direction, leaving its adjoining strata to subside and become deep buried at its base, must originally have presented a perpendicular wall of about 75 feet in height, and  $\frac{1}{4}$  m. in length. This, acted upon by water, frost, and gravity, now presents a bold and rocky talus, almost inaccessible, yet yielding a thrifty growth of wood.

Brush Hill is the highest land in S., and affords an extensive and delightful prospect, of such easy access as to invite admirers of nature from abroad. It admits of cultivation on all sides to its summit. City Hill and Pocasset Mountain are mere cones of almost naked rocks.

In the E. part of the town are indications of the presence of icebergs stranded during the period of the drift. The basins of Farm Lake and the meadow immediately E. of it seem to have been formed by one which kept its moorings until the sea had piled up gravel to a great depth on the N. side, and filled two fissures with the same, which on the melting of the iceberg formed the narrow bank on the E. side of the lake, and the island near the S. shore. One fourth of a mile N. W. of the lake others appear to have lodged and occasioned in a similar way the ridge over which the road passes, between two deep basins still partially filled with water.

MINERALOGY.

Near the W. line of S., on the farm of Messrs. Warren & James R. Whitney, occurs a bed of sienite, which from its proximity to the R. R. promises to be extensively quarried. The presence of iron in City Hill and in a swamp near Fran., is reported by the magnetic needle. On and about the common, crystals of epidote, the associate mineral of copper, have been obtained; and around the same locality have been deposited boulders of limestone in considerable quantities, brought, as may yet be verified, from Bolton. Intermingled with these, and also in other places, erratic blocks occur, so highly charged with pyrites of iron, as to render buildings underpinned with them liable to spontaneous combustion. In the E. part of the town porphyritic trap is common, which in one instance is associated with calcareous spar. And there are in this vicinity extensive deposits of well-formed peat, of great prospective value to scientific agriculture. In the drift have been found rose quartz, white carnelian, brucite, jasper, asbestos, &c.

LAKES AND PONDS.

Most of these which anciently existed had made their escape long prior to the arrival of the pale faces; giving room to those aquatic reeds and grasses which, like those of Western prairies, formed a sward that bid defiance to the encroachment of trees. Before the wearing away of the rock at the Narrows, a deep lake covered the Broad Meadows. Farm Lake, in the E. part of the town, near Charles R., remains, covering about 200 acres. It is a beautiful sheet of water, fed entirely by springs, and subject only to the slightest oscillations. It has an outlet, preserving its waters pure in midsummer; and is well stored with pickerel, perch, &c. It has within a few years been furnished with sail-boats, a house of entertainment, and conveniences for bathing, and become a place of much resort during the watering season. The scenery is highly rural. Little Pond, covering about 40 acres, is 1 m. N. of this, and has little besides fish to attract visitors.

SPRINGS.

S. is well supplied with salubrious springs, and a surface admitting of their artificial formation. Most of the streams by which the town is drained, take their rise on the sides of Brush Hill, at an altitude sufficient for the conveyance of the water to the dwellings and farm houses of a large proportion of the inhabitants. A mineral spring, of ancient celebrity, exists on the S. side of Little Pond; but the most efficacious ones remain to be created; perhaps by draining the meadow E. of Farm Lake, tapping it beneath its bank, and drawing its waters tardily through conduits, charged with the soluble salts contained in celebrated medicinal waters. Such springs at this place of increasing resort might possibly remunerate the cost of construction, and perhaps benefit valetudinarians, and prove a cheaper remedy for home-sickness than those of Saratoga.

STREAMS.

The streams which drain the township and supply mill sites, are Sewall's Br., in the S. E., Dopping and W. Sherborn Brs., in the S. W., Chestnut or Coarse Br., in the N. W., and Sawin's Br., in the N. E. They were formerly considerable streams, and drove mills for a greater number of months in the year than at present.

METEOROLOGY.

On the higher grounds, exposed to currents from the ocean, the temperature is more uniform, and vernal frosts seldom occur; but where the surface is arenaceous and depressed, as in the E. part, liabilities to this evil, both in spring and autumn, are increased. Yet the crops in S. are as certain as in any conterminous town. The frequency and amount of rain deposited have vastly diminished since the highest grounds have been denuded of their lofty and thick forests. While these remained, they occasioned a greater elevation of currents charged with humidity, facilitated the intermixture of warm and cold atmospheres, and thereby secured a greater reduction of temperature, the formation of more clouds, and the descent of more water.

The restoration of such forests in S. and throughout the State is a great desideratum, and ought to be a subject of legislative action. In an age of miracles, the prophet prayed rain from heaven: but the freemen of Mass. have power to legislate it from the air; and while they hold fasts in droughts and pray for showers, let them use the means ordained at creation for bringing them.

SOIL AND PRODUCTIONS.

The soil is generally rocky and of difficult tillage, yet fertile. Its inorganic constituents have resulted from the disintegration and decomposition of the rocks and pebbles with which it is so plentifully mixed; and it is mineralogically identical with them. Where they change, so do the soil and the uses to which it is best adapted. The alkaline phosphates never abounded in any part of it, nor have they been supplied by the weathering of the rocks so fast as they have been absorbed and removed. The soil, therefore, is not well adapted to the growth of the cereal grains. The mica slate, which might have been cut by a spade, had Adam's sons arrived some geological periods earlier, has by volcanic heat been rendered intensely hard, yet where naked, or reached by the atmosphere, it weathers rapidly, supplying the pabulum of plants, and especially of the apple, in as great variety as any other rock, or greater. One of its results has been clay, mixed with the drift, however coarse, insuring through capillary attraction the ascent of water in seasons of drought, preventing trees from prematurely shedding their fruit. And as the mica slate drift covers more than half of the township, and is often deeper than the vertical range of the apple, none need wonder at the celebrity of S. for apples, cider, and vinegar; nor charge her with vain presumption if she shall aspire, as a fruit-growing town, to the first rank in Mass. Her geographical position, and meteorology, the constituents of her soil, the interests and necessities, the intelligence, industry, and enterprise of her population, guided by the light of science, almost insure her this distinction.

The soil in the N. W. and E. parts of S., is easier of cultivation, more attracting in appearance, and contains valuable orchards and cranberry beds, but has no mica slate. Its pebbles and few bowlders are hard, and weather slow; and more time is needed for the repairing principle to perform its office. Some tracts are deficient in alumine, and the sand and pebbles too coarse for the ascent of water or culture of productive orchards. These, for the most part, have been abandoned to forest trees, from the growth and sale of which, for firewood and timber, good profits are derived. The soil is excellent for grass and pasturage. The produce of the dairy, the sty, and the stall, continue, as formerly, to be chief staples, and also that of vegetable gardens.

MANUFACTORIES, STORES, &c.

These are few in number, and mostly conducted on a small scale. Mr. Nath'l Dowse, and Dea. Lowell Cooledge & Co., carry on the manufacture of shoes quite extensively; Messrs. Benj. & Joseph Dowse, that of whips; Mr. Malachi Rabcock, that of knives; and Messrs. Flemings, that of willow baskets. A large building has been erected by Mr. Palemon Bickford, for the manufacture of straw goods, and this branch of business is being introduced. Many are extensively engaged in making vinegar, and some still in clarifying cider.

S. contains a post office, of which Jeremiah R. Hawes is P. M.; three stores, for the sale of dry goods and groceries, by Messrs. Geo. & Chas. A. Clark, and Tho. J. Morse, Esq.; one do. by Messrs. J. R. Hawes and Henry W. Bullard, for that of shoes, &c.; and one by Mr. And. Becker (p. 245) for that of clothing, and is supplied with a requisite number of skilful carpenters, stonecutters, and other mechanics.

ANCIENT GARRISONS.

Besides the three garrisons mentioned on pp. 24, 91, and 278, there were two others, viz., one near Holbrook's mills, another N. of Edward's plain, near Nath'l Dowse's, all built at private expense, and the three last, after Philip's war. At the commencement of the Revolution a building was erected near Dea. Fisk's, for the storage of provisions for the army, and a guard stationed over it.

CEMETERIES.

These are eight in number, viz.:

1. The ancient South End, [see p. 25] which received the body of Hopesill Layland, 1655.
2. The Farm ditto that of Daniel Morse, senr., 1688.
3. The Central, [see p. 233] "in which ye first grain was sown," June ye 17, 1686.
4. The Brush Hill, in which the first interment was in 1785.
5. The New South, ditto ditto, March 2, 1790.
6. The Plain, ditto ditto, 1792.
7. The West Sherborn, ditto ditto, 1825, and perhaps earlier.
8. The New Central, most judiciously chosen by Dr. Everett, and laid out with much taste by Capt. Jacob Pratt, received, as its first deposit, the remains of the lamented Dr. Everett in 1852, and the bones of Rev. President Locke in 1853. May it be further consecrated by the removal of those of Rev. Messrs. Gookin, Baker, and Porter.

The mineral character of this ground is eminently adapted to the preservation of the bones of the dead, and its situation to defend it against the sacrilegious encroachments of avarice, and the negligence of barbarism. It even claims attention from residents of the city in quest of lots more secure than those at Mount Auburn. For when the hearts of the children shall become wholly turned from the fathers, the land bereft of present security, and the metropolis subjected to another siege, Mount Auburn may be needed for a fort, and its monuments for a breastwork; while in S., the contest may be decided on the plain, with shoe-knives, shillalahs and brickbats.

HISTORY OF HOLLISTON.

Holliston is situated between 22 and 28 miles S. W. of Boston, on the Milford Branch of the Boston and Worcester R. Road, and constitutes the S. W. corner of Middlesex Co. It has Medway on the S., Milford on the W., Hopkinton on the N. W., Ashland on the N., and Sherborn on the E. It began to be explored and settled long prior to its incorporation as an integral part of Sherborn. As early as May 26, 1659, W'pful Maj. Eleazer Lusher, of Dedh., "one of the right stamp and pure mettle, a gracious, humble, and heavenly-minded man," distinguished for his public services, received a grant from the General Court, [see p. 268] of the land now occupied by most of the Village. The lot was laid out by Lt. Joshua Fisher the same year. The N. extremity of it extended beyond Jar Brook, and probably touched the S. line of Natick, and the S. extremity reached to a point opposite to the Winthrop House. It had Jasper's Hill on the W., and through it flowed Bogistow Brook. This tract Lusher sold 15 (5) 1660, to my ancestor, Lt. Henry Adams of Medfield, who no doubt took immediate possession and mowed the meadows that year. Here he placed his cattle, and elder sons as herdsmen, and especially Jasper who gave name to "Jasper's Hill," from the top of which he could, by signal fires, communicate with his father near his own door in Medfield. A tenement, if not a farmery, Lt. Adams doubtless erected upon the place, and circumstances almost prove that he built 1-3 m. N. of the Common where Col. Whiting resides. Here Jasper Adams is presumed to have lived unmarried, often visited and attended by his father,* until driven off in 1676 by Indian hostilities, a period of 14 years. †

* Lt. Adams did not permanently remove to his new farm, though his name is enrolled with the petitioners for Sherborn, and with those of the grantees at their first meeting in 1675-6 "for ordering the affairs" of the town; for in 1674 he represented Medfield in the G. C., and had the command of her training band in 1675-6, when he was massacred. [See p. 1.]

Lt. Adams and wife having died intestate, leaving children in their minority, the farm was doubtless sold to Hon. Wm. Brown of Salem, whose son, Hon. Col. Samuel B. owned it in 1725, and until his death, June 19, 1731. In 1744 it was in the hands of his heirs; and Jacob Foster, presumed to have been one of them, sold to Dea. James Russell for £360 O. T., [or $160 in Fed. money] 50 acres of it, bounded E. and N. E. by Bogistow and Jar Brooks. May 15, 1745, having come into possession of the remaining 200 acres, he sold them to Jona. Foster for £200 N. Eng. currency, "excepting" in the deed "land for highways and private ways [to the meeting house] and 5 acres E. of the country road and adjoining to the highway leading out of it to the pond," viz.: the land that had doubtless been preconveyed to Rev. Mr. Prentice for a house lot, now situated E. and S. E. of the common. In this deed, he mentions the land of Mr. Prentice and David Lealand as forming parts of the S. or S. W. boundaries of the tract, and includes about 5 acres of the Pond meadow, and speaks of a way two rods wide laid out by Lt. Fisher from the 250 acre lot to the Pond meadow, through the land of Francis Varnum. This shows that the 12 acres of meadow included with Lusher's grant, [see p. 268] were not on Chieken Brook, but on the outlet of Winthrop's Lake, and suggests that the aboriginal name of that Lake was Winnekening, which the sur-

The second planter of Holliston was Wm. Sheffield, who settled at Chabboquasset, near the S. E. corner of the town, but not certainly before 1674, although he was the proprietor of a large tract at the place as early as 1663, (not 1673, as on p. 240) and extinguished the Indian claim in 1675. He probably resided in Medfield, and like Lt. Adams occupied his tract 1663-1674. Further than these no occupancies appear to have occurred thus early, nor until about 1680; and then, only by proprietors of grants made prior to the incorporation of S. Sheffield was early upon the ground, and the encouragement given by the town [p. 284] soon drew Lind to commence the building of a mill below the junction of Bogistow and Jar brooks. But the 2d division of the common lands of S. which included all now in H., was not made until 1682, and other settlers were until then excluded. Complete preparation was soon after made for taking possession of these lands; for Oct. 13, 1686, John Hill, senr., Benj. Bullard, Obadiah Morse, Jona. Morse, and Edward West, in the name of the inhabitants of Sherborn, purchased for £10 [see pp. 270-1] of John Awasamog 2,000 acres, more or less, it being [the remainder of] all that tract granted to the town by the G. C., sitting Oct. 7, 1674, and bounded W. by Mr. Edward Rawson.*

veyor, in this solitary instance, applied to the outlet, either, not discovering that it was the identical stream which he had a day or two before called Bogistow Brook in his description of the grant, he first laid out to Dean Winthrop and Francis Vernon, alias Varnum, or, wishing to make more certain his description of these outlets, only one of which seems to have been upon the brook, while the other was nearer the W. shore of the lake, he applied to the stream the name of the Lake from which it issues. The meaning of the word Winne, is pleasant, and derived from two Indian words denoting the smile of the Great Spirit. This might, to barbarians, have seemed applicable to the Lake with its four islands and diversified banks, but by no means that can be conjectured to a stagnant brook without a romantic bank or enlivening fall in its entire course. [see p. 268, and on all preceding pp. for Wennekeening read Chicken Br.] The long desired discovery of the true Indian name of our lake seems to be made; and our Winnekening House may yet supplant the Winthrop, and Winnekening Lake that of Winthrop's Pond. The laying of a road through the land of Varnum shows that the W. part, 200 of the 700 acres granted to him and Wintrop, was assigned to V. This tract was probably purchased by the Hon. John Hull of Boston, and inherited by his only child the wife of the Hon. Samuel Sewall, who after the death of Hull was with his children the proprietor of a farm south of Brown's. After the death of Sewall in 1735, if not before, this farm, consisting probably of 200 acres, appears to have been divided, and the N. part owned by David Lealand,† the S. part by Capt. Goulding, and the N. W. corner by Rev. Mr. Stone. The first occupancy of this grant by tenants, is supposed to have commenced where the late Dea. Marsh resided, and as early as 1680. (‡)

† Jasper retired to the settlement in S., drew land in 1682, and afterwards moved with his cattle and built his cabin against a ledge, about 6 rods W. of a spring, and about 12 rods S. E. of the Morse meadow, where the trace of his cellar and natural fireplace in the rock is now plainly to be seen. The land was then owned, or had previously been, by John Frairy jun., of Medfield, in which it continued to be included until 1713. Here Jasper lived in double solitude for many years, and nearly to the time of his grand nephew, Henry Morse's taking possession of the lot. When advanced in years, he retired to S., where he "died an aged bachelor."

*Rawson owned a "farm" of 2,000 acres, now in Milf'd, which, as described in his Indian deed of 1685, fell entirely within the card-shaped plat of S, being bounded E. by Medfield, S. by Dedham, W. by Mendon and N. by Sherborn, [common lands]. It was afterwards laid out pr. on the W. side of his two great Indian purchase and annexed to Mendon, by which event S. lost a corner of her protracted territory, and the W. line [now of H.] was rendered so irregular.

No considerable number of families, however, had settled in H. so early as 1700; and in 1723, when the settlers petitioned to be set off from S., the petition was subscribed by only 13 freeholders, [p. 297] doubtless a majority, and probably all except 5 then located W. of the line between the two townships. For the history of the incorporation of H. see pp. 296-99. This happy event occurred Dec. 3, 1724, just 50 years from her incorporation with S., and 72 years after the first settlement W. of Charles River; so slow was the progress of settlements in N. Eng'd, after the first emigrations in 1620-41.

The township at its incorporation comprised 15,086 acres. In 1826 it underwent a small reduction by an exchange of territory with Medway, and a larger one in 1846 by the incorporation of Ashland.

Dec. 21, 1724, 18 days after H. was erected into a town the freeholders met at the house of Timothy Lealand, where Wm. Lovering resides, and according to the provisions of the act, elected town officers. "This gave the first impulse to the operations of this infant member of the body politick."

Jan. 4, 1724-5, only 11 days later, they resolved to erect a meeting-house, 32 ft. by 40 ft. with 20 ft. posts and to assess £100 Old Tenor, i. e. about $44.45 cents on the inhabitants towards defraying the cost, and to allow each man assessed the privilege of paying one-half of his rate in labor. This house was founded the next year and "completed in 1728," at a cost of little more than another £100. It was seated in 1749, repaired and enlarged in 1772, and remained the only house of worship in H. until the erection of the present Congregational Church in 1824.

1725. The next subject which engaged the attention of the town was the location of the House which they had resolved to build. Col. Samuel Brown, of Salem, seems to have promised them a site, but they hesitated from which corner of his farm to accept it. They first pitched upon the land that was finally accepted. But as nearly all the inhabitants then lived in the N. and E. parts of the town, they afterwards resolved to build near the comb manufactory on Jar Brook. This site they became convinced would not be commodious eventually to the inhabitants of the whole town, and they peaceably rescinded the vote, and resolved "to set their meeting house S. of Jasper's Hill on the W. side of the road that goes over [around] there on the Hon. Col. Brown's farm." A lot of 3 acres at that place was afterwards given by Col. Samuel Brown to H. "to be perpetually occupied as a site for a meeting-house and burying-ground." *

The town took measures the same year to procure preaching, and public worship was first set up at Timothy Lealand's and there continued while the house was being erected.

* Do not the conditions of this grant place the land on the same footing as Boston Common, and if any part of the ground is ever converted, as has been proposed, to another use, will it not be forfeited to his heirs of which he has many in the vicinity, able to prove their heirship and prosecute their claim? and when improvements shall have greatly enhanced its value may they not be expected to do so? N. B. "The act which shall forfeit the original S. E. half of the burying-ground, will likewise forfeit the beautified common and site of the orthodox chh."

June 26, 1727. "It was voted by the inhabitants to give the sum of £100 in bills of credit towards the settlement of the first Gospel minister yt. shall be settled in ye said town. Jona. Whitney and George Fairbank were appointed a committee to address Hon. Samuel Sewall as to the obtaining a piece of land toward the settlement of a minister." In answer to their application, Judge Sewall May 9, 1728, and his sons, Samuel S. Esq., Rev. Joseph S. and son-in law, Rev. Wm. Cooper and wife Judith (Sewall) Cooper, all of Boston, signed a deed of gift conveying to them in trust 11 acres "for the ye sole proper use, benefit and behoof of ye first Orthodox, Congregational or Presbyterian minister of ye Gospel which shall be settled in ye said town of H. and to his heirs and assigns forever." †

The 2nd article in the warrant for this meeting was "peculiarly characteristic" of our fathers, and reads thus, "to choose an orthodox, learned and pious person to dispense the word of God as a minister of the gospel in ye said town." The result of the meeting was an invitation to Mr. James Stone to undertake the work of the ministry in H. But as the meeting-house was not finished, and no church as yet organized, his ordination was deferred until Nov. 20, 1728. Then a church of 8 members including the pastor elect was organized, and he the same day ordained. "Previous to the solemn and interesting occasion, a day of fasting and prayer was observed, a practice still followed for the purpose of devoutly seeking the divine blessing on such transactions."

Besides a settlement of £100 O. T., i. e. about $44, the town promised Rev. Mr. S. a salary of £75, i. e. $33.33, and to increase it to £85 on the addition of 20 more families to the Parish. In 1742 it was raised to £150 or $67. The salary of his successor was equally humble in amount.

"Rev. Mr. Stone, pursuant to ye choice and election of ye Church and Town of H., and with ye concurrence and assistance of a council of neighbor Churches having accepted ye Pastoral office in said town and received ordination, it was resolved that Jona. Whitney and George Fairbank make conveyance to him of their interest in the land given in trust by Hon. Samuel Sewall and children." This conveyance they accordingly made Jan. 2, 1729-30; and the same year was built as is presumed for Mr. S. the ancient house still in repair and so long known as the Stone Tavern.

May 16, 1729, voted that Dea. Tho. Marshall and Dea. Timothy Lealand be a committee fully empowered by said town and desired to procure and provide £100 in bills of credit and then forthwith to pay it to ye Rev. Mr. Stone according as ye Town have voted. Also that they go to ye Hon. Samuel Brown, Esq., for money and take up £100 upon interest on ye town's account if his Honr. pleases. Col. Brown died June 19, 1731, and the town by a vote acknowledged their obligations to his heirs for the aid they had received, and instructed a committee to remind them of "his promise to make it up £100."

† This 11 acre lot was a corner of their farm of probably 200 acres. Upon it now stands the Winthrop House and most of the S. W. quarter of the village. It was bounded S. (or S. E.) by the road, 94 perches; W. by Adams alias Sheffield's land 56 rods, and N. by Col. Brown's farm 60 rods.

1737-8. The town was divided into 3 districts, viz.: the North, the West, and the Central, and it was resolved that three school houses should be built, viz.: one for the N. between John Haven's and Lt. Isaac Bullard's, 14 ft. by 18 ft. with 7 ft. posts; one of the same dimensions for the W. between Joseph Brown's (now Messinger's), and Hoppin River; and another for the central district, 16 ft. by 20; that £100 be assessed upon the inhabitants to defray the cost, and that each man have liberty to work out his part of the assessment: That Gershom Eames, Ephm. Biglow and Sol. Park be the building committee for the N.; Ebenr. Littlefield, Benj. Bullard and James Perry for the W.; and Ephm. Twitchell, John Death and Jacob Foster for the Central district. The latter house was built in the street E. of the graveyard, the deed to the town of 3 acres adjacent not allowing even a school house to be placed upon it. This house continued to be used by the central district until about 1805. The No. of Districts have since been trebled, and education liberally promoted. But the most important event in the history of education in H. has been the erection of Mt. Hollis Academy on the S. side of Mt. Jasper. [See p. 250.]

1739 voted to raise £8 to make the stocks and to fence in the burying ground; and chose a committee to put the law in force for preventing the destruction of deer.

1742 voted £60 to defray the expense of Rev. Mr. Stone's funeral.

1746-7 voted to remove (vacate) 2 rods of the S. side of a road laid out 3 rods wide by Sherborn in 1683 from the further side of Parker's Farm (grant) now E. of Maj. Goulding's in S. across (around) Jasper's Hill to the cedar swamp; and to accept it at the S. end of said hill, so that the inhabitants on the W. side of H. might have a convenient way to the meeting house. The narrowing or discontinuing of the western part of this road has been the occasion of much uneasiness and trouble to individuals and the public.

1748. The families residing in the S. W. extremity of the town between Medway and Milford, petitioned to be incorporated as a part of the W. Parish of Medway. While their petition was pending, the town forwarded a remonstrance to the G. C. without effect.

1749. The town was fined £5 for not keeping a school as required by law.

Until this date the meeting house had been furnished only with temporary seats. This year it was internally completed and the town chose a committee "to dignify the seats." This committee reported that "the fore seat below should be considered the 1st in dignity, and the 2d below do. the 2d in dignity; and the 3d below and the front seat in the gallery do. equal, and the 3d in dignity, &c., assigning to the seats 7 degrees of dignity. Whether seats built for the colored people were dignified, or they required to sit upon the stairs, has not been discovered. The committee proposed that "the invoice taken in 1748 should be the rule" for seating the meeting, "having a proper regard to age." Their report was accepted by the town; but Geo. Fairbank, John Lealand, John Twitchell, Stephen and Jona. Foster protested, 1st, that the meeting was not regularly carried on ; 2nd, that it was not opened according to law ; and 3d, that the rule of seating the meeting was not according to law or reason. Capt. John Goulding by a vote of the town was allowed to build a pew next to the pulpit stairs ; and Ebenezer Lealand, the father of Dea. Timothy, to build a second remove from that point of honour. Two other pews were probably allowed on the other side of the pulpit, and the one next to it given to the minister. Joseph Johnson was permitted to build on the right, and Isaac Bullard on the left of the great doors. These pews probably accommodated most of the nobility who did not occupy the deacon's seat, or act as clerk and chorister.

1753-4. From Dec. 18 to Jan. 30 of these years prevailed the great sickness unexampled in the history of the town, and probably of any other in N. England. Rev. Mr. Fitch, in his Cent. Sermon, p. 32, says : —

“The symptoms, which peculiarly marked the disease, were violent and piercing pains in the breast or side ; a high fever ; and extreme difficulty of expectoration, which in some cases, — if not in most, — resulted in strangulation. Some, it is said, apparently in the last stages of the disease, were evidently relieved by administering oil, who eventually recovered. No derangement of mind usually accompanied the disease. The sick generally survived their attack only from three to six days. From notes taken during the prevalence of the sickness, by the Rev. Joshua Prentiss, and which were found among his papers after his decease, we learn that on the 31st of December, 7, and on the 4th of January 10 lay unburied ; — that during the week on which the last date occurred, 17 died ; and that from 2 to 5 were buried in a day for many days successively. The whole number who died of this fatal malady was 53 ; — more than one-eighth of the population. Of this number 27 were heads of families — 15 males and 12 females ; — 12 were unmarried persons of adult age — 8 males and 4 females ; — 7 were children ; — and 7 were inhabitants of other towns, all of whom were males, with one exception. — In the fearful desolations produced by this disease, the church of Christ was bereft of 15 of its members. Few families escaped ; and four were entirely broken up by the removal of both the husband and the wife. — For more than a month there were not enough in health to attend the sick and bury the dead, though their whole time was employed in such services. The sick suffered, and the dead laid unburied, notwithstanding charitable assistance and personal attendance were furnished by people in the vicinity. A most remarkable circumstance attending this sickness is its being almost wholly confined to a small town, without the smallest apparent natural cause for its existence at all ; especially for its restriction within so narrow a compass. [See p. 300.] To those, however, who are disposed devoutly to trace whatever effects are discernable in the natural world back to the Great First Cause of all things, and to view every event as ordered and directed for some wise and righteous purpose, by his controlling hand, there will appear something, at least, remarkable in the facts, — of which there is little doubt, — that previous to the breaking out of this desolating sickness, the people were violently engaged in fierce law contentions, which seemed to have originated in the proceedings of the town upon the subject of roads; — that two of the principal men in town were engaged against each other in a lawsuit about a most trifling matter, and were the first seized with the disease while on their return from Court, both of whom fell its speedy victims — one of them before he could reach home, and the other soon after, — and that immediately upon the removal of the scourge with which the people had been most sorely visited, their contentions ceased; their tumults were hushed, and peace and concord prevailed. Since that afflictive season no town has been more noted, probably, for the little its inhabitants have troubled themselves with disputes in law. May the children continue to profit by the lesson which the sorrowful experience of their fathers furnishes them."

1768.—Voted, that this town will endeavor to raise more hemp, flax and wool, and take all prudent and legal measures to encourage the produce and manufactures of this province, and to lessen the use of superfluities: that we accept from Mr. Daniel Mellen the gift of his workshop [offered for the encouragement of manufactures by the town;] that we will not give more for rum, sugar, molasses and rasons than what they can be bought for at Boston; that the representatives in G. C. be desired to use their influence to promote a suitable encouragement for raising wool and flax in such a way as to prevent importation of the same: that we will not have any gloves at funerals but what are made in this province; nor procure any new garment on such occasions but what are absolutely necessary.

1769.—Voted, [for the first time] to send a representative to the G. C., and elected Mr. Joshua Hemenway, and gave him instructions agreeable to those given to the representatives of Boston. He then presented to the town 13s. 4d., which they voted to accept.

1770.—Voted, not to purchase any European goods of John Bernard, James Mc Masters and other importers who had been posted, nor to have any dealings with any country shop-keepers who shall purchase of such importers; that we will use the utmost of our endeavours to encourage and assist those applauded merchants of Boston in their non-importation agreement; and that the Moderator, Dea. James Russell, communicate to them our sincere and hearty thanks for those late measures pursued by them for the good of their country.

1774, March 23.—Alex. Marsh, Joshua Heminway, Aaron Phipps, Mathew Metcalf and Edward Durand were chosen a committee of correspondence with Boston and other towns.

Sep. 12. Voted unanimously, to accept the report of the congress of Middlesex Co., at their late meeting at Concord, and chose James Russell to agree with a founder for two cannon, and to procure 3 half bls. of powder.

1775, Jan. 9.—Voted, to adhere to the advice and association of Continental Congress, and that Joshua Hemingway, Timothy Rockwood, Joseph Bigelow, Samuel Whiting, Jacob Miller, Aaron Phipps and Abner Johnson be a Committ. to inspect the inhabitants of the town in their observation and conforming to the aforesaid obligation.

1775, March.—Voted, that no man shall serve in any town office who shall refuse or neglect to subscribe consent to, and compliance with the advice of the late Continental Congress.

With such promptitude, decision and energy did the inhabitants of this town engage in the awful conflict that achieved our independence; and during the whole of its continuance “they bore a decided and honorable part. They sacrificed their property, hazarded and several lost their lives in the cause of liberty; and their reward is in the grateful remembrance of their posterity. May we never, by our ingratitude and degeneracy, forfeit the inestimable blessings purchased for us at such a sacrifice.”

The number and names of officers and soldiers who served in that war, it may be impossible to ascertain. Among the former should be mentioned Col. Abner Perry, Maj. Jacob Miller and Capt. Daniel Eames, who were conspicuous. The remainder of such civil and ecclesiastical transactions, and changes, as are deemed most worthy of publication, may be gathered from pp. 69–70, from notes on the several pastors, and from the ensuing lists of town officers.

POPULATION.

In 1724, Holliston contained about 100 souls.
 In 1748, there were "about 90 families."
 In 1753, there were "about 400 [pr. 500] inhabitants."
 In 1765, there were 705 ditto.
 In 1790, there were 875 ditto.
 In 1800, there were 783 ditto.
 In 1810, there were 989 ditto.
 In 1820, there were 1,042 ditto.
 In 1830, there were 1,304 ditto.
 In 1840, there were 1,782 ditto.
 In 1850, there were 2,428 ditto.
 In 1856, there are probably 3,100.

GEOLOGY, MINERALOGY AND SOIL.

Of these, little beyond a bird's-eye view has been taken. The geological formation in general is primitive, and mostly covered at very unequal depths with a coarse drift of similar mineral character. In this occur huge boulders of sienite, valuable to be quarried, whose parent bed is to be explored at the North. Overlapping this in small depressed areas are deposits of the same mineral composition, reduced to a good degree of comminution, whose origin was probably alluvial. These are some times deep enough for the subsoil plough, and well adapted to tillage. Upon Phipp's Hill, and in the S. W. part of the town, occurs the peculiar loam that results from the disintegration of mica slate, and probably also in other places. A quarry of soapstone was opened many years ago, immediately E. of the site of the upper R. R. depot, but it proved too pyritiferous to be wrought, and is of no economical value except as a dressing for orchards. No mine, except one plough-share deep, has as yet been much explored, but there is another immediately beneath this to be reached by the subsoil plough. Rocks in place upon the highest land are embossed as if by the action of a former sea and rasped by icebergs with stone teeth, many of which were knocked out and dropped upon the ledges against which they struck. Several of these, if not quarried, appear upon the hill 1-2 mile S. of the R. R. deep cut: but when thus dislodged they were commonly carried by the force of the sea over the hills and rolled down their S. declivities. A remarkable instance of this occurs on the S. side of the hill, N. of Mrs. Abigail Cutler's. Other signs of the presence of icebergs during the glacial period appear in the formation of the basins of the Cedar swamp and Winnekenning Lake. The beautiful islands embosomed by the latter, and still belonging to the proprietors of Medfield and Sherborn, might have originated in loads of gravel, brought hither in an iceberg that was stranded, or have been washed into fissures in the same; and the hill on the N. side of the Lake may be composed of no other materials than such as currents from the N. would have piled up against it; while the hills on the S. side are of such form and composition, as eddies in the sea would have deposited on the leeseide of an obstruction, whose form like that of an iceberg frequently varied.

STREAMS.

Bogistow Brook rises in Medway, flows through Winnekenning Lake and the central and S. E. parts of H. receiving Jar and Dopping Brooks from the N. and affording two mill-sites of inconstant power. Deer Brook, one of the head branches of Charles River, forms part of the W. boundary of H. Hoppin River and Chicken Brook cross the W. parts of the town, supplying power available for mills during part of the year. Were the crowns of the intervening hills plumed with towering evergreens, more vapor would be condensed, and the size of these streams augmented : and if the farms located within their basins were sub-trenched, and all the surplus water by a system of sewerage delivered at their banks, they would be less variable than at present, and perfectly constant in midsummer. The land, moreover, thus treated, would absorb most of the rain which now escapes upon the surface, extract therefrom all its ammonia, converting it into spring water, and be further enriched by a deeper chemical action of the atmosphere upon its mineral constituents. The trenches, kept open at their extremities, would condense vapor charged with another supply of ammonia out of the subterranean air, sure of motion while the breeze above is lulled, and full of water in the driest time as a cellar wall or ice-charged pitcher report. This, by capillary attraction, would spread and ascend to the drying surface, vegetable life and growth be sustained in droughts, crops be rendered certain and far more abundant ; and the country in midsummer would be robed in living green, and the terraced acclivities of sterile Jasper's Hill might become like the hanging gardens of Babylon.

LAKES AND SCENERY.

Winnekening Lake, [see p. 324] alias "Winthrop's Pond," half a mile S. E. of the Common, is a beautiful sheet of water, of rather triangular form, being from N. to S. about 1m. in length, and from E. to W. upon the S. shore  $\frac{3}{4}$ m., and upon the N. do.  $\frac{1}{4}$ m. in width. It once extended from Medway line to the foot of the hill N. E. of the Common, where its outlet excavated a channel and drained it to its present dimensions, redeeming the site of a part of the village. Its ancient banks are still visible, and their base is on a water level. Upon the S. side it is indented with several points, consisting of so many shovel loads of drift thrown down by nature, as if to serve for wharves to the Indian town of Mucksquit. It embraces, in the broadest part, 3 islands, varying in size from  $\frac{1}{8}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an acre. These were formerly covered with wood, which no wood-thief dared molest ; and no lover of the beautiful could do so. On the N. side stood a long row of ornamental trees, planted by Dea. E. Marsh, who ought to be remembered for his intended gift to posterity, and the barbarian forgotten who cut them down. On the E. is Mount Goulding, a rocky eminence, created, not to expose sterility, but to grow wood, reflect heat, and produce showers. This, until recently, was covered with a tall forest, and looked like a mountain : so that the Lake, viewed from the S. W., was truly winne ; and whenever these groves shall be restored, it will not fail to attract the pencil of the artist. It receives two inlets from the S., one of which, at little expense, might be materially increased by the drainage of a marsh in Medway, whose waters are now mostly evaporated. It formerly abounded with perch, pout, and pickerel, and was the meat tub of many poor families, supplying probably as much food as an equal area of pasture and meadow. The economical regulation of its fishery seems worthy of legislative action ; and the rebeautifying of its shores and islands, as an enterprise of benevolence and laudable distinction, solicits the attention of gentlemen of wealth and taste. For if the desolations complained of were repaired, some small marshes diked and lifted,\* and either cultivated or stocked with dark cedar groves, it would vie in beauty and attractiveness with any other lake in Massachusetts, and contribute to health and rational enjoyment. The trees would render the air damper and cooler, check evaporation, and secure an increase of water for its outlet. H. has much pleasant scenery. Upon the hill S. W. of the upper or Medway depot, and upon Mt. Jasper, extensive views may be had of the beautiful valley of Chicken Brook, and of the neighboring villages and country.

CHURCHES.

Besides the enlarged Orthodox Church, built in 1823, and lately furnished with one of the finest organs in N. Eng., there are also Methodist and Universalist meeting-houses of neat appearance, in which regular services are conducted by stationed and settled ministers.

CEMETERIES.

Of these there are several, all hitherto reverently protected ; and all, save one, of comparatively modern establishment. The central yard was laid out soon after the incorporation of the town, and contains the ashes of its founders, whose sacred memories it was designed in the conditions of the gift and acceptance to preserve ; and can we who owe them so vast a debt of gratitude endure to see their monuments removed and the hallowed place of their repose desecrated at the bid of a sickly taste or thirst for speculation ? Land set apart for a public burying place virtually becomes perpetually leased in lots of 6 ft. as fast as the dead are interred and monuments erected.

See Rev. Stat. of Mass., Ch. 130, Sec. 20. " If any person shall wilfully destroy, mutilate, deface, injure, or remove any tomb, monument, gravestone, or other structure or thing, placed or designed for a memorial of the dead, or any fence, railing, curb, or other thing, intended for the protection, or for the ornament, of any tomb, monument, gravestone, or other structure before mentioned, or of any enclosure for the burial of the dead, or shall wilfully destroy, mutilate, remove, cut, break, or injure any tree, shrub or plant, placed or being within any such enclosure, the person so offending shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, nor less than ten dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail, not more than one year."

Lots containing headstones in the original part of the central yard have been sold to individuals ; but could the town or any district Committee give valid titles to such lots, and authorize the removal of monuments without a previous enactment of the legislature, had after the actual or tacit consent of every individual interested, and this at the close of a process of years in duration ? But it is not ascertained that the town has acted in this matter, and it is confidently presumed that they will never compromise their honor in obliterating the graves of their fathers, or peril the interest of the town or posterity by a forfeiture of the ground. It is sacred ; and if ever profaned, let it be by barbarians of another race.

* Rocks in abundance, hard by, and already dug, exist for the purpose.

BUSINESS.

See p. 69. Since 1814 manufactures have been introduced, and during the last 25 years have engaged a large proportion of the inhabitants. Combs are extensively manufactured by Houghton and Daniels; cotton goods by Drury Fairbanks; straw goods by Lewis Slocom, and by Richardson & Slocom; copper pumps by Joslyn & Wilder; but the principal manufactures are of shoes, and conducted most extensively by Wm. Benj. and John Batchelder, Daniels & Blood, Hawkes & Co., Perry & Travis, Alden Leland, Claflin, Bemis & Co.

Nearly half of the population are more or less devoted to agriculture and the growth of fire-wood, fruits and garden vegetables.

STORES, &amp;c.

Of these, there are 9, viz. :—

1st by Andrews, Thompson & Co.

2d, by Pond & Thayer.

3d, by J. S. & J. Gill.

4th, by Hiram A. Morse & Son.

5th, by William Jones.

6th, by Caleb Steavens.

7th by Ambrose Sanger.

8th by Stephen Metcalf.

9th, [Book] by Lorenzo Parker.

A Printing Office is here conducted by E. G. Plimpton.

The Winthrop House, a spacious and commodious hotel, is kept by Mr. George H. Frances.

PHYSICIANS.

Timothy Fisk, A. M. and M. D., Sewall G. Burnap, M. D., and Doct. Jewett, M. D., are the present practising physicians.

LAWYERS.

Elias Bullard, A. M., the only lawyer ever permanently settled in H., has continued here in the practice of his profession for above 30 years, receiving from the town ample testimonials of their confidence and esteem. Litigation, for the present business and population is as uncommon as formerly.

Addenda for 2d paragraph on p. 288.

G. C. Rec., Mar. 17, 1681-3. In answer to a petition from the inhabitants of S., alleging that they had been deserted in the late war, to their great impoverishing, but had become resettled with about 30 families, who through the favour of God had procured a minister and undertaken to build him a house and also a meeting-house, both at a cost of above £200, the court allowed them their country rates for 2 ys. towards the expenses of the same.

For p. 326, A. D. 1729. Much as H. needed more inhabitants, its selectmen, as well as those of S., were accustomed to warn out of town any intruders who were corrupt or liable to become a town charge.
